Top Chinese Council Asks Both Sides To Stop War

Peace Conference Urged Immediately; Contact Lost With Trapped Nationalists

Nanking, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—China's Control Yuan (council) called on the Nationalist government and the Chinese Communists today to stop the civil war at once.

In a public statement the Council appealed to both sides to "cease hostilities immediately and appoint representatives to a peace conference."

The 223 members of the Council offered to resign en masse, if necessary, in the interests of peace and a "new deal" for China. They asked "all men in power" to do likewise.

The statement was issued after the government admitted it had lost radio contact with Gen. Tu Yu-ming's three army groups which have been trapped for five weeks in the Suchow area 170 miles northwest of Nanking.

"Wiped Out," Claim Reds

The Communist radio claimed the Nationalist forces, some 180,000 men, were "wiped out."

A cable from Tu two days ago said the men had eaten their horses and cows and were "now eating tree bark and leaves."

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek strengthened his offer to resign, implied in a New Year message, by telling the Honan provincial assembly at Hankow that "I would not mind whether I retain or give up my present position" if peace could be attained.

The Control Council members said they would call on the Ambassadors of the United States, Britain, France and Russia, as well as Chinese leaders, to end the "present stage of indecision" by arranging foreign mediation.

[The Control Yuan is the highest organ of control of the Chinese government and has the power of consent, impeachment, ratification and auditing.]

Meanwhile more government personnel fled from Nanking. One report, published in the Catholic Social Welfare Daily, said the government ordered every office to reduce its personnel to a skeleton of 35 men, either through evacuation or retrenchment.

Reports Say Tientsin Will Be Surrendered

Shanghai (Wednesday), Jan. 12 (AP).—Unofficial reports reaching Shanghai today insisted that a ceasefire agreement was reached at Tientsin and that the big North China city will be surrendered to the Communists.

These reports (not otherwise identified in the dispatch) did not say how soon, but hinted that the surrender would take place almost momentarily. This could not be confirmed from official sources.

The unofficial reports said the surrender agreement provided that government troops at Tientsin be released to return to their homes, presumably after being disarmed.

(Official quarters in Nanking previously had reported Tientsin was regarded as lost.)

Compromise Peace Vital To World, Says Koo

New York, Jan. 12 (U.P.).—Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese Ambassador to the United States, said tonight that a just compromise peace in China was vital to world peace and to bringing about cooperation between Russia and the Western democracies.

Million-Dollar Fire Wrecks Brick Yard

Baltimore, Jan. 11 (AP).—The Champion Brick Company was destroyed by fire tonight and Joseph Mullen, owner, estimated his loss at one million dollars.

Dame Fashion Has Spoken

It's Shorter Skirts Before Long

Football Shoulders Going Out, Evening Necklines Down

By Peggy Preston
Post Fashion Reporter

New York, Jan. 11.—Don't look now, boys, but the ladies are getting ready to shorten their skirts.

There's no need to get excited and start yelling "I told you so"—not yet, anyhow. You haven't a chance to view a kneecap parade this year in the manner of 1945. In fact, the upward trend in skirts is as yet so young that even the most discerning male eye may have trouble discovering it. But it's there all right—an inch to an inch and a half above what it was six months ago.

This inching-up of the hemline is what they call a "prophetic" trend here at the semiannual conclave of the New York Dress Institute. Where it will go next is anybody's guess.

Right now, for this reporter's money, the hemline is just about right. Suits and street dresses are at mid-calf length. For afternoon they are only slightly longer.

It is a pretty, feminine length and the same can be said for the entire silhouette this year. Certainly, it has never in history been more becoming or kind to the female form.

This is the important outline which emerges from these two days of showing here. Look for it when you plan your spring wardrobe:

1. Gently rounded shoulders in coats, suits and dresses. The heavily padded "football player's" shoulder line has passed into limbo. In its place is a natural-looking line, a light flat curved pad inserted for those women who need it. For those with normally wide shoulders, the pads may be removed.

2. Extremely low necklines for afternoon and evening take the spotlight in all these top-bracket collections. They take alarming dips and the designers have outdone themselves in creating daring effects. How these abbreviated dress-tops manage to stay together at all is one of the mysteries of the week.

3. The small waistline still gets top billing. Boned bodices and wired bra tops are still good and wide sashes are used extensively to help give the illusion of slenderness.

4. Skirts, on the whole, appear to be slimmer for daytime wear. But in these high-priced collec-

Britain Calls Crisis 'Grave' Peace Threat

Bevin Offer to Quit Denied in London; Israeli Complaint Is Filed With U. N.

By The Associated Press

The British government declared in a prepared statement in London last night that world peace is "gravely threatened" by Palestine developments.

Meanwhile, sources close to the Israeli government were quoted in Tel Aviv dispatches as reporting that Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin had offered to resign Monday because of his Palestine policy. The dispatch quoted these sources as saying Prime Minister Attlee refused to accept the resignation. The British Foreign Office denied flatly that Bevin had offered his resignation.

These developments came as Israel formally filed with the U. N. Security Council at Lake Success a complaint that Britain was fomenting an "artificial crisis" over Palestine by troop movements and various actions just as armistice negotiations were about to open with Egypt.

Fear of New Outbursts

The British Foreign Office statement warned that the Security Council has "been losing control of events," and said it had reason to fear new Jewish violations of U. N. cease-fire orders in the Holy Land area.

The statement said these violations "might be contemplated in Jerusalem or elsewhere against Trans-Jordan or Iraqi forces."

"It is of paramount importance that this (Security Council) authority should be reestablished without delay and maintained until a final settlement is reached," the statement said.

The Foreign Office declined immediate comment on the Jewish charge to the Security Council that Britain is displaying a "menacing attitude" toward the Jewish state.

It declared, however, that Britain proposed to use the greatest restraint to avoid endangering the success of the impending Egyptian-Israeli armistice talks at Rhodes.

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, acting U. N. mediator, arrived at Rhodes for preliminary Israeli-Egyptian talks scheduled to begin Wednesday.

Israeli spokesmen in Tel Aviv said all Israeli forces had been withdrawn from Egyptian territory, and there was no reason to delay the armistice talks.

In Amman, Trans-Jordan capital, an official spokesman said it was "very doubtful the Rhodes negotiations will attain any success." He said Trans-Jordan had not been given advance notice of the separate armistice negotiations by Egypt.

Three-Fold Complaint

The Israeli complaint to the U. N. charged a threefold violation of the Palestine truce by sending troops to Aqaba in Trans-Jordan; sending reconnaissance planes over the battle area in the Negev on the day a truce was going into effect, and by widely reported British troop movements from Cyprus, Malta and on Egypt's Sinai border with Palestine.

A Foreign Office spokesman said Britain was ready to go along with the suggestion of the United States and regard the shooting down of five British planes last Friday as a "regrettable incident."

The Air Ministry in London put out a communique reiterating that all five British planes shot down were attacked by the Israelis while over Egyptian territory.

Public Hearing Set Thursday On Nomination of Acheson

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted yesterday to hold public hearings on Dean Acheson's nomination as Secretary of State.

The hearings will begin tomorrow (Thursday) in the Senate Caucus Room, the biggest hall that could be found for the purpose. Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) predicted that the hearings would take only two days, and that only "a few votes" would be cast against confirmation on the Senate floor.

If there is any open opposition at the hearings it will have to express itself in the full light of publicity, and with the assurance that Acheson, a quick and vigorous debater, will get his answers on the public record.

This is as Acheson's friends on Capitol Hill wanted it, especially since Republican coolness toward him became apparent.

"He can handle himself," said Senator Millard F. Tydings (D., Md.), a new member of the committee, expressing confidence that Acheson would be approved.

Chairman Connally said the committee would hear any "respectable and creditable" witnesses who might want to discuss Acheson's qualifications for his new post.

A reporter reminded him that Senator Karl E. Mundt (R., S.Dak.), had suggested calling Whittaker Chambers, in view of the story that Acheson led a so-called "pro-Soviet group" in the State Department in 1944.

"I'd better look," was Connally's joking reply. "Mr. Chambers might be under the table now."

Apart from Acheson, who will start the testimony, Connally said one other witness might "possibly" appear, but he declined to say who.

Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) waged a bitter fight against Acheson's confirmation as Undersecretary of State in 1945, but after a flurry of oratory the Senate voted 69 to 1 for confirmation. Wherry was out of town last night, and it could not be learned whether he would testify against Acheson this time.

Apart from bringing any possible criticism into the open, the coming hearings will serve to reintroduce Acheson and his views to the Senate and the American public. Several committee members have said they wanted to explore Acheson's opinions on relations with Russia and other topics before recommending his confirmation.

The device of public hearings over a nomination has been used rarely by the Foreign Relations Committee in recent years, although other committees have used it frequently.

In both of Acheson's previous nominations to high State Department office—as Assistant Secretary

'1-Package' Labor Law Plan Backed By Thomas

Senator Reveals His Advocacy of Approach Opposed By AFL and CIO

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The "one-package" plan for revision of the Nation's labor laws was given sharp impetus on Capitol Hill yesterday.

Senator Elbert D. Thomas, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, supposedly an advocate of the "two-package" approach, disclosed he is actually a "one-package" supporter.

The "one-package" plan would kill the Taft-Hartley Act and simultaneously set up a modified Wagner Act in a single piece of legislation.

The AFL and CIO are opposed to this method of making good the President's and the Democratic Party's campaign pledges to repeal the Taft-Hartley Labor-Management Act.

Labor Wants Two Steps

Organized labor has been calling for "two-package" congressional action: first, immediate repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and revival of the Wagner Act; then, amendment of the Wagner Act along the lines requested by President Truman.

Until late yesterday afternoon, Senator Thomas was believed to be a "two package" man. No sooner did the Eighty-first Congress open last week than Thomas introduced a bill to eliminate the Taft-Hartley Act and restore the Wagner Act.

However, yesterday Thomas made it clear that he was not really a champion of the "two-package" approach. He told a press conference that he fully expected his own "simple repeal" bill would be amended in committee and on the floor of the Senate. The end result, he admitted, would be a single bill, or "one package," in revamping the country's labor code.

On Monday, Representative John Lesinski (D., Mich.), slated to become chairman of the House Labor Committee, said after a White House visit that Mr. Truman is agreeable to the "one-package" plan. Lesinski is himself a strong advocate of the plan, and intends to introduce legislation as soon as his committee is organized later this week.

Predicts Quick Action

Senator Thomas' explanation of his stand—which he insisted was not a change in position, but a clarification—came after he had met with Clark Clifford, special counsel to the President; Maurice J. Tobin, Secretary of Labor; Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service; Paul M. Herzog, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board; and Abe Murdock, member of NLRB.

Representative Lesinski has predicted that labor legislation—even in the "one-package" form—will get through Congress in six or seven weeks. Senator Thomas, however, wouldn't make any such prediction.

Keleher Tells Of Link With No. 1 Bookie

Divorce Defendant Denies Any Erickson Deals in Past Year

By Jean Reiff
Post Reporter

James B. Keleher yesterday admitted in District Court that he has had business dealings with Frank Erickson, who has been described as the biggest bookmaker in the country.

He refused, however, to state the nature of the transactions on the grounds that he might incriminate himself. Although admitting there were transactions, he told the court: "I don't know what business Erickson is in."

The once-convicted gambler's testimony was given during court proceedings in which his wife, Mrs. Anna T. Keleher, is seeking a limited divorce, charging cruelty. He is countersuing on the same grounds.

Law enforcement officials in New York and Washington were loath to minimize Erickson's importance in the gambling field. They said he is supposed to operate a clearing house for gamblers throughout the country who want to make "lay-off" bets to avoid carrying too heavy a betting load.

No Dealings for a Year

Keleher insisted frequently that he has had no dealings with Erickson since January, 1948, when, he declared, he (Keleher) retired from the business he operated at 3205 Rhode Island ave. ne., Mount Rainier, Md.

Then, he admitted he knew about four long-distance telephone calls which were made in December, 1948, from the Rhode Island ave. address to Paterson, N. J. His wife charges he is still operating a gambling establishment at the Rhode Island ave. address. His testimony indicated, however, that he might have been confused as to the dates of the calls.

(Mrs. Keleher's attorney, James J. Laughlin, said at the end of yesterday's proceedings that he will try to prove later in the trial that Erickson was involved in the calls to Paterson.)

Laughlin had handed Keleher nine telephone company slips, recording calls made from September through December of 1948 from the Rhode Island ave. address to Paterson.

"Have you any knowledge of these calls?" he asked Keleher. The defendant studied the nine slips carefully, before replying:

East Joined To Midwest By Television

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—Television tonight extended its vision from the Atlantic to the Mississippi over an area with a quarter of the Nation's population.

The East Coast and Midwest television facilities of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s Bell System were joined with the opening of a new link between Philadelphia and Cleveland.

Coast to Coast Next

It was a giant stride toward coast-to-coast television, which, however, may still be four or five years away, because of the expense, technical problems and great distances involved. The Philadelphia-Cleveland link, for example, cost $12,500,000.

The "Golden Spike" ceremony made it possible to telecast simultaneously to 17 cities with more than 30 stations—or better than half the Nation's total.

Chairman Wayne Coy of the Federal Communications Commission took part in the opening ceremonies, from Washington. He said television held the promise of further unifying the Nation and making a more perfect democracy.

Achievement Hailed

Coy compared tonight's achievement to the opening up of national roads, canals and railroads to the pioneer West.

The four television networks—ABC, CBS, Dumont and NBC—gave viewers a sampling of things to come with 15-minute shows each.

Wednesday the new link goes on a commercial basis and the networks will take turns using the single westbound channel and single eastbound channel between New York and Chicago. Two more westbound channels will be added by summer.

Sniper Downed Plane, Miami Race Flier Says

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 11 (U.P.).—S. J. Wittman of Oshkosh, Wisc., reported that his prizewinning midget plane was "shot down" at Spring Hill, Tenn., today by an unknown sniper.

Wittman, 44, said he was flying back to Oshkosh from the Miami Air Races when he was fired on as he flew at about 500 feet.

"At least one bullet hit beneath the left wing," Wittman said. "It punctured the gas tank. The gasoline fumes almost asphyxiated me but I managed to land safely in a muddy field half a mile south of Spring Hill."

Southern California Has Record Snow; 'Heat Wave' Hits Southeast

(Pictures on Page 8)

By The Associated Press

Winter draped a 1000-mile-long blanket of ice across the Nation's midriff yesterday and buried Southern California under probably the worst snow cover in its history.

Much of the southeast, meanwhile, sizzled in a "heat wave."

The ice sheath extended from western Oklahoma to eastern Illinois. In some areas it blacked out towns, snapped communication lines and forced school closings. Highway travel was hazardous throughout the entire section.

Snow up to 6 inches deep covered several suburban Los Angeles communities. More than 3 inches carpeted Pasadena's Colorado blvd. where the Tournament of Roses floral parade was staged less than two weeks ago.

Icy highways forced many Los Angeles night workers to make wide detours to reach their suburban homes.

Freezing temperatures in the citrus belt brought new threat of damage to the frost-bitten fruit and vegetable crops. However, at Sacramento, R. E. Blair, State fruit statistician, said loss to the citrus crop may be less than 25 per cent.

Parsons, Kans., a city of 17,000 population, was virtually isolated when ice-coated transmission lines snapped. One railroad telegraph line was the only communication with the outside.

The eastbound Union Pacific City of Los Angeles was derailed Monday night when it struck a bulldozer clearing snow drifts near Pine Bluffs, Wyo.

Budget Cuts Change Plans For Air War

AF Cancels Many Orders to Stress Strategic Bombing

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Air Force budget cutbacks have forced a major recasting of the Nation's aerial war plans, it was disclosed last night.

The number of fighter, medium bomber and miscellaneous groups is being reduced, and more heavy bomber units will be created, a USAF spokesman said.

This greater emphasis on strategic bombing in America's military planning means Air Force leaders have decided to pin their hopes on the controversial globe-ranging B-36 bomber as their chief bet in case of trouble.

Aircraft Orders Cut

Disclosure of the shift in war planning followed an announcement that aircraft orders totaling 300 million dollars have been canceled and that a contract for "a substantial additional number" of B-36s will be let.

Under President Truman's 1950 budget, the Air Force will be cut back from its present 60 and planned 70 groups to 48. This brought about a wholesale revamping of the distribution of fighter, bomber and other type groups, and the decision that if fewer units are to be maintained, there will be more use of the most powerful weapon now available.

Besides ordering additional B-36s, the money saved by the cancellation of existing contracts will be used to modernize and improve B-36s and B-50s now in service or building, the anouncement said.

Cancellations Made

The Air Force canceled the following orders:

Thirty Northrop RB-49 reconnaissance bombers. This is the famed eight-jet flying wing, which officials hope will combine both speed and long range. The cutback involved the entire order given to the Consolidated-Vultee plant at Fort Worth, Tex., last year to build under license from the Northrop company.

Two experimental B-49s built by Northrop will be the only ones of their type under present plans. They are still undergoing test.

The entire order of 118 North American F-93 long-range "penetration" fighters placed last year. This is a modification of the F-86

Forrestal Says He Will Keep Cabinet Post

Secretary Denies Resignation Reports At Truman's Office

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

James Forrestal, dean of the Cabinet in point of service, said at the White House yesterday that he expected to continue as Secretary of Defense. He had just emerged from President Truman's office.

Reports that Forrestal would leave the Washington scene have been flying around ever since the election. He has been under attack by commentators and others who disliked his Wall Street background and his views on Russia and Palestine.

Mr. Truman last week vehemently knocked down a Life magazine article by Jay Franklin which said that the effect of the November 2 election was to "dynamite" the Byrnes-Forrestal-Lovett foreign policy. The article also said obliquely that Forrestal wanted a continuation of "bad relations" between the United States and Russia.

Besieged by Reporters

The 56-year-old Secretary of Defense, only remaining holdover from the Roosevelt Cabinet, was besieged by reporters as he came out of Mr. Truman's office yesterday.

"Have you submitted your resignation?" he was asked.

"Nope," he said, but then explained that, as a matter of routine, he expected to turn in one before Inauguration Day. He said he had an old one in, but added that it probably needed refurbishing.

"Do you anticipate its acceptance?" Forrestal was asked.

He said he did not, and went on to say that he would continue to be "a victim of the Washington scene."

"Do you want and expect to continue as Secretary of Defense?" he was asked.

"Yes, that's right," he answered.

He did not say how long he expected to remain in the Pentagon. Two days after the election, Forrestal made a remark at the White House that was taken to mean that he did not intend to stay in the Cabinet until 1953. News photographers asked him to pose, explaining that they were "starting another four years."

"But not for me," Forrestal remarked.

Mural Covered, Offended Artist Asks $150,000

New York, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—Artist Alfred di Giorgio Crimi contended in court today the Rutgers Presbyterian Church wounded his honor $150,000 worth by covering his prize-winning mural of Christ with three coats of wall paint.

The 48-year-old painter told State Supreme Court Referee Charles C. Lockwood that church officials had no right to obliterate his 35-by-26-foot fresco "Spreading the Gospel," merely because they didn't think Christ should have a bare chest.

Crimi contended an artist retains "moral ownership" of his work, even though he has sold it. Moreover, he said the buff-colored wall paint and stenciled pattern of leaves with which his work was covered, was "an undignified burial shroud."

Church officials replied in a memorandum to the court that Crimi was paid $6800 in 1938 when he completed the fresco and no longer had any rights in the matter.

Jamison Accused of 'Politics' In Montgomery Zoning Vote

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Montgomery County's lone Democratic county commissioner was accused by two Republican colleagues yesterday of voting for political reasons to rezone land owned by a county Democratic leader.

The charges hurled at Commissioner Charles H. Jamison by President Brooke Johns and Commissioner Oliver W. Youngblood came in the closing minutes of what probably will be the commissioners' final session after two years in office.

The five-man board will be replaced next week by a seven-member county council elected under the charter adopted in a referendum last November.

The fireworks came after adjournment when Jamison told his colleagues he wanted to record his vote in connection with a rezoning requested by Lacy Shaw, long-time county Democratic leader and politician. The rezoning was disapproved two weeks ago when Jamison was absent. At that time Commissioners Johns, Youngblood and Wesley I. Sauter voted "no" and Commissioner Esworthy declined to vote.

Members agreed to reopen the Shaw rezoning case.

On a motion by Jamison and a second by Esworthy, another vote was taken. It was carried by a 3-2 vote. Jamison, Esworthy and Sauter voted to grant the rezoning and Johns and Youngblood dissented vigorously.

2 Freed in Slaying of Negro After 2 of White Jury Testify

William Howell, Suspect cleared — Mrs. Amy Mallard, Widowed by slayer — Joseph Goldwasser, Crusader fights on Lyons, Ga., Jan. 11 (AP).—An all-white jury today quickly acquitted a white farmer accused of murdering a Negro after two of the jurors testified they would not believe the Negro's widow under oath.

The jurors were called as character witnesses for William L. (Spud) Howell, 32, one of two white farmers charged with the ambush slaying of Robert Mallard on the night of November 20.

A member of the attorney general's staff in Atlanta said the procedure of calling upon jurors for testimony was unusual but not unprecedented in Georgia.

Howell was freed after the jurors deliberated only 25 minutes. The State prosecutor then asked that murder charges also be dropped against Roderick Clifton, 32, who was awaiting trial.

The charge against Clifton was dropped over the objection of Defense Attorney T. Ross Sharp, who said he wanted an acquittal for reasons he did not care to reveal.

The crowded courtroom echoed with whistles and handclapping when the verdict was brought in.

Before the case went to the jury, Joseph Goldwasser, Cleveland (Ohio) businessman, told newsmen he would appeal to the Justice Department in Washington for action if convictions were not obtained. He said he would inform the Jus-

20 Injured in Second Wreck Of Seaboard Railroad Flyer

Groveland, Fla., Jan. 11 (AP).—At least 20 persons (including 8 Washingtonians) were hurt when the Seaboard Airline Railroad's Miami-to-New York Orange Blossom Special was derailed tonight at Bay Lake, 14 miles southwest of this town.

It was the second Orange Blossom Special derailment in two days. Another section of the same train was derailed yesterday at Milford, Va., injuring more than a score.

Those hurt in tonight's wreck were taken to two hospitals in Leesburg. Officials couldn't say how serious injuries were.

Eight persons from Washington, D. C., were included in a list compiled by a city policeman of the injured taken to Leesburg hospitals. They were: Mr. and Mrs. John McLeod, Joseph Christa and W. E. Dent, passengers; T. E. Cardens, porter, and Robert Edwards, Samuel McCollum and E. Stanley, cooks.

Five were listed as from Baltimore, Md. They were: Mr. and Mrs. Flasks and son Eddie, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bergman.

F. M. Thomas, Florida highway patrol sergeant, said as nearly as he could tell all cars of the 15-car train were off the rails, most of them overturned.

A railroad spokesman at Jacksonville said the first Diesel unit remained on the track.

The baggage car caught fire and was partly burned. Four cars jumped a ditch alongside the track and plunged into a swamp.

Stass Reed of New York City, a passenger, estimated there were about 60 passengers, most of whom were in the diner and club cars when the derailment occurred.

American Airlines Tie-up Strike Voted

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—American Airlines maintenance and supply workers throughout the country have voted for a strike that would "completely shut down" domestic and overseas flights, a union spokesman said today.

The CIO Transport Workers Union spokesman said the vote of 4500 maintenance workers and stores personnel was "overwhelmingly" in favor of the strike.

The spokesman said the strike would not begin before Monday, when the parties have agreed to meet here with Ross Foran of the National Mediation Board.

A company spokesman declined comment on the strike vote, but did not dispute the union's statement that a strike would shut down the airline's operations.

The union is seeking 16 cents more an hour and other benefits, having reduced its wage demand from 28 cents. The company's last offer, the union said, was 5 cents an hour.

The present wage scale, says the union, is from $1.40 to $1.50 an hour. However, the company spokesman said workers who wash planes make only 94 cents an hour and some ground workers get $2.06 an hour.

New York Fuel Truck Strike Is Called Off

New York, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—A strike of 2500 fuel truck drivers slated for Wednesday midnight was called off tonight when union negotiators accepted pay boosts of $1.75 and $2.25 a day.

The agreement, which will be submitted to the rank and file of Local 553 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, AFL, at a meeting Wednesday night, will bring the salary of coal and fuel oil drivers to $14 a day. The union had been demanding $16 a day.

Meanwhile city mediators increased their efforts to ward off another crippling strike set for Wednesday midnight. They planned to meet into the night with employers and representatives of 3500 tugboat workers who are demanding a 25 per cent wage increase and other benefits.

The last-minute settlement of the fuel truck dispute warded off a strike that Mayor William O'Dwyer had warned would "undoubtedly result in grave danger, if not death, to many citizens."

The settlement between the union and some 585 fuel distributors also awarded a $1 night shift differential, a new employer-financed welfare fund, increased vacations and double time for holidays and Sundays.

Union Ousts Official on Red Charge

The chief official of an AFL local here has been suspended as a result of charges he is a Communist Party officer, it was announced yesterday.

Target of the union purge, first of its kind in the District, is William S. Johnson, business agent of Local 209, Cooks, Pastry Cooks and Kitchen Helpers Unions.

Johnson was ordered removed from his position by Hugo Ernst, president of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes and Bartenders International, of which Local 209 is a unit.

A hearing into the accusations of Communist activity against Johnson was held here early last month by a representative of the international headquarters. This hearing uncovered "circumstantial evidence" that Johnson is a vice chairman of the District Communist Party, according to Ernst, and the business agent was thereupon suspended from office.

A William S. Johnson is listed as 1947 vice chairman of the District of Columbia section, Communist Party, in the pamphlet, "100 Things You Should Know About Communism in the U. S. A." issued last summer by the House Committee on Un-American Affairs.

Johnson, who is 47 and lives at 553 24th st. ne., yesterday was still answering the phone at Local 209's headquarters, 1215 I st. nw. He refused to comment, but added he'd have his say in the matter shortly.

The executive board of Local 209 met last night, and a general meeting of the 1200 members of the local has been called for tonight at 1148 7th st. nw. Officers of the local preferred to remain silent on the purpose of the meetings.

It was the Taft-Hartley Act which brought the charges against Johnson to a head.

The act requires all union officials to sign affidavits they are not Communists; otherwise they lose certain labor rights. The Restaurant Employes Alliance, which serves as council for the four locals of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes and Bartenders International, urged its local officers to conform with the law.

When Johnson refused to do so, a committee was set up by the other three locals of the alliance—representing the hotel waiters and waitresses, bartenders and hotel service employes. It proceeded to lodge charges against the business agent.

Under the international's constitution adopted in 1947, Communists may hold a union card but not hold office.

The suspension order barring Johnson from office is for six months. He can be reinstated if he can show he has purged himself of membership in any subversive group, according to union officials. He can also appeal the suspension to the general executive board of the international, which meets in Miami February 14.

Jury Questions Mrs. Insleman

New York, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—Mrs. Elizabeth Alice Insleman, 33, wife of a General Electric company scientist, testified for 15 minutes today before the Federal grand jury investigating Communist espionage.

She appeared nervous as she emerged from the jury chamber and told reporters she did not know why she had been called.

Asked if she knew former Communist Courier Whittaker Chambers she replied, "No comment." Then reporters asked if she knew Alger Hiss, accused by Chambers of giving him Government secrets and indicted by a grand jury on two counts of perjury.

She started to reply, then turned to her attorney, who advised her to answer again "No comment."

Mrs. Insleman was accompanied by her husband Felix, 38, an employe of General Electric's Schenectady, N. Y. plant.

The only other witness questioned today was Max Bedacht, 65-year-old Frenchtown, N. J., chicken farmer, who was kicked out of the Communist Party last October. Bedacht, one of the founders of the party in this country in 1919, told reporters he would rejoin the Communist Party if given a chance.

"My political beliefs are unchanged," he said.

us for delay if they see us working," the Utah legislator commented.

But even before Senator Thomas clarified his views a spokesman for the AFL declared that his organization wanted "speedy, simple" repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and immediate restoration of the Wagner Act. "After that, we are willing to go ahead and amend the Wagner Act," he said.

The AFL considers the "one-package" approach a Republican approach to revamping the labor laws, an AFL spokesman said. The AFL, he added, wants to amend the Wagner Act, not have to amend the Taft-Hartley Act. Besides, the AFL would like to count noses on flat repeal, according to the spokesman.

The CIO had no statement to make yesterday, but there's little doubt that the rival union feels the same as the AFL on this issue. The two great unions worked together to defeat Congressmen who'd voted for the Taft-Hartley Act and to elect President Truman.

Meanwhile, Senator Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.), majority whip, yesterday disclosed he planned to issue a call to the top leadership of the labor movement to meet with him and a group of Senators in the near future. The idea, Myers said, is to get the labor leaders, who cooperated so well during the election campaign, to continue their combined efforts behind the "liberal measures of the Democratic platform."

Democrats Delay Senate Cloture Test

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senate Democratic leaders have postponed any showdown on a debate-curbing change in Senate rules until after President Truman's inaugural, January 20, it was learned last night.

Senate Republicans, contending any extended delay in the rules shift will doom the President's civil rights program, meanwhile launched a drive for immediate action.

Senate Rules Chairman Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.), called a meeting of his Senate Rules Committee today but told newsmen it was "purely for organization."

Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.), a member of the Rules group and author of one of the debate-curbing resolutions, told reporters he intends "to bring the matter up" at today's meeting.

"I am opposed to this matter going over any great period of time," said Knowland. "We should get a rule out later this week or early next week. It has to be done quickly or it won't get to a vote, because of the pressure of other legislation."

Knowland said he doubted the committee will act today because of requests for hearings. He said "extensive hearings" were held last year and he saw no need to repeat them.

Vice President Elect Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.) Friday gave the Senate what was tantamount to a pledge of a debate-limiting effort in some from.

The move is expected to center around a resolution jointly sponsored by Senator Hayden (D., Ariz.) and Republican Floor Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.). This would apply cloture (debate shut-off) procedure to amendments to the Senate journal, a favorite filibustering device, or to any motion or measure pending before the Senate. It would still require a two thirds vote to cut off debate, however.

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), Senate Majority Whip Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.) have countered with proposals to close off debate by a majority vote.

Leading Southern Senators hinted they will not "strenuously" resist a tighter curb on debate, modeled along lines of the Hayden-Wherry resolution, so long as it requires a two-thirds majority to force a bill to a vote.

One predicted an all-out filibuster, however, against any effort to stop talk on civil rights and other measures by a simple majority vote.

Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) said Senate rules "have never worked an injury on the people" and he saw no need to change them.

But he predicted "a difference in the intensity of the opposition to some of the proposals."

He said any effort to cut off debate by a majority vote" will be resisted to the utmost."

That did not mean, he said, that there wouldn't be some Southern opposition to the Hayden-Wherry (two-thirds) resolution, "but it stands a much better chance than the others."

The Georgian, who led the last successful filibuster against the antipoll tax bill, again suggested a constitutional amendment as the only possible point of compromise.

He said few Southern members defended poll taxes, but opposed their abolition by Federal statute.

[The United Press said Russell had called a meeting today of Southern Democrats to consider their course in the Senate fight.—Editor's note.]

Attorneys for 12 Communists Again Seek to Delay Trial

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—Attorneys for 12 Communist leaders charged with conspiring to organize the party to advocate violent overthrow of the Government again sought postponement of their trial today because of the ill health of one of them.

Louis F. McCabe, Philadephia attorney for national party chairman William Z. Foster, sought postponement on the grounds of Foster's continued ill health. Defense attorneys say he is suffering from a heart condition.

Senate D. C. Committee Plans Larger Role in City's Affairs

A live-wire approach to the business of governing Washington was forecast yesterday in the first meeting of the new Senate District Committee.

Eleven members of the 13-place committee met in an atmosphere of friendliness, and they gave bipartisan assurances of support to the policies of the new chairman, Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.).

These policies, McGrath made clear, have two new features.

First, the committee will enlarge its scope beyond the usual legislative routine, and will be ready to consider and discuss issues of major local interest as they arise. McGrath indicated that such discussion might become the prelude from time to time for investigation and for committed-sponsored legislation.

Second, the committee staff probably will be brought to full strength to help the committee in its projected plan for a more active role in the management of District affairs. Last year the staff varied from 4 to 5 members; the authorized full strength is 10 members. McGrath said there would be majority and minority representation in the staff.

McGrath invited committee members to file with him their preferences for assignment to subcommittees. The subcommittee organization will be the same as last year. The six groups will be: Fiscal Affairs, Home Rule and Reorganization; Judiciary; Public Health, Education and Recreation; Public Services, Streets and Traffic, and Public Utilities, Insurance and Banking.

Senators will be assigned to subcommittees of their choice as far as possible, McGrath said.

For the start of the session, the regular Senate District Committee meeting time was set for 11 a. m. the first Tuesday of each month.

McGrath said that, at the next meeting, he will ask immediate action on his bill to let the District have daylight saving time every summer.

A Republican member, Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Wis.), suggested that Chairman McGrath be given authority to decide how proxies are to be used by the District Committee members. McGrath said he would draw up a rule and file it with the committee.

Committee Clerk J. George Stewart told the group that under committee rules in force last session, it was possible for the chairman to decide what bills were to be presented to the committee for action. McGrath said he didn't want such power, and would limit his function to assigning the bills to the proper subcommittees.

The committee agreed that radio and television coverage of hearings should be permitted in the discretion of the committee and subcommittee chairmen concerned.

McGrath told the group he had long felt the Senate District Committee should not confine itself to consideration of the bills that come to it but, in addition, should exercise its "proper function" of meeting to discuss general District affairs.

Such affairs, he said, might include the conduct of the Police Department, or the Fire Department, or the management of highways, or any other matter that becomes a live issue of widespread local interest.

Legislation might grow out of such general discussions, he said, adding, "such discussions are as much a part of our duty as the consideration of bills."

Representative Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) said he favored both McGrath's idea of the function of committee discussion, and also the idea of keeping that function functioning. Representative Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) also indorsed the idea.

Three Republican members joined in assuring their support in carrying out responsibilities of the committee. They were Senators John J. Williams (Del.), Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith (D., Maine) and Andrew F. Schoeppel (Kan.).

Senator J. Allen Frear, jr. (D., Del.) commented on both Delaware Senators having been assigned to the District Committee, and his colleague, Senator Williams, quipped: "We're thinking about annexing the District."

Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.) recalled that he had asked for his District Committee assignment, and said he felt that the "Capital City should be the outstanding city in the United States."

2-Party Fight Seen Against Tax Boost

By The Associated Press

Influential two-party support built up last night behind a move to substitute budget cuts for President Truman's tax increase proposal.

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) predicted that the President will get less than half the four-billion-dollar general tax boost he has asked.

"With reasonable economies no tax increase at all would be necessary," Byrd added to a reporter.

At the same time Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), Appropriations chairman when the Republicans controlled Congress, described the Truman budget as "a wage cut for every American worker."

"Before we indulge in higher costs and higher taxes," Bridges went on in a statement, "we should study sound cuts in Government spending."

Bridges said some social services are a proper function of government. At the same time he declared the President "cannot buy social progress overnight in one staggering budget that represents the initial purchase, not the upkeep, of such a program."

Indicating that Byrd will find help on the Democratic side of the Senate aisle, another influential Democrat voiced doubt that there would be any tax boost at all. Asking that his name not be used, this Senator said he believes that, in any event, an increase in personal taxes is "out of the question."

Meanwhile two Administration stalwarts in the House—Representatives Eberharter (D., Pa.) and Dingell (D., Mich.)—came out against levying of new income taxes against persons making less than $16,000 or maybe $20,000 a year.

The suggestion of an economy program to solve the Nation's fiscal problems portended a rough road ahead for Mr. Truman's call upon Congress for four billion dollars more taxes. The President said the new revenue should come mostly from corporations and possibly some from middle and upper income groups.

Indications are that Republicans in both Houses, who cut taxes last year by about five billion dollars, will put up a virtually solid front against a tax increase now.

Trolley Patrons to Alight Near Parade Route

Transportation officials yesterday announced plans to place passengers within a block of the Inaugural parade route wherever possible.

Special restrictions on street car and bus service were announced by the Public Utilities Commission, while Traffic Director George R. Keneipp said the Department of Vehicles and Traffic will post 12,000 "no-parking" signs to keep private cars out of the critical area.

Thomas P. Morgan, jr., chairman of the domestic transportation committee for the 1949 Inaugural, issued a map showing regulated areas.

Forty taxicab stands have been spotted within the "no-parking" area, along with nine bus terminals.

Object of the arrangements is to permit parade viewers to get as close as possible to the route between Capitol Hill and the White House with a minimum of congestion.

Streetcar traffic will not be operated over the following route beginning at 10 a. m. January 20, although it will follow within three squares of the parade at its conclusion:

On Pennsylvania ave. between 18th and 15th sts. nw.; on 15th st. nw. between New York ave. and Pennsylvania ave; on Pennsylvania ave. between 15th st. nw. and Peace Monument; on 1st st. between C st. nw. and Independence ave., and on Independence ave. and B sts. from 1st st. nw. to 1st st. ne.

On lines crossing this route, streetcars will be suspended at 10 a. m. and remain so until the rear of the parade has passed three squares west of such lines.

Streetcars on Pennsylvania ave. from 18th st. to Washington Circle will be suspended when the head of the parade reaches 7th st. nw.

During the parade, streetcars will continue to operate on most routes north of the Pennsylvania-Constitution ave. parade route. Most of them will place passengers within a block of the parade.

Modification of normal bus routes will be made to accomplish the same purpose as restrictions on car lines.

Capital Transit Co. bus terminals within the downtown area will be located at Vermont ave. and H st. nw.; New York ave. and 12th st. nw.; 11th and E sts. nw.; 9th and D sts. nw., and Constitution ave. between 11th and 12th sts. nw.

Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co. terminals will be spotted at 16th and K sts. nw., and on Constitution ave, between 9th and 10th sts. nw.

The W. M. & A. terminal will be located at 12th st. and Madison dr. nw. The A. B. & W. Transit Co. terminal will be at 14th st and Madison dr. nw.

Taxicabs stands will be located on both sides of the parade route between 1st and 19th sts. nw.

A Capital Transit official said "as many extra buses and streetcars as we can handle" will be in operation during the day.

Traffic Director Keneipp repeated the "no-parking" boundaries which will be in effect between midnight January 19 until midnight January 20 to remind motorists to park in outlying districts and "shuttle" into town. The boundaries' clockwise from the southwest corner of the general area:

Constitution ave., 23d st., Virginia ave., 24th st., M st., 20th st., K st., 10th st., H st., 5th and E sts., all northwest; N. Capitol st., Massachusetts ave. and 2d st. ne., Pennsylvania ave., 8th st. and Virginia ave. se.; Virginia ave., 3d st., Maryland ave., 7th st., Jefferson Drive and 15th st., all southwest.

Parking will also be restricted on several main arteries adjacent to and leading into the general "no parking" area.

Food Price Declines Lag at Retail

Although wholesale prices of food and farm products dropped 9 per cent from August 15 to December 15, retail prices of food dropped only about 4 per cent, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics said yesterday.

BAE also reported that although the gross income of American farms last year was the highest in history, or 31 billion dollars, because of increased costs of farming the net was below 1947.

Average prices that farmers received for their crops last year were 3 per cent under 1947, but because production was 10 per cent above 1947 the gross income was higher.

Political Foresight Attributed To Man Held in 'Hill' Thefts

A politically astute janitor was charged with three counts of petty larceny yesterday in connection with a series of thefts from offices in the Senate Office Building.

The suspect, William Dudley, 36, of 321 B st. se., was "smart," said Lieut. Michael Dowd of the Metropolitan Police.

Since November, according to Dowd, many of the thefts have occurred in offices of Senators who were defeated for reelection. Now these Senators have left Washington and aren't available to identify loot, Dowd added.

Dudley was at work yesterday at 4:30 a. m. in the Senate Office Building when arrested by Dowd and Lieut. Bernard Flanagan of the Capitol Police. They said he had been under suspicion for some time.

Dowd said Dudley admitted the thefts and then took them to his home where they recovered:

1—Half of an 18-pound ham belonging to Miss Flo Bratton, secretary to Vice President-elect Barkley.

2—A pair of shoes stolen from the office of Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.).

3. A table model radio belonging to Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.).

4. A somewhat depleted box of cigars taken from the office of Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.).

Dowd said other loot was recovered, but has not yet been traced to the owners. According to police, Dudley has a police record and was hired as a janitor during the war years when there was a manpower shortage.

Dudley will be arraigned today in Municipal Court.

U. S. Board Plans 17 Merchant Ships

By The Associated Press

With an eye to American shipping needs in event of war, the Maritime Commission yesterday unwrapped a program to add 95 million dollars' worth of new vessels to the United States merchant fleet.

The plan calls for immediate construction of 17 new-type, high-speed passenger-cargo ships and tankers—all with so-called "national defense features" insuring easy and quick conversion to wartime use.

The program will be launched, a commission spokesman made it clear, if and when Congress approves President Truman's budget request for funds to finance the subsidy operation.

The commission official said top priority would be given to the construction of two "prototype" vessels—Atomic Age replacements, he called them, for the thousands of mass-produced "Libertys" and "Victorys" built during World War II. Other ships planned under the program include:

Two 17,000-ton passenger-cargo liners to be operated by the Grace Lines, Inc., New York, on the United States-Caribbean area run. Estimated to cost 30 million dollars, the ships would have luxury facilities for about 300 passengers in addition to cargo space.

Ten tankers of various size to be built for oil and shipping companies and costing about 23 million dollars. All would have 20-knot speed and other features offering some defense against submarine attack.

One 20,000-ton passenger-cargo ship, costing 14 million dollars or more, to be built for Mississippi Shipping Co., New Orleans, and operated between Gulf Coast ports and the eastern coast of South America. It is expected that this vessel would be the American "queen" of the South Atlantic fleet—a 550-foot craft with luxury accommodations for at least 234 passengers.

Two cargo ships of about 10,000 tons for Standard Fruit & Steamship Co., New Orleans. Planned for service between New Orleans and Latin America, the ships would cost about nine million dollars.

The Maritime Commission explained that all costs are tentative but the "entire program, by the time the ships leave the ways, will cost in the neighborhood of 95 million dollars." The agency's spokesman also pointed out that the private companies, for whom the vessels would be built, would pay the major portion of the construction bill.

With the exception of the two "prototype" ships, all of the proposed craft would be privately operated. The new-type "Liberty" and "Victory" ships, as now planned, would weigh about 10,000 tons deadweight and have 450-foot hulls and a top speed of 20 knots. Other features are unavailable for security reasons.

The new program is slated to get under way, if Congress provides the funds, on July 1.

Under present law, the United States pays subsidies on new ship consturction to offset the cost of building ships here in comparison to other countries. The figure ran from 35 to 40 per cent, prewar, and private firms say the figure now is inadequate. Congress last year turned down a request for a flat 50 per cent subsidy.

fighter which set a world's speed record of 680 plus miles an hour.

"Effective Air Force"

The USAF announcement said only that the reallocation of plane procurement funds was "in line with the President's budget message" and aimed at achieving "a more effective Air Force-in-being with minimum delay."

Officials were loath to elaborate on this, other than to point out that with a reduced Air Force "first things must come first." While the B-49 flying wing has promise of developing into an effective weapon and the other canceled planes figure in future plans, USAF leaders figure the B-36 and B-50 are proven craft that can give us the punch needed now.

The B-36 is a 150-ton sky giant powered by six conventional type piston engines. It has a designed range of 10,000 miles carrying 10,000 pounds of bombs. As far as is known the Consolidated-Vultee craft never has accomplished this.

Recently, however, a B-36 flew from Fort Worth, Tex., to Hawaii, dropped a bomb in the ocean and returned to its base without refueling—a round trip of 8400 miles. Critics of the plane contend it is too slow to survive against modern jet fighters. Larger, new engines, however, have boosted the speed somewhat.

At present Consolidated Vultee has an order for 96 B-36s costing 250 million dollars. Two groups of the giants are in service. One group of Boeing B-50s—a much improved version of the wartime B-29—is now nearly complete. Orders of the type total 390.

Meanwhile, there was renewed criticism of President Truman's air power cut on Capitol Hill. Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.), a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, commented:

"It looks to me as though the President is going to compel Congress to lift the budget for air, as it did last year."

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) declared that in planning for America's air defense, the Administration "should look ahead at a possible World War III and not back at World War I, as President Truman seems to be doing."

Representative Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) new chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, is scheduled to confer with W. Stuart Symington, Air Force Secretary, today about the reductions.

Camp Pickett to Close; D. C. Draftee Center

The Army said last night that Camp Pickett, Va.—training center for Washington area draftees—will be closed this month.

Reopened only three months ago, the wartime camp will be shut down again as a result of budgetary cutbacks and the leveling off of expansion plans.

Camp Breckinridge, Ky., will be closed at the same time, and for the same reason, Army officials said, and the Seventeenth and 101st Training Divisions at the two posts will be deactivated. Recruits and draftees taking basic training at the two camps will end their eight-week course January 17, when the centers will close.

New, Six-Pound 'Magazine' to Sell For $30 a Copy

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—A new periodical described by its publishers as a magazine but selling for $30 a copy was launched today. It is Nation's Heritage, a 6-pound, hard-cover volume.

The periodical is scheduled to appear every two months and to be sold at a subscription rate of $150 a year.

The publisher, Malcolm Forbes of B. C. Forbes & Sons Publishing Co., said that for the present Nation's Heritage will have to be carried in the mails as parcel post. He said the postoffice had ruled it was not a magazine because it had hard covers, and not a book because it is to be issued periodically.

Charter subscribers are largely corporations. The publication carries no advertising.

Mrs. Roosevelt Doubts Reds Are U. S. Menace

Baltimore, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt today criticized the House Un-American Activities Committee as a "bunch of amateurs," and said the best way to fight communism is to make democracy succeed.

Addressing the Baltimore County League of Women Voters, the widow of the late President said she does not think communism is a serious menace in the United States.

She added that the way to keep Communists from power was through the FBI and strengthened Federal laws.

GOP Spent $228,938 More Than '48 Intake

By The Associated Press

The Republican National Committee spent $228,938 more than it received in 1948.

Its year-end financial report, filed yesterday with Congress, showed income of $2,507,396, with expenses totaling $2,736,334.

The report did not say how much the Republicans had on hand at the beginning of the year, or how much—if any—was left in the bank when the year ended.

The report from the Democratic National Committee last week did. It showed $315,367 in the bank when the year started, and $180,914 left December 31.

Indianapolis, Jan. 11 (AP).—Miss Gertrude Groebel of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce wanted to try out a new wire recorder today. She walked up to "a distinguished loking man" in Union Station.

He talked into the device.

"It's difficult to escape this mug," he chuckled.

She looked at the "mug" again. It was Alben Barkley, Vice President-elect, waiting between trains on his way to Bloomington, Ill., for a speech.

"He was very nice," Miss Groebel told reporters.

in 1941 and Undersecretary in 1945—his name went before the full Senate after quick committee approval in executive session.

The decision to hold public hearings came after the Foreign Relations Committee had spent 4½ hours hearing retiring Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett review the international situation.

Connally told reporters Lovett had given a "very able and comprehensive review," so as to bring the committee up to date on events since the congressional recess last summer.

Other committee members said Lovett had not dealt with the projected North Atlantic defense treaty or other issues involving new legislation.

["Other Senators said Lovett described the Russian Politburo as a 14-member group dominated by one man—Stalin," the Associated Press reported. "They quoted Lovett as saying that in his opinion the Politburo will take any course necessary to retain power, including war.

["Within the Politburo, Lovett is reported to have said, war is regarded as an instrument to perpetuate communism, a method to be used whenever the members agree that fighting is necessary to gain their ends, and that they can win.

["Members said Lovett held out no specific hope of any early settlement of the differences with Russia over Berlin. He was said to have reported that the American airlift will make it possible for this country to remain in Berlin indefinitely."]

Connally said James E. Webb's qualifications to be Undersecretary of State would not be discussed in the coming hearings. He indicated the committee would take up Webb's confirmation after Acheson had been approved.

Africa to Supply Manganese to U. S.

By The Associated Press

A plan intended to help the United States get more manganese from South Africa for its strategic materials stockpile will go into effect next month, the Commerce Department announced yesterday.

Russia is now this country's principal source of supply of manganese. The metal is necessary for high grade steel used in shells and other war equipment.

There have been reports recently in trade circles that Russia expects to cut down on shipments of manganese to the United States, but officials here say they have no information to substantiate them.

The new plan provides for a set-aside of 2576 tons of steel monthly, from February until September at least, for use in making cars to transport manganese ore from South Africa mines to tidewater.

The cars are to be made by the Canadian Car & Foundry Co., Ltd., Montreal, and used by the Union of South African Railways.

The United States Munitions Board, which handles this Government's war materials stockpiling, has said the plan may make it possible to get half of all stockpile manganese from South Africa.

The board has never disclosed the amount of manganese it wants to stockpile, but it has suggested the steel guarantee plan might enable South Africa to increase its yearly manganese production by 250,000 to 300,000 tons.

The Canadian car factory has undertaken to deliver the cars to the South African Railways in the fourth quarter of this year.

The Commerce Department said another new steel guarantee program to go into effect February 1 will provide 26,400 tons for production of mining machinery and repair parts in this country.

Russia to Return Cruiser by March

Soviet Press Giving Play To Truman

By Eddy Gilmore

Moscow, Jan. 11 (AP).—President Truman has been making news for the Soviet press since the beginning of the year. He now is being quoted more than Henry Wallace, which is saying a great deal.

The President's State of the Union message received major attention in all the principal papers. The press treated it as an admission that things in the United States are really bad. Russians read with much comment his remarks about millions of Americans still living in slums and about poor educational facilities in America.

Following this came today's publication of his budget message. Tass, official news agency, said the President proposed to allocate more than half the budget to "military purposes and financing of economic expansion of the United States abroad."

Furthermore, Tass said, the President suggested spending $3,500,000,000 for "indirect military purposes concealed as proposals on development of national resources and improvement of transport and communications."

Soviet commentators have been saying for a long time that certain militarists in the United States were preparing for a new war. After the space given the President's budget message, it seemed likely it would be fitted into the picture built by these commentators, and would be the subject for lecture comment in hundreds of places throughout the Soviet Union.

By The Associated Press

Russia has promised to return the American cruiser Milwaukee to the United States before March 1, diplomatic officials said yesterday.

A Russian crew will sail the 26-year-old warship to Lewes, Del., when Italy hands over to Russia the cruiser Duca d'Aosta as part of Italian war reparations.

Under a wartime agreement, Russia must return the Milwaukee and 42 warships borrowed from Britain as soon as it gets 35 Italian war vessels awarded to the Soviets under the Italian peace treaty.

Moscow already has notified Britain it will begin returning the British warships on January 15. Included is the battleship Royal Sovereign.

The 8030-ton Milwaukee was turned over to the Russians in 1944 by the Navy to help guard the vital sea lanes to Murmansk.

Navy Department officials have said the Milwaukee will be retired from active service.

Government officials said they will not be surprised if the Russians wait until the Italian cruiser Duca D'Aosta is safely in their hands before permitting the Milwaukee to sail for the United States. The Russians may take this precaution because some Italian admirals have voted to sink their ships rather than turn them over to the Russians.

The Soviet government also has promised to return three large icebreakers and 28 frigates it borrowed from the American Navy. No date has been set yet for return of these ships.

The United States and Britain are permitting the Italian government to scrap vessels allotted to them and use the steel to promote Italian recovery. The French government accepted a few Italian warships and renounced the rest.

Security Risk Test Scheduled For Clay Aide

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 11 (AP). Army secrecy masked tonight the reasons for the sudden recall of an American political adviser on Gen. Lucius D. Clay's staff to face a U. S. Army loyalty board.

The adviser, Sam L. Wahrhaftig of Brooklyn, N. Y., was rushed out of the country in an Army plane bound for Westover Field, Mass. His friends said he was not granted time to marry his German sweetheart.

High Army officials refused to discuss the case. Wahrhaftig himself said he had no idea why he was being investigated or who had prompted the inquiry.

The only official statement has been the original Army announcement that he was being recalled from his job in the political activities branch of the United States Military Government here.

Colleagues expressed confidence in his loyalty. They regarded him as a Socialist, but an anti-Communists.

It was understood here that he was born in Danzig Free State, went to the United States as a child, and served in the United States Army from 1942 to 1946 after becoming an American citizen.

As a civilian he served as chief of the poitical actvities branch of the Hesse Military Government in 1946 and 1947, then became a political analyst attached to the United States Military Government for Germany.

[In Washington, an Army spokesman said a "full investigation" of Wahrhaftig would be made after he reaches Washington, probably Wednesday. He declined to discuss the circumstances leading to Wahrhafig's return, but said the action was taken under a circular issued April 9 providing for an investigation when "reasonabe grounds exist" for belief an employe's removal is warranted by the demands of national security.

Big Berlin Club Opened to GIs On Money Issue

Berlin, Jan. 11 (AP).—Harnack House, biggest American club in Berlin, voted today to admit enlisted men rather than spend $175,000 in the next year.

The membership revised a previous decision and struck out of its constitution a clause prohibiting soldiers from entering the club as guests of either officers or civilians.

The issue was brought up on this basis: Vote the enlisted men in or set up shop as a private club without Army help.

The board of governors explained to the 500 members present that the second alternative would mean, over a year's time, slightly more than $175,000.

The dispute came up before Christmas when a meeting attended by only one fourth of the membership wrote in the prohibition on enlisted men. Maj. Gen. George Hays, deputy theater commander, said there could be no such discrimination where Federal funds were involved.

Reds Sought Death, Says Kravchenko

Paris, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—Victor Kravchenko, Russian refugee author of "I Chose Freedom," told a press conference today that Soviet agents in the United States tried four times to kill him in the past year.

Kravchenko

He said he did not believe there would be a war between the United States and Russia in the near future but that, contrary to President Truman's information, he knew of no Soviet leaders who favor closer relations with the United States.

Kravchenko arrived Saturday from the United States to press a seven-million-franc (about $23,000) libel suit against a Communist weekly newspaper, Les Lettres Francaises, which had called him "morally insane" and "so illiterate as to be incapable of writing a book."

He said he would produce official Soviet documents and anti-Communist Russian witnesses, including a "hero of the Soviet Union," to prove his book was factually correct. The trial is set for January 24.

Once a top Soviet production official, Kravchenko was sent to the United States during the war. He resigned his government post and went into hiding, but Soviet agents ferreted him out four times during the past year, he said.

Three of those times, he claimed—last May in Hollywood and twice last October in New York—the agents broke into his home "only to find I was not there." He said his home was searched each time and the agents "left goods which were not pleasant." He did not elaborate.

MacArthur Orders End Of Ghost Ration Cards

Tokyo, Jan. 11 (AP).—General MacArthur's headquarters told the Japanese government today to get rid of all those one million "ghost" ration cardholders.

A recent government survey revealed there were one million more cards than Japanese. It turned out the cards had been issued for deceased or fictitious persons.

Cachin Voices Plea for U. S. Peace Gesture

Paris, Jan. 11 (NYHT).—The French National Assembly's 1949 session opened today with a Communist's plea that the United States and the Soviet Union "resolutely discard the idea of a fatal war."

Marcel Cachin, 79-year-old Assembly dean, was the speaker. He was exercising the annual privilege of the senior member to make a "tour d'horizon" at the first meeting each New Year.

In what was clearly an appeal to President Truman to make another Vinson gesture, Cachin proposed direct contact between Washington and Moscow.

He intimated that Marshal Stalin always was ready to extend the hand of friendship. The proof of similar feelings, Cachin said, would have to be shown by the United States.

Former Premier Edouard Herriot was reelected Assembly president by 274 votes against 140 for the Communist dean.

At the Luxembourg Palace, where the Council of the Republic sits, Gaston Monnerville was reelected to preside over the advisory house. Monnerville, first Negro to lead a French Parliament, comes from French Guiana. Like Herriot, he is a member of the Radical-Socialist Party.

Top Executive Flees Soviet Zone

Berlin, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—The American-licensed news agency Dena reported today that the top Russian executive at a production center in the Soviet occupation zone has fled to western Germany.

The agency identified the fugitive as a Mr. Vinogradov, director general of the Geraetebau Company at Chemnitz, who escaped arrest by Soviet secret police on December 25.

Vinogradov, Russian but non-Communist, was in east Berlin Christmas Eve when he was ordered back to Moscow by the secret police, Dena said. The news agency said he took the subway from the Soviet sector to one of the western sectors and from there was spirited to western Germany.

The British-licensed DPD reported that 11 employes of a nationalized automobile plant in Berlin's Soviet sector had been arrested for circulating a satirical anti-Communist poem.

Peron Asks 2-Year Limit for Aliens

Buenos Aires, Jan. 11 (AP).—Argentina's big foreign population faced expulsion or forced naturalization under a constitutional amendment proposed by President Juan Peron today.

The proposal, read by the President to 109 Peronista delegates to the Constituent Assembly at the President's summer palace, would compel foreigners to apply for Argentine citizenship after two years residence or leave the country.

The plan had the advance support of the Peronista Party which holds all but 49 of the seats in the Assembly. The Assembly, elected last December, begins rewriting the 95-year-old constitution next Monday.

Foreign diplomats were amazed by the proposal which would affect about 30,000 Britons, 4000 United States citizens and hundreds of thousands of South Americans and Europeans who have come here to work and do business.

Foreign diplomats said they were studying Peron's proposal carefully, but had found no provision in it for excepting businessmen or newspapermen temporarily assigned to represent their concerns in Argentina.

The compulsory citizenship proposal was one of the few surprises in a more than three-hour speech.

One of the least surprising passages was a proposed constitutional amendment which would permit Peron to succeed himself as President.

The delegates shouted themselves hoarse when this was mentioned. "Peron President under new constitution," they roared.

Although Peron disclaimed a desire to have a second term, pleading that the duties of the office were too onerous, his hearers apparently gained the impression he was willing to be drafted. He is 53.

Russia Scored in U. N. Council By U. S. for Indonesian Role

Lake Success, Jan. 11 (AP).—The United States said today Russia must share the blame with the Netherlands for the situation in Indonesia.

United States Delegate Philip C. Jessup told the United Nations Security Council the Communists were using the same tactics in Indonesia they have employed in Korea, Berlin and other places.

"Anywhere in the world where a Communist government climbs in the window," Jessup said, "independence is kicked out the door."

Jessup spoke a few hours after he had returned from talks in Washington with President Truman and State Department officials.

He said the Russians were demanding the release of President Soekarno of the Indonesian Republic, and at the same time the Communists were accusing Soekarno of being a traitor to his government.

Jessup strongly attacked the Dutch for their recent "police action" in Indonesia. He said the Netherlands, far from establishing law and order in the Far East, may let loose more disorders and the "only victor may be the forces of anarchy."

Jessup called for a definite date for the holding of elections of Indonesia, with the purpose of setting up a United States of Indonesia.

Dutch Bar U. N. Talks With Indonesia Leaders

Batavia, Java, Jan. 11 (AP).—Dutch authorities have refused to permit United Nations representatives to visit captured Indonesian Republican leaders at this time.

The Dutch reply to the U. N. Good Offices Committee, which requested the interview, was made public today. It asked for "the forbearance of the committee for a few days."

The correspondence disclosed that Republican President Soekarno and two of his top leaders are not interned on the island of Bangka, as the Security Council was told Friday by Netherlands Delegate J. H. Van Royen.

The three officials preferred their present "residence" at Prabat on Lake Toba in the mountains of north Sumatra, the Dutch said, and are held there. Republican Premier Mohamed Hatta is held at Bangka, a spokesman added.

Koreans Arrest 'Richest Man' As Collaborator

Seoul, Korea, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—National police reported today they had arrested the richest man in Korea as a traitor who trafficked with the Japanese.

Tak Seung-si, former president of the Japanese Airplane Manufacturing Co. in Korea, was picked up yesterday on the eve of his scheduled departure for the United States.

Police said other Korean collaborators would be arrested later this week.

FBI Praised for Work Against Subversives

Robert L. Stripling, chief investigator for the House Committee on Un-American Activities, Monday night praised the FBI for its work against subversives in America in a talk before the Young Republican Club of Montgomery County. The meeting was held at the Bethesda County Building.

He said the FBI, however, is restricted by law in its actions unless there is sufficient evidence that a crime has been committed. He then traced the history and methods of the House committee in its "spy" investigations.

Panama Ready to Help Defend Canal

Panama, Panama, Jan. 11 (AP).—The Republic of Panama is now ready to cooperate with the United States in the defense of the Panama Canal.

David Samudio, a government member, speaking in the National Assembly, said yesterday the attitude of Panamanians had changed. A year ago United States troops were pulled out from their wartime bases because of Panamanian objections.

Samudio said the new policy resulted because the people "face certain new doctrines and world imperialist ambitions which try to dominate the action and thought of citizens of weak countries."

Washington Officials Keenly Interested

Officials here expressed keen interest yesterday in reports that Panama is ready to cooperate with the United States in defense of the Canal.

However, they said they knew of no move through diplomatic channels in line with such statements made in the Panamanian Assembly.

"Not if they were made after January, 1948."

Then, however, he picked out the slips recording two calls made on December 11, 1948, another on December 4, 1948, and one on December 14, 1948, and told Laughlin he "probably knew about them but not the rest."

His attorney, Alvin Newmyer, attempted to correct Keleher but was told by Judge Edward Tamm that he would have to wait until cross-examination to question Keleher about the phone slips.

Laughlin also introduced numerous slips recording telephone calls that were made from the Dorchester House apartment of Mrs. Dorothy Blake to John L. Sullivan, identified as a wealthy Texas oilman and sportsman. Mrs. Keleher has a $250,000 alienation of affections suit pending against Mrs. Blake.

Keleher said he had made the calls sometime during the last six months of 1948 and had used Mrs. Blake's telephone because it was convenient at the time to do so.

On Income Tax Data

"Those calls were in connection with a request from the Internal Revenue Bureau that I supply them with additional information about my income during 1945, 1946 and 1947," Keleher declared. He said he made the calls "about 5 or 6 times, maybe as many as 12," to ask Sullivan to send copies of the checks the Texas sportsman had given him.

The amounts of those checks were substantial, exceeding $25,000, Keleher admitted. He did not explain, however, why Sullivan had given him the checks.

"Have you seen Sullivan or talked to him on the phone on other occasions, since the matter of your income tax was straightened out with him?" Laughlin asked.

"Yes. I saw him at the Rockingham race track, when I was there in September of 1948. And I've talked to him by phone at other times," Keleher replied.

"What did you talk to him about on those other occasions?" Laughlin queried.

"I don't care to answer that on the grounds it will incriminate me," was Keleher's answer.

Laughlin then produced numerous records of long distance calls, after informing the court that he intended to prove Keleher was still operating as a gambler, by showing the calls were made by him in connection with gambling operations. He asked the following questions of Keleher:

Q. Did you call a Grant Thorne in Baltimore on April 1, 1948?

A. Possibly.

Q. Who is Mr. Thorne?

A. I believe he is in the wholesale tar business.

Q. Was he a customer of yours?

A. I don't care to answer that on the grounds it might incriminate me.

Q. What was the call about then?

About Large Debt

A. Well, it was about a large sum of money that he owed me.

Q. Did he pay you after the call.

A. He paid me part of it by check.

Q. Incidentally, you never bought any tar from Mr. Thorne?

At this point Keleher joined the spectators in the court room in a hearty laugh, as he replied: "No."

Q. Did you call a Marty Gordon in New York from Mrs. Blake's apartment on October 22, 1948?

A. Possibly. He's my brother-in-law and was connected with me in my business about 10 years ago.

Q. Have you any knowledge of three collect telephone calls made to the Rhode Island avenue address on October 19, October 29 and December 6, 1948 by a Mr. Snyder in Winchester, Va.

A. No.

Laughlin earlier questioned Keleher about his alleged retirement from business in January, 1948.

"When you sold out your business, how much did you receive?

"I never said I received money for my business," Keleher replied.

"And you've had nothing to do with gambling since then?" Laughlin asked.

"That's right," Keleher answered.

"Would you say gambling is repulsive to you?" Laughlin queried.

Not Repulsive

"I wouldn't say so," was Keleher's calm reply.

Laughlin later switched from his questioning about Keleher's business activities to his relationship with Mrs. Blake.

Keleher told the court he had known Mrs. Blake for about 15 years, but denied emphatically that he had ever paid any of her expenses.

He admitted he had seen her several times in Florida, Atlantic City and New York City, but he denied they had ever made any trips together or that they had planned to meet in any of the places.

"Did you ever kiss her?" he was asked.

"No."

"Did you ever embrace her?"

"Certainly not," Keleher flashed back indignantly.

Bought Her Two Mink Coats

Keleher said he could remember buying only a small amount of jewelry, worth about $4000, for his wife when he first met her. Later, he traded it in for a large stone and two bracelets, worth about $9000, he said. He added that he had bought her two mink coats and a fur stole during their married life.

Mrs. Keleher had testified earlier that Keleher had given her a fortune in jewels and furs.

When asked if Mrs. Keleher had remained true to him when he served a jail sentence in 1929 on a gambling conviction, Keleher replied:

"I guess she did what a usual wife does when you are in trouble."

"She stuck by you?" Laughlin asked.

"Very much so. She'd do what a good wife would do," Keleher answered.

The hearing will be resumed today at 10 a. m.

Bellhop Booked In 'Dahlia' Case

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

LESLIE DILLON, alias Jack Sands, a Los Angeles bellhop, was held incommunicado yesterday as a suspect in the mutilation slaying of Elizabeth Short, the "Black Dahlia." Police said he gave minute details of the slaying which, they said, could be known only to a person with direct knowledge of the murder. He gave police the name of a mystery man, whom they are hunting

Lawyer Is Killed By Man Seeking To Retain Him

Oklahoma City, Jan. 11 (AP).—Earl Pruet, wealthy corporation lawyer, was shot in the back and killed today by a middle-aged man who went to his office and asked him to handle a divorce case.

Pruet, 48, a former assistant U. S. District attorney, died before he could tell police whether he knew his assailant. The killer fled before an alarm could be sounded.

Alice Collier, receptionist, said she heard Pruet tell the man he didn't ordinarily handle that type of case.

"Mr. Pruet apparently didn't know the man. He turned and walked down the hallway towards his private office and the man followed him," Miss Collier said.

After the man had turned a corner and was out of sight, he fired four shots.

Numbers Case Is Thrown Out For Insufficient Evidence

The numbers lottery case against Sam Morgan, 42, indicted as a backer of a gambling ring here, was thrown out of District Court yesterday.

At the same time, four persons charged as his hirelings pleaded guilty and their cases were referred to the probation office for presentence investigation.

Judge Edward M. Curran ruled that the warrant against Morgan, who resides at 705 Wayne ave., Silver Spring, Md., was obtained on insufficient evidence.

Undercover policemen of the vice squad testified they applied for a warrant from United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage last March and that he granted it although the only evidence they had was that Morgan was seen at the Peace Cross in Prince Georges County accepting a "brown envelope" from one of the other defendants.

This was not probable cause sufficient to obtain a warrant of arrest, Curran ruled.

The other defendants, who pleaded guilty after Morgan's case was dismissed, were: Beatrice Campbell, 39, a pickup agent, of 1633 4th st. nw.; Jency Garrett, 41, 611 Acker st. ne., a numbers writer; Otis Jones, 28, a pickup man, of 411 E. st. ne., and William A. Brown, 30, of 52 L st. nw., said to be Morgan's lieutenant.

Earlier, a lottery charge against Mary Charles, 31, of 70 Rhode Island ave. nw., was dismissed.

Morgan was arrested back of Mrs. Charles' home. According to police, they took $1800 from the pair and found numbers lottery paraphernalia in the back of Morgan's car.

Police Draw Blank in Raid On Keleher's Mt. Rainier Place

A Mount Rainier apartment building, publicized for several weeks as the alleged gambling headquarters of John B. (Blackjack) Keleher, yesterday was raided by Prince Georges and Mount Rainier police who couldn't even turn up a used scratch sheet for their trouble.

If there ever was a $30,000 monthly horse-betting business operated there, 3205 Rhode Island ave. ne., as testified in District Court, it must have shriveled at the first cold blast of publicity. For police found nothing but two phones and an assortment of furniture "like any living quarters."

$10 Too Much, Chief Says

The expensive Chinese rug, described by Keleher's estranged wife in her divorce action, was nowhere to be seen. "I would not give $10 for all the furniture in the place," Ralph W. Brown, Prince Georges Police Chief, said.

No warrants were needed for the raid. The officers were admitted to the apartment by a janitor who said he had been employed there for two months and had never seen anyone in the dwelling. Police said dust was much in evidence, indicating either someone was a poor housekeeper or that the occupants had moved elsewhere.

Chief Brown, whose department, with that of Mount Rainier Police Chief Eugene Plumer, had been accused by Mrs. Keleher and her attorney, James J. Laughlin, of affording "protection" to Keleher, first tipped off reporters that the big raid would be pulled at 4 p. m.

Bans Picture Taking

But he grew wary when he learned photographers would also be present and said that in that event he would call off the foray because "we don't want the public to think we're after publicity."

Later he vouchsafed the announcement that the scheduled 4 p. m. maneuver had been called off and that "the raid may take place today or tomorrow."

Shortly thereafter, unhampered by the possibly embarrassing presence of newsmen, Brown, Plumer and their men entered the building.

Brown said: "There were no tickers, no adding machines, no typewriters, nothing to indicate big time gambling." To which Plumer added if there had been gambling there it had not been "for at least a year."

Laughlin said yesterday he intended to subpena both police officials to appear in District Court Thursday to give them a chance to answer the "protection" charges.

Erickson, Gambling Kingpin, 'Tinhorn' to LaGuardia

New York, Jan. 10 (N.Y.H.T.).—Frank Erickson, wealthy one-time gambling kingpin of New York, was described by Mayor F. H. La Guardia as a "notorious tinhorn" and by his own admission in 1941 had been making book for 20 years.

(Erickson's name entered the John B. Keleher divorce trial in Washington when Keleher, under questioning, admitted that he has had business transactions with Erickson. Keleher refused to reveal the nature of these transactions.)

Erickson's earnings have been variously estimated in high six-digit figures; in April, 1946, New York City authorities after a tax claim found his bank deposits totaled $27,613,014.

In 1941, also, he was acquitted of charges of having stabbed Milton Untermeyer, New York stockbroker. His friendship for politicians—he figured in several local bribe cases—angered La Guardia, who attacked him in the press. After he was acquitted of charges of perjury in June, 1939, in regard to statements he made in securing pistol permits here, the mayor ordered him rearrested and a week later he was found guilty of being a disorderly person who subsisted mainly through gambling.

In January, 1946, he "forsook" bookmaking to turn florist in New York, and between May 2, 1934, and June 30, 1946, his aides deposited in banks a total of 30 million dollars in gambling transactions. The city assessed and collected some $36,000 in taxes.

On an investigation of gambling at college sports events and a "fix" of five Brooklyn College basketball players in 1945, Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine said: "I believe Frank Erickson controls gambling in New York City. But he does not work at it himself, and I wouldn't be surprised if he had an interest in basketball." Erickson admitted bookmaking at Garden College sports' events.

He has been variously named in association with the Dutch Schultz gang, Joe Adonis, Brooklyn mob leader, and Frank Costello, slot machine racketeer and boss of Harlem's underworld.

Erickson was most recently reported in connection with the Roney Plaza hotel handbook concession in Miami. After an intra-syndicate fight about a $2000 bet Erickson was supposed to have held out, police raided the place and Erickson left Miami, running his setup through his aides.

He is a Finnish immigrant, now 55, who came here and took a job as a $3-a-week Coney Island waiter where he learned to make book and was reputedly under the wing of Frank Hague, Democratic boss in Jersey City.

5 Greenbelt Church Site Bids Approved

The National Housing and Home Finance Agency yesterday approved bids made by five Greenbelt church groups for church sites in the Maryland community.

Charles Cormack, Public Housing Administration representative in Greenbelt, said formal action accepting the bids probably will be taken by PHA Commissioner John T. Egan within a few days.

Each church group made a 10 per cent deposit when the bids were entered December 30. The bidders have until 30 days after formal approval to complete payments.

The bids accepted were: Site 1, 3.35 acres, St. Hugh's Catholic Church, $4500; Site 2, 2.55 acres, Community Church, $4500; Site 3, 3.2 acres, Mowatt Memorial Methodist Church, $1800; Site 4, 3.13 acres, Greenbelt Lutheran Church, $3000; Site 5, 0.8 acres, Jewish Community Center, $1000.

The sites are restricted to use by churches or libraries. Cormack said the restrictions probably would be for a 10-year period.

cial act as "sickening." Johns branded the action as "the worst thing we've done in two years."

"Jamison wants to run for sheriff next year and the only reason he wants the rezoning approved is to get political backing from Lacy Shaw," Johns charged heatedly.

"During my two years as chairman of this board I've been approached by real estate interests from Washington, Montgomery County and Baltimore, but I have always voted in the public interest in rezoning, he added. "This is not the public interest," he said.

Shaw, who is one of three commissioners on the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, plans to erect a filling station on the northwest corner of Colesville and Shaw rds., in Meadowbrook, Johns and Youngblood said. He had requested rezoning from Residential A to Commercial D.

Jamison later denied supporting the rezoning for political reasons, declaring: "I've always been in favor of it."

Artist Seeks Ruling on Church Mural . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

TAKES REPRODUCTION TO COURT—Alfred di Giorgio Crimi, 48-year-old Bronx artist, appeared in New York Supreme Court yesterday with a reproduction of the 35-by-26-foot mural he said he painted on the wall of Rutgers Presbyterian Church chancel in 1938. He seeks a ruling that the church unlawfully obliterated the mural, entitled "Spreading the Gospel," by painting over it in 1946. Crimi asks a judgment of $150,000 if the mural cannot be salvaged. The church denies violating the contract. After paying Crimi $6800, the church claims it completely owned the mural and had a right to obliterate it. (Story, P. 1)

Change Asked in Md. to Make Any Police Murder 1st Degree

A charge of first-degree murder should be placed against any person suspected of slaying a Maryland policeman in the performance of his duty, regardless of circumstances.

This was asserted by the Prince Georges County Commissioners yesterday after hearing Police Chief Ralph W. Brown outline the fatal shooting of Officer Charles Caldwell last June.

The Board of Commissioners voted unanimously to recommend passage of such a law by the Maryland General Assembly, and instructed Waldo Burnside, board attorney, to inform the county delegation to the Assembly of its action.

The action was taken after Chief Brown asked the board to seek a change in the present State law, which provides that first-degree murder, which may carry the death penalty, must be premeditated or committed while perpetrating a felony.

He told the commissioners that some States now require a charge of first-degree murder against any person who slays a police officer while under arrest or otherwise in custody, even if unpremeditated.

The murder of Private Caldwell, for which Thomas Hall, 54-year-old Deanwood Park, Md., laborer, last week was sentenced to 18 years in the State penitentiary, was cited by Chief Brown as a case in point.

Hall's 18-year sentence which is the maximum penalty upon conviction of second-degree murder, was meted out because the three-judge panel which heard the case found premeditation was not involved, Brown said.

A request that $2500 be awarded the County Volunteer Firemen's Association for purchase of radio transmitting equipment was taken under consideration.

Fire Damages Basement Room at Del Ray Church

An over-heated furnace last night caused undetermined fire damage to floor supports of Del Ray Baptist Church, 204 E. Del Ray ave., Alexandria.

Discovered about 7 p. m. by Choirmaster Louis Mellott, the fire was confined to the basement room and underside of the brick church's downstairs flooring.

According to Chief Bernard J. Padgett of Alexandria's Volunteer Fire Department, six pieces of fire equipment responded. No one was reported injured.

The Rev. J. P. Gulley, pastor of the church, put in the alarm after he was notified by Mellott.

Public to See David Statue Sunday

The famed statue of David by Michelangelo, loaned to National Gallery of Art by the Italian government, will go on public display at the gallery Sunday afternoon, it was announced yesterday.

The art work from the Bargello Museum in Florence has been installed alone in the large room opening from the west sculpture hall into the Garden Court.

The display will take place in the presence of Signor Alberto Tarchiani, the Italian Ambassador, and American State Department officials.

Installation of the statue in time for President Truman's inaugural reception to be held in the Gallery January 20 is seen by Gallery officials as reaffirming "the friendship and the cultural ties that exist between the peoples of Italy and the United States."

I. G. McNayr Slated As County Manager

In Alexandria

Health Unit Vote Change Advocated

A change in the makeup of the Alexandria Board of Health to exclude city officials from voting membership was recommended last night in a committee report to the Alexandria Health Council.

The council did not act to adopt the report but directed its executive committee and the special committee to study further other aspects of the report and submit the report and any results of the further study to the Alexandria City Council. The health council itself will not meet again until April and earlier action was desired, it was said.

The committee report read by Dr. G. W. Bogikes, Alexandria dentist and chairman of the special committee, recommended a health board consisting of three doctors, one dentist, one attorney and two lay members. This recommendation was amended on the floor, however, to specify that two members be women. Ex-officio members would be the mayor, city manager and city health officer.

Elected as officer of the Health Council last night for the coming year were: President, Dr. Cliff R. Johnson; vice president, Dr. George Speck; secretary, Bernard Fagelson, and treasurer, Miss Margery Hall.

Temporary appointment of Montgomery County Supervisor I. G. McNayr to the post of acting county manager under the new charter is expected to be announced today by the council-elect.

McNayr

McNayr has been interviewed by the council, which will replace the county commissioners next week, and reportedly has accepted the appointment.

The 35-year-old college-trained public official has served as top administrative official of the county since his appointment as supervisor in November, 1946.

Before the charter referendum last November, at which a council-manager form of government was adopted, McNayr was a strong charter supporter. Because of his professional status, however, he did not participate in the charter campaign.

McNayr probably will not receive at the outset the full $12,000 annual salary provided by the charter, it is predicted, although he undoubtedly will get more than his present $7500.

McNayr's duties in the past have been principally of a supervisory nature, but in his new capacity he will assume many functions previously performed by the county commissioners.

Tax Exemption For School Voted

A tax-exempt status for Landon School for Boys in Bethesda should be continued, the interim Montgomery County Council voted yesterday. The school has had tax-exempt status since 1940.

Continuance in such status was requested by school officials after receipt of a $5000 bill for 1948 taxes on 40 acres used by the school on Wilson Lane.

County Supervisor of Assessments Wilton T. Allen said he would appeal the council's decision to the Maryland Tax Commission, on the ground that the school had opportunities last spring to prove its status as a "nonprofit educational institution" but that it had failed to do so.

Florida Takes Priority on California's Sunshine

WELL-SUITED FOR THE OCCASION—While California, Florida's rival for the sunshine business, was digging out of a snowstorm, these three girls were being congratulated in Miami Beach for placing first, second and third, respectively, in a Swim-for-Health Contest. tions the measure of fabric is as full as ever. New ways of cutting have been employed to control and understate the fullness. Maurice Rentner, for example, offers what appears to be a straight, slim skirt. But it has a surprising and provocative "side kick," where excess fullness is gathered up into soft folds at the side. Skirts such as these give rhythm to your walk, are real beau-catchers.

Basing Point Price Hearings Start Jan. 24

Senator Johnson (D., Colo.) said yesterday that a Senate subcommittee will begin hearings January 24 on delivered prices and the right of sellers to absorb freight in order to meet competition.

The study is an outgrowth of the Supreme Court decision holding the cement industry's "multiple basing point" price system to be a restraint on commerce. Under the system, the price for a manufacturers cement was the same, no matter how far the buyer was from the plant.

Street Reserved for Alexandria Bicentennial Parade

The Alexandria City Council last night agreed to reserve nearly the entire length of Washington st., the city's main artery, for the Alexandria Bicentennial Parade on February 22.

The parade route will extend from Jefferson st. to Pendleton st. Reviewing stands will be set up on Washington st. at Princess st., the council decided.

In another action, the council amended a section of its health ordinance to require certain classes of food handlers to furnish toilet and lavatory facilities for patrons as well as for employes.

The council referred to a committee the problem of appointing a successor to Council Clerk Fred Pettit, who served for the last time last night.

Pettit was fired by the council recently after he encountered opposition from some council members. Councilman Sam Luckett's motion last night to name Pettit's cousin, Miss Virginia Hancock, lost for lack of a second.

The council turned over to Building Inspector A. R. Lash a request from the projected Hunting Towers apartment development to waive a building height restriction for one of its eight-story apartments.

Attorney John B. Phillips, representing the apartment sponsors, told the council construction and operation of the development will mean an addition $80,000 in tax revenue annually.

We stand on our own two feet

The Southern Railway is a self-supporting, privately-owned-and-operated mass transportation system that pays all its costs of doing business out of its own pocket.

We operate on our own steel highway, built and maintained with our own dollars. Our taxes, like your taxes, go to help support schools, hospitals, police and fire departments... and to build and maintain highways, airports and waterways.

We're glad to get along without a penny of subsidy from the taxes that come out of your pocket. Old-fashioned? Maybe. But it's a sound American tradition that we like, and want to continue . . . because we're convinced that it's best for America that its industries, as well as its individuals, stand on their own two feet.

Mrs. Meyer Cites Role of Community

Americans today are faced with the problem of remaining independent and responsible members of a free political community, Mrs. Eugene Meyer told the National Council of Jewish Women last night.

Mrs. Meyer, wife of the chairman of the board of The Washington Post, told her audience at the Jewish Community Center that Americans must 'determine once more the role of the local community in the life of the Nation."

Speaking on the subject of "Standards and Values," she declared:

"Even before atomic energy came into use, the progress of science had created a totally new world whose rapid tempo of change had outrun man's ability to change himself and his environment. The industrial evolution had outdistanced man's capacity for social, mental and emotional evolution. At the same time the upsurge of millions of workers created a sudden mass demand for the rights and privileges of democratic living, for more education, adequate housing, better health facilities and all the other amenities of the good life.

"Disastrous Short Cuts"

"Europe is attempting to solve these social problems," continued Mrs. Meyer, "by authoritarian short cuts, and whether they be called Communism or Socialism, they are equally disastrous to human freedom and to those humane forces which are released only by cooperative action and self-determination.

"History has reversed itself and Europe is now the seat of an abrupt revolutionary break with the past, whereas we Americans have become the defenders of tradition, of social progress not as a sudden break with the past but as the slow growth of an organic society achieved by the steady cooperative endeavor of successive generations. Instead of seeking utopias of perfection, we Americans must make practical answers to practical questions and find a new and stronger community integration through the reconciliation of individual freedom and the necessity for group action.

"It was my experience during the last war that taught me the importance of efficient community organization and the utter hopelessness of trying to run this vast country of ours by ukase from Washington. But this experience also taught me the need for greater self-discipline among our people. Yet the two problems are closely connected. There is no use preaching that we must have less crime and delinquency, fewer divorces, less alcoholism, etc., unless we overcome the isolation, rootlessness and frustration of our people by a sense of belonging to a meaningful society which permits and encourages effective, happy citizen participation.

Importance of Schools

"In rebuilding community services and community organization," Mrs. Meyer pointed out that "the public school is the harmonizing focus of all the conflicting elements of our democratic structure.

"This function of the school is more vital than ever," she stated, "because these conflicting elements are now waging war upon each other as never before. Never have racial and religious tensions been more bitter. But let us not be discouraged because the social anxiety, the insecurity of this post-war period and the fear of a third world war have raised all these tensions to their most acute stage. Those tensions always existed in our society and I am convinced that bringing them out into the open will be salutary in the long run.

"When emotional conflicts such as anti-Semitism, anti-Catholicism and racial animosities become intolerable, mankind realizes once more the salutary role of reason and compromise. Throughout history, periods such as ours of sharp economic, social and religious conflicts have always been the forerunner of a new and stronger social integration.

"Reborn Out of Chaos"

"Order, stability and mutual understanding are reborn out of chaos, not because man is predominantly a rational animal, but because his emotions carry him to a point where reasonable conduct is the only alternative to mutual annihilation. Thus liberalism or the rule of reason and compromise is ever resurgent and ever triumphant as a last resort, and as the only permanent basis for human relationships and social solidarity. Like the phoenix which rises again out of its own ashes, liberalism will always rise again out of mankind's despair."

Mrs. Meyer paid a tribute "to the immense contribution toward social stability of the Jewish welfare organizations."

"Wherever I have traveled through our war-torn country," she said, "I was impressed by the quiet efficiency, the intelligence and the inexhaustible kindness with which the Jewish leaders and the Jewish people conduct their good works.

"Only a few weeks ago, when I attended the Hadassah luncheon, I discovered this same merciful competence in the foreign field that I know so well here at home. And I also felt in that big gathering of Washington's Jewish leadership a religious fervor that is the source of your unfailing sympathy and active concern for suffering people everywhere. Many a time I have had the humiliating convict on that the Jews are today the best Christians if self-sacrifice, generosity, love of one's neighbor and spiritual intensity are valid tests of a Christian faith."

Appointment of former Representative Clarence F. Lea of California as director of governmental relations for the Transportation Association of America was announced yesterday.

War Memorial Pool Voted in Prince Georges

Construction of a war memorial swimming pool was assured for Upper Marlboro, Md., yesterday in action taken by Prince Georges County Board of Education.

The board, at its monthly meeting, approved sale of an acre of land—part of the site of Frederick Sasscer High School now being built in Upper Marlboro—to be used for the swimming pool.

Schools Supt. G. Gardner Shugart said the land would be sold for aproximately $1000 to the Upper Marlboro Community War Memorial Association, Inc.

Construction of the swimming pool will be financed by funds subscribed by the public and is expected to be finished in time for use next summer, he said.

The funds, Shugart said, are now nearly subscribed. He estimated the pool would cost $25,000.

Appointment of 15 teachers to schools throughout Prince Georges County was announced by the school board.

Shugart said 835 teachers are now employed. The 15 new appointees, he said, brought the number of teachers "just about to full strength."

The board appointed Robert Burroughs of Oxon Hill to succeed Charles H. Jones of the same county, as a trustee of Oxon Hill Elementary School. Resignation of Earl E. Berkley, a trustee of Beltsville Elementary and High School, was accepted.

School Bids' Opening Set

Bids for construction of one new school and an addition to another—both in Alexandria's $2,800,000 school building program—will be opened January 21 at 2:30 p. m., the city school board announced last night.

The two buildings are a new Negro high school and an addition to the George Mason school at 2601 Cameron Mills rd.

The board also learned at a meeting last night from School Supt. T. C. Williams that plans for a new elementary school in Parkfairfax are expected to be ready for bids later this month.

Board Chairman J. S. Everly appointed a committee consisting of board members Edward D. Reed, John P. Strauss and himself to work with the city council school committee in selecting a site for a new white high school, which the board feels will be needed in 1952.

Three Americans Killed In Airlift Crash

Frankfurt, Germany (Wednesday), Jan. 12 (AP).—Three American fliers were killed early today in the crash of an airlift plane on its way back from a food flight to Berlin.

The plane, a C-54 Skymaster, fell about two miles east of Frankfurt's big Rhein-Main Airport.

School Survey Proposed in Montgomery

A survey of Montgomery County schools to see if they meet the needs of students was proposed yesterday at the monthly meeting of the County Board of Education.

Assistant Superintendent of Schools Edgar M. Douglass was authorized by the board to determine the cost of a study similar to one made recently in Illinois.

Board Member James W. Gill, who proposed the survey, said that it is essential for proper school planning.

The study would not be on the scale of the one underway in the District by Dr. George D. Strayer, but would b limited to an appraisal of educational facilities. It would take into consideration views of parents, teachers and school children.

In recent months the Montgomery County curriculum has been under fire by a group of parents who have called for more emphasis on the "three Rs."

Schools Superintendent Edwin W. Broome said that the study would be helpful in determining the "obligations" of the schools.

The Illinois survey, conducted by Harold C. Hand, professor of education at the University of Illinois and former teacher at Maryland University, was based on a series of questionnaires filled out by parents, teachers and students.

In another action yesterday the board approved participation by Montgomery County children in a State-wide insurance plan.

Under the plan, a parent for $3 can insure his child against accidents at school or in traveling to and fro. Participation is voluntary and goes into effect when 25 per cent of students enrolled in Maryland schools sign up.

Hall and Daughter Also Get 10-Year Terms For Assault in Melee Fatal to Policeman

Thomas Hall, 54, and his daughter, Janie Leeta Hall, 20, yesterday received maximum 10-year sentences in Prince Georges County Circuit Court for the assault with intent to kill of a county policeman last June 12.

In addition, the Hall girl drew an 18-month sentence following conviction on another assault with intent to kill charge.

The convictions stemmed from the melee last June near the Hall residence at Deanwood Park, Md., in which County Police Pvt. Charles Caldwell was shot to death while attempting to take Miss Hall in custody. His partner, Pvt. Wallace Baker, was wounded in the affray.

Thomas Hall was sentenced last Thursday in the same court to serve 18 years on a second-degree murder verdict in the Maryland State Penitentiary, for Caldwell's death. The 10-year sentences he and his daughter received yesterday were handed down shortly after both had pleaded guilty to wounding Private Baker.

The Hall girl also was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment — which must be served before the 10-year term begins — for knifing Willie Preston Digges, 24, a neighbor of the Halls, in the fracas which brought the two policemen to the neighborhood and resulted in the slaying of Private Caldwell.

Hall will serve the 10-year sentence concurrently with the 18-year term he drew in Caldwell's killing, Judge John B. Gray, jr., ruled in handing down the verdict.

Four Indicted In Moonshine Whisky Cases

Three Prince Georges County men were indicted yesterday on charges of operating whisky stills and a fourth on charges of possession and transportation of untaxed whisky.

A Federal grand jury in Baltimore returned the indictments against:

Jesse D. Chambers and Alphonzo O. Chapman, who were charged with operating a 50-gallon still near Vista, in Prince Georges County, and having 250 gallons of mash on hand.

Frederick M. Proctor, charged with running a 35-gallon still and having 80 gallons of mash in his possession at Cedarville, also in Prince Georges County.

Henry Johnson, charged with possession and transportation of untaxed whisky.

Chambers and Chapman were arrested December 10 by agents of the Alcohol Tax Unit. They were brought before United States Commissioner Samuel S. H. Meloy at Upper Marlboro the following day, waived a hearing, and were put under $1000 bond for grand jury action.

Proctor was arrested December 31 and held, after a hearing, under $500 bond for the grand jury.

Fish In Clothes Trips Wet Child On Puddle Story

Benton Harbor, Mich., Jan. 11 (AP).—Seven-year-old Diana Davidson's story of falling in a puddle didn't sound fishy. But it was.

Wringing wet and shivering, she told her mother her sled had tipped over and thrown her into a pool of melted snow.

Mrs. Wayne Davidson accepted the story and began to undress the child to give her a bot bath.

As she pulled off her snow suit, out popped a 6-inch fish.

Then Diana admitted she had disobeyed orders and gone out on the ice of the St. Joseph River with playmates. She broke through and was pulled out by Louis Franz, 8.

Diana's been a good girl since, her mother said today, even though it was a while before she could sit down comfortably.

Veteran Appeals To Clear Name

Schools Offer Character Aid, Survey Shows

Many American schools are deeply interested in character development but not one is doing all that it could to that end, a national survey reported yesterday.

Dr. H. L. Smith, Bloomington, Ind., conductor of the survey, said in a report to the Palmer Foundation:

"It was discovered that a great deal of excellent work in character education is being done in all parts of the country.

"In a few schools the amount of effort and time spent is pitifully small and the plans followed are, from the standpoint of a thoroughgoing program, most inadequate.

C. E. Palmer, Texarkana, Tex.-Ark., newspaper publisher, and Mrs. Palmer have set aside $100,000 for development of good character among children and young people.

Smith, education dean emeritus at Indiana University, said, "The indirect approach to character development is far more prevalent than the direct method, dependence being placed in the character-developing effect of regular school activities and in the examples set before the pupil rather than in formal direct instruction in character education."

Rouse, D. C. Police Hero, Faces Retirement Soon

Lieut. Clyde O. Rouse, who holds the Police Department's highest award for heroism, will go before a police retirement board Thursday to be considered for retirement due to duty - incurred disability.

Rouse

Rouse, 45, lives at 1633 R st. se. For the past year he has been chauffeur and aide to Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police. He was appointed to the force in 1924.

Rouse suffered a crushed leg November 1, 1946, when he and Precinct Detective Harry E. Hamilton, 39, tried to apprehend the driver of a stolen car in Q st. nw.

The driver, Charles W. Scott, 24, drove off with Rouse and Hamilton clinging to the sides of the automobile. They still were hanging on when Scott, driving a mile a minute, crashed into a truck at Florida and New York aves. ne.

Hamilton and Scott were fatally injured. One of Rouse's legs was so badly crushed that for some time doctors feared they would have to amputate.

Rouse was unable to return to duty for more than a year. When he did, he was awarded the 1947 Gold Medal, top award for heroism for District police and firemen.

PTA Unit Favors Raise and Sick Leave

A pay raise and sick leave with pay for District teachers were approved yesterday by the board of managers of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The governing group of the local P-TA organization, meeting at the Adams School, 19th and California sts. nw., went on record as favoring a $330 a year increase and sick leave proposals of 10 days a year cumulative to 60.

The board also urged legislation to end an "inequity" in the pay law which gives teachers with master's degrees new to the local system more money than teachers who acquire an MA while employed here.

Solution Seen Near in Guam Rape-Murder

Agana, Guam, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—In the belief they were near a break in the brutal rape-murder of red-haired Ruth Farnsworth, 27, Government police questioned three enlisted men almost without letup today.

Rear Adm. Charles Pownall, Governor of Guam, said one suspect had cracked under lie detector tests and implicated two others. Pownall indicated the other two were denying any part in the crime.

Police said the three men were attached to the Air Force Twelfth Ammunition Depot.

When Miss Farnsworth was reported missing on December 11 an island-wide search began. She was found still breathing in a clump of jungle about 100 yards from the shop where she worked. She died the next day without regaining consciousness.

Miss Farnsworth's body was taken to her San Francisco home last week by her fiance, Marine S/Sergt. Sterling McGinnis of Belle Center, Ohio. She was buried Saturday.

tice Department that Mallard's civil rights had been violated.

The Clevelander declared he had received thousands of death threats but that he had been crusading 21 years and was not afraid.

Howell told the jurors he knew nothing about the Mallard slaying.

Mrs. Amy Mallard, widow of the slain man, became hysterical on the witness stand, slid from her chair and rolled on the floor, crying:

"Why did they kill him?"

Mrs. Mallard told the jury 20 or more men wearing "white things" and something on their heads waylaid the Mallard car late at night and shot her husband. She said all the men held pistols and that several shots were fired. She picked out Howell in court as one of the men in the group that killed her husband.

Defense Attorney Sharp called 11 defense witnesses, including two jurors, L. J. Usher and A. W. Currie, as character witnesses for Howell. All testified Howell's character was good and that they would not believe the Mallard widow on oath.

President Given Edge in Dispute On Tidelands Oil

By the United Press

The long fight over Federal vs. State control of the oil-rich tidelands will be renewed in the Eighty-first Congress, but President Truman appeared yesterday to hold all the trump cards.

Mr. Truman wants the offshore oil deposits brought under strict Federal regulation.

Members of Congress from California, Texas, Louisiana and other coastal States have served notice they again will press for passage of a bill granting clear title to the individual States.

But Representative Emanuel Celler (D., N. Y.), chairman-designate of the House Judiciary Committee, said flatly that he "will not permit" any such legislation to get past his committee.

"The President's position is against any cession of the tidelands to the States and I am going to see to it that his program is carried out," Celler said.

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

Anne Lawler called this morning about next week's church supper. She wanted each of us on the committee to call a list of people so we'll know how many to expect.

After I'd finished the breakfast dishes, I sat down at the telephone and started calling one person right after another. I was down to the fourth name on my list before I stopped to think of the other folks on my party line. Here I'd tied up the line for fifteen minutes without a break. Supposing someone else on the line wanted to make a call!

Needless to say, I ended my "calling marathon" right then and there. I'll make the rest of those calls later on in the day, one by one and spaced several minutes apart.

BRITAIN'S NEW WAR AGAINST ISRAEL

The British Government is launching a new war against Israel—even as direct armistice negotiations between Egypt and Israel are getting under way.

The evidence is clear and unmistakable:

Great Britain has admitted that British troops have been sent to the port of Aqaba in Transjordan. A long-standing truce has been in effect between Israel and Transjordan. It would seem that the British Government is concerned lest this truce eventuate into a permanent peace between the two countries. If the British-dominated Transjordan Arab Legion should reenter the war at any time in the future, it will be clear that Great Britain alone will be responsible.

There are reports that large numbers of British fighters and bombers are being landed at Mafrak, Transjordan, and that British armed strength is being concentrated on the Egyptian-Palestinian frontier. Large units of the British navy are being moved into the area and are maneuvering not far from Israel's shores. In addition, Israeli spokesmen have disclosed that Britain has been training troops in Tripolitania under conditions identical to those to be found in Israel.

British propagandists are trying to make it appear as if current British military moves were "provoked" by the shooting down of R. A. F. planes by the Israelis. It should, therefore, be remembered that the aforementioned British troop movements to Aqaba were first disclosed by Israel almost two weeks ago.

Great Britain has persisted in sending planes into the battle-front areas of the Palestine war, but assumes an air of righteous indignation when the inevitable happens and British aircraft are shot down. It will be recalled that both Winston Churchill and Anthony Eden recently arose in the House of Commons to question the necessity and propriety of sending Royal Air Force planes over such a "dangerous and delicate" area. Nevertheless, Mr. Bevin continued to send British planes into this "dangerous and delicate" area. Why?

Furthermore, it has now been revealed that British arms deliveries to Egypt during the last few months have amounted to 50,000,000 pounds ($200,000,000) and included shipment of the most modern jet fighter planes, naval vessels, heavy artillery tanks, heavy caliber shells and aviation gasoline. All this took place at a time when Great Britian was publicly avowing "strict neutrality" and maintaining that it was not sending arms to the Arab countries.

The Political Offensive

These military moves should be considered in relation to the panic propaganda which British officials had attempted to disseminate in this country on the basis of Israel's so-called "invasion" of Egyptian territory and the consequent "obligation" of Great Britain to come to Egypt's aid under the terms of the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty of 1936. Great Britain had obviously hoped to induce the United States to join a renewed British move to bring about the imposition of sanctions against Israel by the Security Council. In order to achieve this, Britain warned that if she failed to bring about the international action she desired, she would be "compelled" to act unilaterally in support of Egypt.

But—to the great embarrassment of the British—Egypt, while confirming that Britain had offered to provide her with military aid if she would invoke the 1936 treaty, decided to let the British do their own fighting for a change. Instead of invoking the treaty, Egypt proceeded to reaffirm her earlier denunciation of it and, at the same time, asked for direct armistice negotiations with Israel.

Great Britain has thus been forced into the open and stands revealed before world opinion in her true role—the real enemy of Israel. She can no longer cloak her own selfish ambitions behind the actions of the Arab states whom she had encouraged to make war on Israel. The Arab aggressors have been defeated, and Britain must either become reconciled to a settlement which will keep Israel's political independence and territorial integrity intact, or commit British arms and troops to a new war against Israel.

Britain is seemingly choosing the latter course and is currently flooding the American press with distortions and misrepresentations of the situation in the Middle East. We believe, therefore, that the American people would profit from a review of the facts in the war Britain has waged with the primary objective of obtaining the Negev for her own use and exploitation.

This Is The Record:

1. Immediately after the adoption of the partition resolution by the United Nations General Assembly on November 29, 1947, the British authorities in Palestine systematically and deliberately opened the frontiers of that country to armed Arab bands who entered for the express purpose of engaging in a military struggle with the Jews in order to upset the decision of the United Nations by force of arms.

2. Britain also actively participated in this aggression by supplying the Arab states with financial aid, by creating a stockpile of war supplies and equipment for the Arabs, by providing officers and administrative help to the invaders. Simultaneously, Britain made every effort to prevent the Jews from arming for their own defense.

3. When—despite all of these British maneuvers—the Arab attacks did not succeed and the State of Israel was proclaimed on May 14, 1948, Great Britain encouraged the Arab governments to launch full-scale military invasions of Palestine with the declared aim of over-running and subjugating Israel. The attack was led by the Transjordan Arab Legion, a military force completely equipped, financed and officered by Great Britain.

4. In the early days of the war, when the invaders were on the move, Great Britain did nothing to bring hostilities to a halt, but, on the contrary, maneuvered ceaselessly in the Security Council to keep the Arab states from being punished as aggressors. At that time Great Britain saw no violation of the United Nations Charter, although the action of the Arab states in invading Palestine was explicitly denounced as international aggression by United States Delegate Warren Austin (May 22, 1948). Then the British worked indefatigably to induce the Security Council to refrain from taking the action which was clearly indicated.

5. However, when the tide turned and the Israeli Army repelled the aggressors, there were immediate British moves for truces, Israeli troop withdrawals and—finally, the bitterest irony—attempts to impose sanctions against Israel for successfully defending its own territory.

6. After Israel inflicted a series of decisive defeats on the Arab armies and, in the course of one military engagement, attacked legitimate military objectives on Egyptian soil, Great Britain threatened unilateral military action against the Jewish state.

It is against this background that Britain's current moves should be viewed.

America Must Take a Stand

Whether or not Mr. Bevin continues his vendetta against Israel depends largely on the stand which our own Government will now take. The United States, which has accorded recognition to Israel and which has pledged itself to support Israel's claims to territorial integrity, will surely not ignore the latest British efforts to renew the political and military offensive against Israel. Nor can our Government overlook the fact that Great Britain's current moves to frustrate the peace which now seems to be in the making between Israel and the Arab states, along with her threats of unilateral military action, flaunt the United Nations and its efforts to hasten a settlement between the Arab states and Israel.

American interest in peace in the Middle East can best be served by a firm warning to the British Government to desist from its present policy of war and intrigue against Israel.

More Taxes For D. C.

Everything else in the District budget is overshadowed by the urgent quest for additional revenue. It is now evident to all but the most incorrigible standpatters that enactment of a sales tax is necessary to avoid an appalling deficit and gross neglect of the city's obligations to its people. The disheartening fact is that even the sales tax will not balance the local budget. It is estimated that a sales tax enacted as early as May 1 would yield 10 million dollars in the fiscal year 1950. That would mean a slight surplus on the basis of the budget sent to Congress, without any allowance for increased District salaries. But those salaries must be increased. Since the granting of a pay raise to Federal employes last year, District agencies have been losing their personnel. In all fairness the local and Federal pay scales must be equalized again, and the sales tax will fall more than three million dollars short of covering this additional expense.

No less disturbing has been the elimination of numerous critical items from the thrice-slashed budget. No provision is made to carry out the 38-million-dollar school construction program so urgently recommended recently by Dr. George D. Strayer after an extensive survey of existing conditions. Sites needed for schools are being rapidly built up for other purposes because there is no money to buy them. The Health Department has been denied essential nurses, although funds have been included for the long-awaited pediatrics and crippled children's building at Gallinger Hospital. The welfare budget has been trimmed to the bone. Funds for the reduction of firemen's 72 hours a week and for the pensioning of policemen's widows and orphans are lacking. In these circumstances the sales tax is by no means a complete answer to the District's dilemma.

Representative Bates believes that short-term borrowing capacity for the District should be combined with the sales tax. We agree. There are several other sources from which new revenue could be obtained. One fruitful source would be extension of the local income tax to all District residents. That equitable proposal has been turned down several times in the past, but the new Congress, faced with critical demands for additional District revenue, may be more amenable to reason. A second source would be an increase in the Federal payment. With the city's obligations mounting, its one big "industry"—government—should no more escape its share of the increased load than individual taxpayers. Our chief hope is that Congress will face this revenue problem in a realistic way without further crippling municipal services.

Fair Employment

A survey of State fair employment practices laws by the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress shows these have been multiplying at a fairly rapid rate in recent years. While some go back into the last century in their origin, most were written during or since the last war. In fact, the outstanding measures are the New York State law of 1945 and those which have followed it in New Jersey, Massachusetts and Connecticut. Indiana and Wisconsin also have laws of the same type but without enforcement teeth.

Obviously, there has been so little time or experience under these laws that final conclusions on their effectiveness cannot yet be drawn. The report itself suggests the need for a new survey some years hence in order to get a better-balanced picture of the situation. For instance, they have all been operating in the most favorable of circumstances: a tight labor market. Discriminatory practices tend to disappear, or at least to be less obtrusive, when there are plenty of jobs. A period of unemployment would put the anti-discrimination laws to a much stiffer test than they have yet had.

In the meantime, the limited experience so far available for analysis indicates that States which have fair employment practice laws will be in a reasonably strong position to meet the challenge of discriminatory layoffs if it comes. The trend in legislation has been "from a wishful-thinking type of law to a new type of statute with some legal sanctions behind it." Both the New York and New Jersey laws assert that the opportunity to work without discrimination as to race, creed or national origin are civil rights. These and the Massachusetts and Connecticut laws give very broad enforcement powers.

Actually, there have been no cases at all of resort to the courts to back up the State commissions. These have worked entirely through investigation, mediation, recommendation, and education. The possibility of public hearings into the facts, even without any threat of court proceedings, has been enough to bring compliance from the most stubborn employer or union. Again, it may be said that this experience proves nothing about what may happen in the event of widespread unemployment. And it doesn't. But it offers an impressive showing in a short time of the achievements that can come from antidiscrimination legislation properly framed and intelligently and judiciously administered.

Stuck With The Air Lift

It is doubtful whether the recommendation of the experts appointed by the neutral members of the Security Council on the Russo-Western impasse in Berlin will advance a solution. The four powers had not been able to arrive at a decision on the currency setup in Berlin. The Western powers agreed to one currency, the Soviet Eastmark, but they insisted that this currency should be administered by a four-power commission. On the details the four powers could not agree. Confronted with the issue, the neutrals in the Security Council called in experts, and they have proposed that, if the powers could not agree about the administration of one currency, maybe they would accept it if there were two banking systems. But that still leaves the problem of how the four powers could agree over the working out of currency policy.

The fact is that the Western powers have had second thoughts about the implications of their agreement on the currency for Berlin. Reexamination occurred during the U. N. review in Paris. It then became obvious to the Western allies that the four-power commission would have no day-to-day control of a currency that was Soviet and administered by the Soviet. With these second thoughts the Western powers in Paris became lukewarm over their own currency proposal. Fortunately for them, the Soviet Union, making another of its diplomatic mistakes, rejected it, offering only a gradual relaxation of its overland blockade in return for a gradual working out of currency reform. Western lukewarmness seems now to have turned into positive coldness. It is realized that, aside from a cooperative currency venture that might put the Western allies in a position of rubber-stamping the Soviet administration, they would have to carry out another pledge, viz, to hold a conference on Germany with the Soviet Union. And for that they are just as unready as they are for the redemption of their own proposal for currency reform.

Where does that leave the Western allies? Precisely with the status quo of a Soviet blockade circumvented by the Anglo-American air lift. The Westerners are resting on the air lift, even stuck with it. This is working magnificently—so magnificently that its achievement is a surprise to all concerned, not excluding our Air Department. The winter weeks have witnessed neither slowdown nor a temporary stoppage. The air lift, instead, hits new peaks as the days go by, as if the weather were of no consequence. It is serving in lieu of a policy on Berlin, and, by a happenstance, has become policy, and a major policy at that.

H. A. L. Fisher in his History of Europe, confessing a lack of any theory of history, advises his readers to recognize in the development of human destinies "the great play of the contingent and the unforeseen." This is the way to view the air lift. When it was first introduced, it was intended to meet an emergency. In other words, it was defensive. But, as it has worked out, it has become an offensive, a real instrument of foreign policy. Yet all it is is a muscle-flexing demonstration of Anglo-American airpower! However, this is cheering to the Germans, though a direct incitement of German nationalism; depressing to the Russians and awe-inspiring to the satellites. No wonder, then, that rather than venture into areas that the Western allies know not of, they prefer to say, "Here we are, here we stay." The danger of the air lift from a military standpoint—ever present as always—is regarded as not commensurate with the diplomatic danger of abandoning it and risking both a four-power currency control and a conference on Germany. The mousetrap of getting into Berlin, in short, has become nothing compared with the mousetrap of getting out.

However, this weapon, so useful for its earning power in prestige, is subject to the law of diminishing returns, though nobody can prognosticate the turning point. It is also an offense against all traditional and even logical ideas of sound foreign policy. A policy-maker must look to the end, but who is envisaging the end of the air lift in Berlin? Certainly not those who are now full of pride over its achievements both as a technical performance and as a political instrument. The hope, we take it, is that western Europe and western Germany will be firmly put on their feet before anything is done about the demobilization of the air lift. When that will happen is equally problematical. Till then, the price of demobilization, presumably, will be increased in light of the realization that the original terms would, if accepted, be an embarrassment instead of a victory.

Driving To Music

Many persons will have a great deal of sympathy with the comments of Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King about the distracting influence of radios in automobiles. It must indeed be disconcerting to policemen and firemen to grind away at their sirens only to encounter an obstruction in the form of an oblivious motorist entranced by the strains of Slow Boat to China. Mr. King's remedy, to be sure, is a little extreme, though his logic is impeccable. It is illegal, he figures, not to give full attention to the operation of an automobile, and this cannot be done when listening to a radio. But if drivers are to be deprived of their music, what about mothers-in-law and backseat-driving wives, from whom a radio is a welcome and sometimes altogether necessary relief? If Mr. King can devise a successful formula for combating this distraction without ruining family harmony, the problem of too much radio harmony will pale into insignificance.

Middle East

If, as a great British foreign minister once said, the worst error in statesmanship is to cling to the carcass of a dead policy, Mr. Bevin is no statesman. One of the Conservative leaders, Mr. Robert Boothby, says in a letter to the British press that the Bevin policy on Palestine is not only dead; it is in an advanced state of decomposition. That policy, if that is the word, is to regard Israel as nonexistent. Such a myth, worthy only of Lewis Carroll, was expressed in a sort of diplomatic operetta even over the deplorable shooting down of British pilots.

Mr. Bevin addressed a strong protest to the "Jewish authorities in Tel Aviv," and the British delegate at Lake Success was instructed to hand it to the Israel office at the United Nations. The official in charge received it as a matter of courtesy, but blandly said he did not know where to send it, as there were "no Jewish authorities at Tel Aviv." A similar protest was then handed to the Israel representative at Haifa. Again the protest was accepted, but the representative again pointed out the insufficiency of the address as justification for his inability to do anything with it. The long-suffering British Consul General, in a burst of impatience, then readdressed the communication to "the provisional government of Israel." It was an act of common sense, but a cardinal blunder in Mr. Bevin's book, and the consul general was dressed down.

With the greater part of the world, and most of the Commonwealth, in either de facto or de jure relation with Tel Aviv, Mr. Bevin seems destined soon to hold a monopoly of Nelson's telescope. The Manchester Guardian says he is "making fools of us," and the London Times reminds Mr. Bevin politely that, "The effect of keeping Israel at arm's length, and declining to enter even into de facto relations with her, must be to strengthen rather than to weaken the irresponsible forces which are now seeking to launch Israel upon perilous and headlong adventures." This is truly said. The danger of deterioration not only in Israel but all over the Middle East is too great and too pressing to indulge a personal vendetta. And this is evidently what the State Department thinks. Its cool statement of Monday on the incident on the Palestine frontier is an indication that the independent line of December 30 is to be retained.

But it is not enough to retain an independent approach. American influence from now on must be exerted to the limit not only to bring about success at the peace conference at Rhodes but also to develop and announce a policy of reconstruction in the river valley systems of the Middle East. It is later than most people think, and time would be taken by the forelock, and an earnest of our intent to pacify and reconstruct the Middle East provided, if the President were to appoint right away a high commissioner or special ambassador to the Middle East. The appointment is long overdue. Even after the First World War, when there was not the same waiting upon an American lead, Admiral Mark Bristol was given such an appointment at Constantinople. The Middle East is rapidly overtaking western Europe as the prior concern of American policy.

Sustained Yield

In his State of the Union message, President Truman spoke of the necessity for placing our forests on a sustained yield basis. What he meant was simply the selective cutting and reseeding of forests to assure adequate timber for the future. How far from this concept the country is today is shown by the shocking fact that we still are cutting 50 per cent more timber than we are growing. Nor are the implications of this wastage of a prime natural resource confined merely to lumber. The protection of trees on watersheds has a direct bearing on the water supply, which is rapidly becoming the No. 1 problem in parts of the West. Forest protection is also related to flood control and the prevention of soil erosion.

Some of the larger lumber companies have inaugurated sustained yield programs in their own self-interest. Nevertheless, according to the 1948 report of the chief of the Forest Service, only 8 per cent of all timber-cutting practice on private lands can be classed as good. Yet private lands will have to continue to supply the bulk of the Nation's timber. The national forests, which constitute only 16 per cent of the area of commercial forest land, now contain some 30 per cent of the saw timber, and the Forest Service estimates that the annual yield from national forests can be upped 50 per cent by more adequate access to remote stands. But obviously these public lands cannot supply all the national need.

Although the immediate picture is gloomy, with adequate safeguards our forests can eventually be built up and maintained, the report says, "to supply timber in abundance and to provide all the other benefits of well-managed, productive forests for all time." The great question is how to convince private owners of their own interest in sound practices. One worth-while experiment is the combining of national forest and private lands into single units for joint management according to Forest Service standards. Other service and educational efforts by the Forest Service could help. But the bulk of the land now being stripped belongs to small owners, and the problem is to reach them before the ruination is complete.

This is an issue in which the public interest is paramount. The public interest dictated a temporary reduction in grazing on certain national forest lands although a few individuals were injured thereby. Forest resources are a public trust, and in all likelihood what must come eventually is a coordinated system of Federal and State regulation of cutting practices to insure that the benefits of the forests will be retained for all the people.

Collecting From Congress

By Malvina Lindsay

Women's Share

LABOR AND farmers are reported willing and ready to collect from Congress for their support in the recent election. Another group that may claim a share in the "mandate" dividends includes women who are promoting social welfare legislation.

These women, it is true, can produce no voting statistics to back up their requests. There is no way to tell how many women or how many men go to the polls, and if there are any general trends in their voting. Questions about this come so constantly to headquarters of both parties that some women political leaders favor legislation to require ballots of different color for men and women voters.

However, some national nonpartisan women's organizations did give a strong support to certain congressional candidates on the basis of their stands and records on international and welfare measures. And some experienced appraisers of elections believe that women's groups influenced the selection of legislators because of the human issues involved, as cost of living, housing and education.

The Foreign Policy Bulletin recently pointed out that the women's vote was overlooked by political prognosticators. It said: Yet even superficial observation would have revealed in advance that women—as teachers, as members of an ever-widening range of professions, as mothers and wives of men killed or maimed in war, or returned to work out their peacetime problems under difficult postwar conditions—have given profound thought to the strains and stresses of both national and international society. Women by force of circumstances have to busy themselves with problems of housing, food, education, health, sanitation . . . "

ALSO A widespread education of women in social reform and international affairs has been going on at the grassroots through church societies and club groups. Of this many political leaders and legislators are unaware, as was evidenced in the Eightieth Congress in Representative Bertrand Gearhart's remark that women working for the extension of the reciprocal trade agreements should go back to their sewing societies.

No one can say how far women's vote influenced the make-up of the Eighty-first Congress. But at least the feminine promoters of international and of domestic social legislation will not meet up against some of their most frustrating former opponents. Not returning to Congress are Representative Gearhart, chairman of the Subcommittee on Reciprocal Trade; Representative Harold Knutson, who was chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee; Senator Chapman Revercomb, who helped defeat more liberal displaced persons legislation. In less powerful positions now are the former Speaker of the House, Joseph W. Martin, who was accused of keeping the Federal aid for education bill from going to a vote; Representative John Taber, former chairman of the Appropriations Committee, and Representative Jesse P. Wolcott, former House Banking and Currency chairman and enemy of the housing bill.

However, the sailing will not be entirely smooth for the feminine lobbyists. Business interests opposing the type of legislation women's, church and educational groups usually espouse are on the offensive as never before. Once regarding the feminine legislative groups as "confused" meddlers or flighty "dogooders," they now brand them as "dangerous pressure lobbies."

A BROADSIDE against the legislative activities of national women's organizations, called "Packaged Thinking" was distributed last fall by the National Industrial Conference Board. Opposition along the same line may be expected during this Congress. In this pamphlet it was charged that a small group of feminine lobbyists in Washington were trying to regiment women throughout the country in support of such measures as school lunch bills, Federal aid to education, the child labor amendment.

The organizations and individuals thus attacked refused to be drawn into battle, declaring the charges were too ridiculous to be answered. Since the ideas in the pamphlet closely followed those of the American Tariff League, the women leaders felt that business interests were concerned over their lobbying for reciprocal trade agreements.

Since the women's groups are by no means unanimous in their legislative programs—their greatest argument being over the equal rights amendment—it will be difficult to attack them on any one front. The legislation on which the most of the large national groups agree—8 out of 10—is continuance of ECA. Federal aid to education ranks second, public housing third. All insist that their legislative stands are not handed down from the top, but grow out of study, conferences and conventions of their far-flung membership.

Cyprus Detention

I fully support the sentiment expressed by Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, in his open letter to the British Ambassador to the United States, as published in The Washington Post. I share his admiration and gratitude to the British people for the magnificent principles contained in the Magna Carta, but I also share his outrage over the continued detention in Cyprus of Palestine-bound Jewish refugees.

The British are detaining these Jews under an unilateral interpretation of the Security Council resolution of May 29, 1948, which barred the entry of fighting personnel into the territories of the states involved in the Palestine war. In its reference to men of military age, the resolution stated that these, when they enter the territories involved, should not be drafted into the armed forces. There is nothing in that resolution that lends credence, even inferentially, to the British contention that the resolution obliges them not to permit the departure from Cyprus of Jewish men of military age, all of them European survivors who were forcibly transshipped to Cyprus from Palestine when that country was still under a British mandate.

When the May 29 resolution was passed, the French delegate moving the amendment on men of military age, made it very clear that it was not the intention of the amendment to bar the entry of such men into Israel. When the resolution was voted on, the members of the Security Council were well aware of this explanation.

The July 15 resolution, setting the second truce, was based on the general intents and purposes of the May 29 resolution. It reaffirmed some specific provisions of that resolution, as for example in its references to Jerusalem, but, significantly, it made no mention of men of military age.

It is true that the mediator had subsequently made statements in which he expressed anxiety lest the entry of men of military age increase fighting personnel. It was within his purview to consult with the governments concerned and request assurances on this point. These statements can't serve as a legal basis for Britain's unilateral action in preventing the Cyprus detainees from departing for Israel.

There is some concern over the fact that some countries appear not to have kept their pledge on the return of German war prisoners by a certain date. The Jews detained in Cyprus are not prisoners of war. Their detention in Cyprus is an unprecedented example of the flagrant flouting of international law. It is a stigma on Britain's reputation which attaches itself, by inference, to all governments that do not denounce this conduct by the British authorities. Such flouting of international law and violation of morality lends comfort to those who labor to discredit the Western democratic powers.

Ominous Silence

The article in the January 6 Washington Post, under the heading "Silence Is Deafening" appears to me to bring out one of the most pitiful and shameful indictments against the political character of the Congress.

Mr. Folliard says "No Senator or Representative got himself elected by promising to boost taxes." This might well have been stated: "No Senator or Representative puts the welfare of the country or the real worth of any legislation on a par with his voting so as to keep his constituents in line to assure his reelection."

It seems incomprehensible that not a single one of the more than 500 members of Congress had the courage of his convictions sufficient to voice his approval of the President's request for additional taxes, not only to equalize the present ones but to provide money to permit the United States to fulfill its obligations at home and abroad.

Tax On Fat

Mongoose (letter published January 6) feels that fat people should be taxed. Then they would reduce and there would be more cheaper food for all. This would assure more room in streetcars and buses. Also the view on the streets of the city would be more beautiful.

I thought that everyone knew by now that it is the thin people who consume those enormous quantities of food and it makes them thin to carry it. Good natured persons, who assimilate what they eat become fat on very meager portions.

A fellow traveler of the Mongoose persuasion said to a fat woman on a bus, "Madam, they should charge by the weight and then you would have to pay two fares." Says the fat woman, "Sir, if they were to charge by the weight the operator wouldn't have stopped to let you on."

Some may prefer scrawn to brawn. I prefer the brawny to scrawny for beauty and charm.

Euthanasia

The recent petition of New York ministers for a voluntary euthanasia law is a welcome indication of the rapidity of our cultural development. The day when the advocates of a harsh and rigid code of morals could deny the sufferer surcease is happily ending. A new ethics is at hand.

May I make a few modest proposals concerning this newly discovered authority of the state as the absolute arbiter of life and death? The sterilization of the mentally unfit has already been indicated. The National Socialist government of Germany has set us a splendid example in their sterilization of color blind women. Indeed, in the interest of population control, we might well execute all women who bear more than a determined optimum number of children—three, let us say. To raise our population standards, we can decree compulsory abortion for the lower classes. For the sake of our economic welfare, we would do well to put out of the way (quietly, of course) such economic liabilities as hopelessly insane persons and permanently crippled war veterans.

I would like to inquire, however, what name we shall give to the new suicide licenses. One hopes that some gentle, tactful designation be ascribed to them to quiet the objections of those persons who view such reasonable proposals as the above as totalitarian usurpation of the god-state. Shocking as it must seem to the petitioning ministers, with their tender, humanitarian regard for the "highest concepts and practices of religion," there still exist many persons, Christians and Jews alike, who are inclined to believe that our God "is a jealous God, who will not have false gods before Him."

Board Of Trade Government

The inept and incoherent remarks made by Commissioner John Russell Young at the recent dinner given by the Washington Board of Trade to welcome the new members of the Eighty-first Congress provide a fresh and mortifying reminder of what happens when the citizens of a great city are denied the rights of local self-government. Men without previous training or experience in municipal administration are appointed to top level offices and become stooges for the dominant elements in the community.

It is the theory of the American Constitution that Congress shall control the seat of the National Government. But in practice, being preoccupied with other, and larger affairs, Congress has delegated the actual conduct of the local government since 1878 to a Board of Commissioners appointed by the President.

It is an open secret, however, that behind the scenes the real government of the City of Washington is located, not in the Board of Commissioners nor in the Congress, but in the top directorate of the Washington Board of Trade. The directors of this board—a little group of 40 men—are selected with great care and are responsible to none but themselves for the determination of board policies. The entire Board of Trade has upward of 8000 members, but the rank and file have little voice in the making of board decisions.

For many years these top elite in the Washington Board of Trade have privately boasted that they are the real power in the conduct of District affairs. They have a strong voice in the choice of the District Commissioners, advise them what to do, and "call them on the carpet" if they do not conform to the desires of the directors of the Board of Trade.

This invisible government of our National Capital City by a benevolent oligarchy in the Washington Board of Trade may serve to protect and advance the interests of local bankers and merchants. But certainly it is incompatible with the principle of majority rule and with the democratic conduct of local government. Under home rule Washington would be governed in its purely local affairs by the duly elected representatives of all its people. Political power would be transferred from the managers of the Board of Trade to the members of the elected District Council.

Because it would effect a redistribution of political power in Washington is the real reason why the officers of the Board of Trade down through the years have consistently and steadily resisted all efforts to democratize the government of our National Capital City.

Operating under the benevolent oversight of this business oligarchy, the District Commissioners have given the people of Washington fairly good government. But we have been denied that which is more precious—the right of free men to govern themselves.

It is remarkable that a pressure group like the Board of Trade has so long been able to prevent local self-government in the District of Columbia in the name of a bogus attempt to achieve national representation for the District in Congress. Washington, in fact, is the only city in the United States, and the only capital city outside the iron curtain, whose inhabitants are entirely devoid of local self-government.

Today and Tomorrow

America In Asia

Editor's Note: The following column by Walter Lippmann was omitted from Monday's issue of The Washington Post.

IN TRYING to decide what we should do we must begin, I think, by recognizing that we cannot shape and direct the course of events in Asia. We may be able to exert a useful influence in maintaining friendly relations between the Western democracies and the emerging peoples of Asia.

Lippmann

Even that will be difficult to do. But if we try to do more than that, or something quite different—as for example to support puppet governments against the rising tide of nationalism and social revolution—we shall almost certainly fail, and lose what influence we might otherwise have.

WHEN WE assess our position in Asia, as we must in order to form a policy, we may begin with the fact that we defeated Japan by dominating the Pacific Ocean and the islands of Japan—not by defeating the Japanese army and then liberating and occupying the vast territories in China, Indonesia, and in Southeast Asia which Japan had conquered. The American victory gave the United States undisputed supremacy north of the equator and up to the coasts of the Asiatic continent. But we did not attempt or presume to deal directly with the immense areas which Japan had conquered from the Chinese, the British, the French, and the Dutch.

Having made the fundamental and unavoidable strategic decision to strike at the heart of Japan, and not to become involved in large land operations on the continent or south of the equator, it was left to our allies to take over the conquered territory evacuated by Japan.

AMONG OUR allies who were conceded the right to take over after the Japanese defeat, the Chinese under Chiang Kai-shek, the French and the Dutch had been too gravely weakened by the war to take over successfully. They have not been able to pacify the territory they lost to Japan.

Not only were they weak in material power. They were without real moral authority. Chiang Kai-shek's government, though it has received far greater help from the United States than the Chinese Communists have received from Russia, has collapsed. It has not collapsed because it was beaten in battle but because it has lost the support of the Chinese people. In Indonesia and in Indo-China the Japanese destroyed, probably forever, the prestige of Western empire. Though the Japanese were in the end defeated by the Americans, they had proved that an Asiatic nation could defeat the European empires in the Orient. Their slogan of "Asia for the Asiatics" continues to work, despite the surrender on the battleship Missouri.

WHERE THEN shall we look for allies, now that Nationalist China, the Netherlands, and France, are so manifestly unable to play the role in Asia which we had supposed they would play? That it seems to me, is the fundamental problem which has to be solved in order to form an American policy in Asia.

My own view is that the right direction was indicated by Mr. Attlee when he took the bold and far-reaching decision to treat India and Pakistan as leading members of what is now no longer the British Commonwealth but simply the Commonwealth. I am told that at the conference of the Commonwealth Prime Ministers in London last summer, Nehru, who is certainly the greatest figure in Asia, suggested that in the future India might become the intermediary between Asia and the West. We would be well-advised, I think, to enter into intimate consultation with Nehru about our whole course in China and in Indonesia. In doing that we should find ourselves in harmony with the Australians, who are surely among our dependable friends, as well as with Mr. Attlee and the wisest makers of modern British policy.

THIS IS NOT only the most promising way of approaching the tremendous convulsion in Asia. It is also the most truly American way. For our position in Asia rests on a great tradition, unique in modern history. We have been, and still are, the only world power which has refused to become the imperial ruler of subject peoples. That reputation originated in the fact that we are ourselves a colonial people that won its independence. It has been confirmed by our long support of Chinese independence, by our history in the Philippines and in Cuba. Our most precious asset in Asia is our ability to persuade the people of Asia that there is a nation in the Western world, more powerful than the Soviet Union, which sympathizes with their struggle for independence, and has no wish to exploit it.

OUR FRIENDS in western Europe should try to understand why we cannot and must not be maneuvered, why we dare not drift, into general opposition to the movements for independence in Asia. They should tell their propagandists to stop smearing these movements. They should try to realize how disastrous it would be to them, and to the cause of Western civilization, if ever it could be said that the Western Union for the defense of freedom in Europe was in Asia a syndicate for the preservation of decadent empires.

Matter Of Fact

The Missing Keystone

PARIS.—If France means anything—and France in fact sums up the inner tragedy of our times—the keystone is still missing in the arch of the future that America is seeking to build. For any French recovery, if French recovery occurs at all, will always be temporary and febrile, until the Frenchman in the street again enjoys some sense of security. And as long as Frenchmen believe that Soviet armies can march at will "as far as Brest," as one hears it put over and over again, no sense of security can exist in France.

The foregoing rather obvious statements have genuinely vital meaning for the United States. They mean, first, that the European Recovery Program will be likely to resemble the Berlin air lift until a sense of security has been re-created here. Like the air lift, the ERP keeps things ticking over. But people who think total disaster may occur the next morning are hardly likely to resume long-term investment and the other habits of the normal economic life that ERP is seeking to restore.

Again, this desperate need for a sense of security here means that President Truman is blindly torpedoing his own program by so sharply reducing the tempo of American rearmament. There are likely to be grave repercussions when Europeans realize that the President's budget ceiling allows for only 48 air groups, instead of the much-advertised 70, and less than 700,000 men instead of more than 900,000 in the ground forces.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S action is all the more incomprehensible because it comes at a moment when the whole outlook is beginning to improve. Given the absence of any sense of security, the European Recovery Program, here brilliantly administered by Averell Harriman and David Bruce, has thus far accomplished all that could be reasonably hoped.

More important still, sound steps have already been taken, by President Truman himself among others, to re-create that sense of security which is so urgently needed. The President's personal contribution was an order, courageously given in October at the crisis of the political campaign, to release American supplies to place the three French divisions in Germany on a better fighting footing.

The job was done in the usual unnecessary hole - and - corner manner. But the fact that these French divisions are using important quantities of maintenance and other equipment from us and have been promised further installments of tanks and the like has already significantly affected the thinking of the leaders of the French government and armed services.

The President's decision (taken on the urgent advice of Gen. Lucius D. Clay) is, of course, only a single incident in a much broader pattern. This is the pattern of Western European Union and the Atlantic Pact. The nations of Western Union, Britain, France and the Benelux countries, have already agreed upon practical, extremely conservative plans for restoring western Europe's powers of self-defense.

THE PLANS go by stages. Very roughly speaking, the first stage is the creation of strength enough to defend the line of the Rhine. In terms of ground forces, the plans call for approximately 35 European divisions (10 less than the original estimate) to hold the Rhine. For these divisions, light equipment will be mainly provided here while heavy equipment comes from the United States. Rather more than half of these divisions will be French, the other powers making larger contributions to other arms. And if American peacetime lend-lease operates rapidly, all the divisions can be ready in about two years or a little more.

In the case of the French, for instance, their army now consists of 20 divisions, or enough in theory to provide the French contingent of Western Union's ground forces and meet other French needs. By the bold decision of Western Union's ground commander, Gen. de Lattre de Tassigny, this new French army has not been trained in the old routine way in squalid urban barracks. It has been trained hard, chiefly in the country, and as nearly as possible under combat conditions. American observers think these French forces excellent except for one defect—they must still be armed.

Because of this want of arms, no more can be done until the projected Atlantic Pact has bound together western Europe and the Western Hemisphere, and peacetime lend-lease has been voted. Preparations for these great events have already been made, however.

BY QUIET agreement, for instance, the planned response to any military emergency by the American forces in Germany has already been fitted into the combined staff plans of Western Union. Again, it seems to have been a condition of French acceptance of Field Marshal Mongomery's appointment to Western Union's present top command that in case of emergency an American will once more be named to lead the Allied forces, as General Eisenhower was last time. And intimations have already come from Washington that when Congress has acted, the first annual installment of peacetime lend-lease will be one billion dollars' worth of new material and an equal amount from American stocks. This may not be enough to assure most rapid European rearmament, but it is at least a substantial contribution.

In short, every essential element is already present in the situation for the restoration of the non-Soviet world to strength and therefore health. The tragedy of our times, of course, is that these simple measures of military security should still be so necessary, after two world wars. But this fact must be faced. The fact also must be faced, moreover, that no ERP or Atlantic Pact or peacetime lend-lease or Western Union can ever make western Europe secure without a strong America. This is the first of all essentials. We have started to build the arch of the future. We must provide the keystone at whatever cost.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Exiles From Graustark

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY is like a Balkan government-in-exile. It has been out of power so long that a whole series of claimants have developed their separate and special claims.

Childs

On the outermost edge are the royalty and aristocracy that were driven out first. Nothing that has happened has changed their view one iota. They fully intend some day to impose the crown and the scepter.

The Republicans in this classification are both male and female. The prize specimens are the billowy ladies who appear on the platform wearing more orchids between the neck and what might be called the waist than anyone had hitherto believed possible.

The male type of Republican royalty is well illustrated by Senator Homer E. Capehart of Indiana. Indiana, interestingly enough, has produced another good specimen in Representative Charles A. Halleck. John Taber of New York, who might at first seem to belong to this same rank, occupies a lonely, lofty place as the venerable archduke of the colony of exiles.

These men are now saying exactly what they have been saying for the past 16 years—stop Government spending. Their immediate target is President Truman's budget calling for expenditure in the coming fiscal year of $41,900,000,000.

UNQUESTIONABLY, many things are wrong with that budget. It hardly could be otherwise in a program so vast and calling for such a prodigious expenditure of money.

But it is not enough merely to parrot the word economy. To win acceptance, the critic must be able to say where and how cuts should be made. The major fault of Halleck, Taber & Co. was that during their brief return to the promised land from 1946 to 1949 they used the crude meat-ax technique on budget requests.

Any economy was good so long as money was saved. Thus they pared a slice off the State Department budget for the current year and did a great deal of minor damage to effect a negligible saving.

After this royalty and aristocracy, who go on repeating the happy slogans of the past, come another circle of claimants. They might be compared to the agrarian reformers who also have been long in exile from the kingdom of Graustark.

These exiles—a splendid example is Senator Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire—are by comparison uncompromising realists. They always have understood that it would not be possible to go back to Graustark with the archduke and the ladies of the court and all their orchids.

They favor moderate, reasonable reforms that would, first, make a return to power conceivable, and, second, make it possible to govern once they were in power. Meanwhile, of course, the world does not stand still, and the position of these moderates tends to recede further and further into the past.

THE SPLIT in the Republican Party is deeper than most people realize. The division among Republicans in the Senate was not a true reflection, since the opposition necessarily focused on the outward symbol of authority. That symbol, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, has shown in his housing, education and other bills an enlightened conservatism not so different from the Tobey-Lodge-Aiken faction.

The real split is with the extremists who believe that Taft is a radical, inclining suspiciously toward socialism. These extremists include many of the minor nobility of the party-in-exile who pay the bills. Therefore, their shrill voices are heard more frequently than any others.

What is a hazard at this moment, when the power of the Truman Democrats is being so broadly consolidated. Constructive criticism, and not a mere yammering of the old shibboleths, is vital.

At the end of this month the Republican National Committee will meet at Omaha, Nebr. Omaha would seem to be the farthest periphery of exile, since Nebraska was one of the few Midwestern States that stayed loyal to the cause on November 2.

What the committee, which contains in uneasy unbalance most of the elements contending for the right to lead the way back to Graustark, can do is hard to see. Something certainly needs to be done if the second of our two major parties is to function effectively. And it is hardly enough to wait for time to take its course, since exiles never seem to surrender their blind allegiance to the past.

Army Urges Scientists' Pool To Avoid War Waste as GIs

By the United Press

A special Army board charged last night that Selective Service made a "mistake" in drafting scientists as ordinary GIs in World War II, and expressed hope it wouldn't happen again.

It said putting a scientist into a private's uniform was extremely wasteful of "vital" knowledge and skills, which should be used in some other field to speed victory.

The board urged the Government to set up a scientific manpower pool which would catalogue every American scientist regardless of age or physical condition. The pool directors would decide where the scientists could serve best in emergencies.

The special board was headed by Maj. Gen. A. C. McAuliffe, Deputy Chief of Army Research and Development.

Regulations Criticized

The board said World War II draft regulations "unfortunately did not anticipate the role of the scientist . . . upon whose shoulders rested a large share of the responsibility for victory or defeat."

To support its claim, it quoted at length from the answers to questionnaires sent to 69,350 scientists, including 15,157 who saw service in the recent war. Many said they found themselves misfits, whose talents were wasted.

The board said the proposed scientific "pool" particularly was needed in view of the "tense international situation."

Scientists will play a vital role in shaping the world's future, it added, whether the outcome of the present situation is "peace, war or a long armed truce."

Use of Proposed Pool

In an emergency, directors of the proposed pool would assign scientists to both military and civilian agencies. Each of the services also would set up a special office to see that their scientific manpower was not wasted.

The board said that "no competent professional scientist" should be compelled to serve as a GI.

"If he cannot be commissioned, he should be returned to civilian life where he can make a contribution to the progress of the war commensurate with his training and experience."

The board said the statements of a 35-year-old engineer with three years military service was typical of the "somewhat immoderate comments" offered by a considerable number of scientists who were unhappy with their Army roles.

Attack on System

The engineer said that in his opinion the Army personnel system was "so preoccupied with making out records and reports, that any classification accomplished was purely accidental."

A physicist, who held the rank of major, complained that rocket development was slowed by weak personnel policies, the low priority given researchers and insufficient cooperation between military and research groups.

Another physicist, who went into the Army from the reserves, said his talents went almost completely to waste, although he sought repeatedly a transfer to some other work where they would be useful.

American Nations Meeting Feb. 15

Havana, Cuba, Jan. 11 (AP).—A Cuban State Department spokesman today announced a conference of American nations, designed to put an end to colonies of European nations in the Western Hemisphere, will meet in Havana February 15.

The question was raised at the Bogota Conference on American States last year. The conference resolved that "it is a just aspiration of the American republics that colonialism and the occupation of American territories by extracontinental countries should be brought to an end." A resolution provided for the Havana meeting.

Countries with colonies and occupied areas in the Americas region are England, France and the Netherlands.

4 New Directors Listed At D. C. Bank Meetings

By S. Oliver Goodman

Annual stockholders' meetings of 12 Washington banks resulted yesterday in the election of four new directors. This was the smallest number of changes in recent years.

Riggs National Bank elected two new directors, while Hamilton National Bank and Lincoln National Bank each elected one new board member.

In some cases directors met soon after the stockholders and elected officers. Changes were few. Hamilton National Bank listed three promotions, while National Savings & Trust Co. and Union Trust Co. each elevated one staff member to executive rank.

At Anacostia National Bank the resignation of George B. Stevens as a director was announced, but the vacancy was not immediately filled.

Representative of earnings reports submitted to stockholders was that of Linwood P. Harrell, president of the Union Trust Co. Harrell said that net earnings for 1948, after provision for all taxes, totaled $333,713, equal to $3.33 a share. This compared with $286,687, or $2.86 a share in 1947. The increase was attributed primarily to an advance of $2,610,554 in loans and discounts during the year.

Business Outlook

Stalin Calls U. S. Tune, Forces Truman to Go Slow on Reform

By J. A. Livingston

THE 1950 BUDGET is a monument to the urgency of peace. Three out of every four dollars in it are traceable to war. And, because it's a record peacetime budget—$41,858,000,000—it twists the economy to a wartime shape.

The President understated the influence of war. He pointed out that "international and national defense programs are expected to amount to 21 billion dollars, or half of all budget expenditures." He could have added parts of two other items which are traceable to World War II:

Livingston

1. About 4.4 billions of the 5.5 billions interest on the Federal debt, since more than 80 per cent of the Nation's outstanding debt was incurred during World War II.

2. About five billions of veterans' expenditures, which now total 5½ billions as against a half billion before the war. Thus the costs attributable to war are (in billions):

National defense	$14.3
International aid	6.7
Interest (estimated)	4.4
Veterans (estimated)	5.0
War cost in budget	$30.4

Clearly, war wags the budget. Only 11½ billions out of 42 billions go for day-in and day-out doings of government—operating the various departments, such as Justice, Commerce, Labor, Interior, the Postoffice, and so on.

THE DEFENSE program and international aid constrain President Truman as a social reformer. They drain manpower and materials. They pump money out to farmers, manufacturers of munitions, workers, railroads, and every one else. They cut down the supply of consumption goods. We can't eat what goes abroad or into munitions. So, the cold war is inflationary.

As he puts it in his economic report to Congress, "We must pursue affirmative programs for housing and health, for education and resource development. Yet the fight against inflation prevents us from undertaking these long-range programs with speed and on a scale that would otherwise be desirable."

If peace and good will prevailed on earth, we'd be able to cut expenditures on Army, Navy, and Air Force to about four or five billions a year. As a result, gradually we might be able to reduce the national debt and the interest on it. As a further result, businessmen and economic forecasters would become less concerned about Stalin, more concerned about steel. The American accent has shifted from "As steel goes . . ." to "As Stalin goes, so goes the country."

SINCE THE COLD war constitutes about 10 per cent of the national income, and shift in United States diplomacy has its effect on business. A cut in armament expenditures might easily mause a minor economic upheaval. It might free enough steel so that overnight a buyer's market might develop. As it is, however, mounting war expenditures—they'll increase next year again, according to the budget—promise to take more steel and aluminum.

Stalin is up against the same economic drain as Truman is—only more so. According to the London Economist, about 20 per cent of Russia's national income goes to war—14 per cent directly into defense and 6 per cent for stockpiling scarce materials. But Russia's standard of living is far lower than ours. So the deprivation of war preparation is much more severe there than here.

Ultimately—and this is the American hope—economics may force Stalin to desist from what Secretary of State-designate Acheson has called Russia's "aggressive and expanding" policy. Conceivably restlessness among the masses—demands for more consumer goods—might force the Kremlin to reorient its diplomatic policy.

The irony of the Stalin policy is this. It forces lower standards of living in Russia and throughout the world. And President Truman has to go slow on promoting the very objectives Marx, himself, would accept: Security and a better way of life for the people. But Stalin wants to uplift the world his way. Hence, the 21-billion cold war budget.

Realtors Told Rent Control Is Outmoded

An "open-minded" review of the rental situation "as it exists right now" will demonstrate to Congress there is no further justification for rent control, realtors here were told last night.

Maener

The statement was made by Theodore H. Maener of Omaha after his installation as president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at a banquet at the Statler Hotel. He succeeds Hobart C. Brady of Wichita.

Realtors already have gone on record in opposition to Administration proposals to extend rent controls, slated to expire on Mach 31 unless an extension is made by Congress.

Maener said increased home ownership and a free market in rental housing are two of the major goals of NAREB during 1949.

More home ownership, he said, means "concentrating more of our home production in the modest price brackets in order that home ownership may be moved within reach of more of our people."

On the subject of rent controls, he said there is a "definite indication of an easing in the rental market" and added there have been reports of rental housing vacancies in several cities.

He said evidence is mounting which will demonstrate to Congress "that there is no further justification for using the wartime power of the Federal Government to isolate the one commodity of rental housing for a depression-level price."

Other officers and directors of NAREB, elected at the annual convention in New York last November, were also installed at last night's banquet, one of a series of meetings of 450 leading realtors from over the United States.

Those installed included Roland R. Randall of Philadelphia as president of the Society of Industrial Realtors and Frank C. Hall of New York as president of the American Institute of Appraisers.

It was learned last night that a plan to sponsor a vast cooperative housing plan has been shelved by the realtor group as "socialistic." The association also rejected a proposal that national dues of its more than 40,000 members be increased from $10 to $15 a year, or a total of more than $200,000 yearly, to help finance an expanded program to "fight socialism."

The six-day meeting of the realtors will conclude with a social dinner tonight in the Presidential Room of the Statler at which 200 members of Congress will be guests and business sessions Thursday.

Views Vary In Audience Of Bjorling

By Paul Hume

Jussi Bjorling's recital last night in Constitution Hall left as wide a variety of opinions among his hearers as was found in the music of the evening.

Arias by Verdi, Massenet, Puccini, and Giordano shared place with songs from 19th century composers usually included in singers' concerts today. The name of Ossip Gabrilowitsch provided novelty if his brief song, "God-bye" did not.

Bjorling is, in our opinion, the leading tenor today, whether in concert or in the frills and flourishes of opera. His voice, naturally beautiful, can produce sounds of great sweetness and ringing authority. He is at home in Italian and French repertoire and is one of the few opera singers who carries conviction in German Lieder.

From a purely vocal standpoint his finest work of the evening came in Schubert's Serenade, three songs by Sibelius, and a Swedish encore, Visions. Songs in English tended to bog down because of slow pacing, and Bjorling frequently forced higher notes as much as a half tone above the proper pitch.

A large audience greeted familiar entries with generous applause, winning six encores through their efforts.

Arno Sunnegardh provided accompaniments which generally sounded as if he and Bjorling were not well acquainted. Sometimes singer and pianist completely missed incisive beats in a way that suggested the need for at least some rehearsal.

1000 Attend First Meeting of Christian School

The sixth annual "Christian School in the Nation's Capital" opened last night at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw.

The opening session of the school, which will meet on six Tuesday evenings through February 15, was attended by 1000 persons, according to the Rev. R. Edward Dowdy, assistant pastor of First Baptist Church and dean of the school.

The school is sponsored by the department of Christian education of the Washington Federation of Churches.

At last night's meeting the speaker was the Rev. Theodore F. Adams, minister of First Baptist Church, Richmond, Va., who spoke on "A Christian Strategy in a Pagan World," the theme of the school.

Senator Smith to Speak At B'nai B'rith Meeting

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.), who last year led the congressional battle to liberalize the DP bill, will be a featured speaker at the second session of the seminar on public questions, arranged by the Anti-Defamation League of the B'nai B'rith, to be held at the Cafritz Auditorium of the Jewish Community Center, 16th and Q sts. nw., tonight at 8:30.

A. B. Kapplin, director of the Americanism Department of the B'nai B'rith, will be chairman of the session.

On the Town

By Robert P. Jordan

The tempo of this town's night life is due for a double shot in the arm come next week, when thousands of visitors hit the District for the inauguration festivities.

Downey

Bracing for the deluge in undisguised glee are nightery impresarios, many of whom already are announcing entertainment lineups for the President's fete week. They anticipate the usual Washington standing-room-only troubles (shades of the war) but nobody's complaining.

Right now, though, most of the downtown night spots are unhectic and relaxing.

Take the Old New Orleans and its Sazerac Room, where red-checked tablecloths and bottled candles set the atmosphere and Rita Dimitriou sings to the obvious delight of near-capacity crowds these nights.

The vivacious Greek chanteuse has the word for it—in her native tongue and, for good measure, French, Spanish, Italian. To say nothing of English. After doing some of her own especially arranged numbers, it's whatever the customers want to hear. All this in an easy give-and-take, with Bob Simpson and his band backing her up.

Over at the Cafe Caprice (Roger Smith Hotel), where the foreign service meets, affable Paul Berlin pounds a facile piano nightly on a what-will-you-hear basis.

Berlin, a USO-er during the war, is happiest when playing the piano for a ballet troupe—something he's hoping to resume again next spring. Last night he was trying to figure out why people like the songs they like.

Any evening, he said, he can count on requests for everything from Happy Birthday (served up, often as not, with cake for the celebrants) to the more classic of the Rachmaninoff. "I'll take ballet," smiled he, but meantime it's whatever the customers prefer in a light, spontaneous way.

At the King Cole Room, Jody Miller is taking over in the same style that Dona Mason used to pack the place. You'll find her perched on the bar with mike in hand and a ready repertoire of songs current and songs to tickle the funnybone.

Brass-throated Morton Downey, who has been known to sing continuously for an hour without any apparent damage, will be lilting "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" here 'ere long.

The veteran tenor, long a crowd-pleaser, has been lined up by the Statler Hotel for a limited engagement at its Embassy Room, coincident with next week's inaugural celebration. His run will extend from the seventeenth through the twenty-second—no more, no less.

For dancers, Henry King, the old favorite, and his orchestra will take over in the Embassy Room. Pianist King and company will stay on after Downey's departure.

Patterson Housekeeper Granted Use of Auto

Mrs. Sibilla Campbell, housekeeper for the late Mrs. Eleanor M. Patterson, was given permission yesterday by District Court, to use Mrs. Patterson's station wagon in her duties.

Judge F. Dickinson Letts signed the order for the car's use upon petition of Riggs National Bank, collector of Mrs Patterson's $16,500,000 estate. Her daughter, Felicia Gizycka, is contesting Mrs. Patterson's will.

The court was told Mrs. Campbell is now executive housekeeper for the Patterson mansion at 15 Dupont Circle and for the Dower House in Prince Georges County.

Drive Planned To Publicize Retail Trade

"Democracy Works Here," the keynote of a retail trade promotion campaign to awaken Americans to the blessings of democracy and a system of free economy, was outlined last night to members of the Washington Board of Trade, meeting at the Shoreham Hotel.

The plan was explained by Glenn Gundell, advertising and promotion manager of the Saturday Evening Post, who said that the advertising copy accompanying the drive "stresses the fact that in America, you—the shopper and buyer—are the boss. You can pick and choose as you please. Your local merchant isn't merely someone who sell you things. He is your personal shopping service in going forth to all great production centers of the land and buying things from which you can make a finer selection than any other people on earth."

The speaker said that about 170,000 retail stores and outlets of all sorts are coordinating plans to open the campaign during the week of February 14 and to continue it for varying periods.

Plans are being completed, he said, to enable virtually all of the Nation's 12,000 daily and weekly newspapers and 5000 radio stations to participate.

Japan Must Return Loot of Dutch Gems

Tokyo, Jan. 11 (U.P.)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today ordered the Japanese government to return its wartime loot of diamonds and gold to the Netherlands government.

Japanese armies had seized the treasure from the sultans of Mampawa and Pontianak in the Netherlands East Indies.

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—Cotton futures turned strong in late dealings today on a broad covering movement, stimulated by optimistic news on cotton export prospects. Final prices were $1 to $1.15 a bale higher.

Buying gathered momentum after news that Britain was granted an additional $16,700,000 ECA cotton credit, estimated to cover purchase of almost 100,000 bales of cotton. On Monday it had been reported that China had a similar quantity here. Pointing out the world demand for cotton was the declaration of ECA officials before the House Agriculture Committee that Russia and her satellites are far short of their cotton needs and that European countries will need increasing amounts of American cotton.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP)—Wheat and soybeans scored sharp advances at the Board of Trade today. The advance in wheat was attributed to increased exports and mill buying. Soybeans advanced on reports of additional export allocations of fats and oils.

Corn had some difficulty in maintaining rallies. The Government report of largest stocks of grain of record in the hands of producers was not considered bullish, and to-arrive bookings of around 150,000 bushels had a cooling effect.

At the close wheat was 1 to 2 cents higher; corn was unchanged to ¼ higher; oats were ⅛ to ⅜ higher; rye was 1⅜ higher; soybeans were ¼ to 4½ cents higher, and lard was 17 to 35 cents a hundredweight higher.

One on the Aisle—

Mae Hasn't Aged As Much as 'Lil'

By Richard L. Coe

FRESH FROM TRIUMPHS in Montclair, N. J., and London, England, Miss Mae West is currently luring Baltimoreans to Ford's Theater where she is appearing in a turgid drama she wrote 20 years ago called "Diamond Lil."

Miss West, who always reminds me of a whitewashed mermaid with a fiendish head cold, remains one of the remarkable ladies of the American stage. Writing about her is always a mixture of pleasure and perplexity.

The pleasure comes from her businesslike zeal in playing the naughty, golden-hearted ladies she invariably gives us. Uninhibited about the physical approach to life, she speaks for the things most of us muffle for propriety's sake. She sashays about the stage in the most dust-catching creations, low of cut in no matter what era she pretends she is depicting, topped by dazzling hats, ensconced on hair which a contemporary has compared to a new mop. She knows what is expected of her and delights in delivering the goods. All told, she's a bewitching dame.

The perplexities arise in matters not necessarily related to her roles, but decidedly a part of the Westian glitter. She had, for instance, considerably more success on the London stage last year than did our acknowledged queen of the theater, Helen Hayes. Miss Hayes, granted, was playing "The Glass Menagerie," a play not much to England's understanding. Miss West was occupied with this same "Diamond Lil," but her general reception must have given Miss Hayes pause for wonder.

Gay Nineties Bowery

Another perplexity is Miss West's indestructible elan. Although the program notes shyly remark that she was "born in Brooklyn at the turn of the century," her official biography admits that this is Miss West's 57th year on earth and even ladies who admit to half that age have much to learn from her of feminine allure. Unless the eye deceives, her figure is more pointedly defined than ever, the sort of figure that must have inspired the period fashions of the play.

"Diamond Lil," which is not so much a play as it is an exercise in unsolved crime, concerns a Bowery queen of the '90s who toys with an assortment of men including the district's boss, a Brazilian gigolo, a former husband-convict and a Salvation Army captain, who, as in all Miss West's dramatic works, turns out to be an upholder of the law. Its second act curtain finds callers dropping in on Miss West's bedroom while she combs the hair of a rival, a rival into whose neck she shortly before had plunged a dagger.

It's a Dead Mike

The authoress has given herself the lines you expect. She tells the Salvation Army man who marvels how careless she is about leaving diamonds around her bedroom that "Nobody comes in here but folks I know and they wouldn't touch anything but me." "It's not the men in my life that count," she manufactures a gag, "it's the life in my men."

There's something of a vaudeville show in the last scene from her large company, and Mae herself gets around to speaking—that's right, speaking—a couple of songs, "Frankie and Johnny" and "After You've Gone." Like the corpses to which no one pays much attention, Ford's allows Miss West a mike for this song fest, but it, too, is dead and Miss West coolly ignores it.

The play is no more than a burlesque of old-fashioned melodrama, and it seems rather astonishing to think that when she wrote it 20 years ago, Miss West was considered ripe for the cooler. It introduced Cary Grant to the movies as "She Done Him Wrong." As Mr. Atkinson has said, "'Diamond Lil' is about as wicked as a sophomore beer night and smoker."

MELODRAMA seems to be the rage in Maryland this week . . . The University of Maryland's Alpha Alpha is playing, under the direction of Ken Calfee, "Up to Her Neck in Sin," or "Dragged Down by Drink," a "new melodrama," with Erlene Hite, Joyce Marmelstein, Bettye Smith, Ed Winett, Don Dew, Carter Prescott and evidently scores of others . . . The drayma is being given tonight through Saturday at the university theater on the campus and, needless to say, it's not art.

THIS COLUMN'S beef about the difficulties of buying "Ice-Capades" tickets downtown has resulted in bettering the situation by one third . . . From now on, you'll be able to buy the tickets at the Fairway, on G st., until 5 o'clock, though the store doesn't close till a half-hour later . . . The snag lies in totting up accounts so's to get the seats over to Uline's where, on sports nights only, the box office is open until 10.

Court Upholds Tyler Homes Completion Suit, in Part

If the home owners wish it, the Tyler Corp. must add screen doors, a canopy over the kitchen door and extend the back stoop on 126 houses it built in Tyler Park near Falls Church two years ago.

This was indicated in a memorandum issued yesterday by Alexandria Federal District Judge Albert V. Bryan, who last week heard the Government's civil suit, claiming failure to build according to specifications.

Judge Bryan ruled, however, in favor of the Tyler Corp. to the extent that he dismissed contentions that basement and second-floor windows should have been screened and that more flooring than a catwalk should have been laid in the unfinished attics.

In a separate memorandum, Judge Bryan also explained that he had dismissed the Government's claim that 12 purchasers had been overcharged by amounts ranging from $15 to $37.66.

These charges, all made where the owner had moved in before making final settlement with the builder, were, he said, valid charges for taxes and insurance in the period between occupancy and final settlement.

Judge Bryan said he would enter a decree instructing the Tyler Corp. to offer within 60 days to make the changes in the 126 houses.

Leon Horowitz, president of the Tyler Corp., had no comment on a possible appeal by the company and said he wasn't sure how much the ordered changes would cost.

U. S. Acts to Aid 4 Girls Stranded In Tiny Republic

By the United Press

The State Department yesterday took steps to rescue four American girls reportedly stranded in the tiny republic of Andorra near the French-Spanish border.

The girls, Northwestern University exchange students in France, are understood to have taken a holiday trip to Andorra in a rented automobile. Snow blocked their return to France and they reportedly asked Spanish authorities to let them detour 35 miles over Spanish roads to France.

Permission was understood to have been withheld on the grounds the girls could not prove they own the car. The State Department has asked the United States consul general in Barcelona, Spain, to look into the matter.

The girls were identified from passport records as June Robinson, 20, Cincinnati; John E. Ross, 25, Kenilworth, Ill.; Marjorie Ann Haberkorn, 20, Fort Wayne, Ind., and Anne Arrington of Columbus, Ga.

Canadian Railways Denied Rate Increase

Ottawa, Jan. 11 (U.P.).—The Canadian Board of Transport today denied an application by Canadian railways for an interim 10 per cent boost in freight rates.

The board refused the increase pending a review of the 21 per cent rate hike granted the railroads last year, which has been protested by all provinces except Quebec and Ontario. The board will begin its review immediately.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

IT MAY YET be peace with honor for the All-America Conference in its tepid war with the National Football League instead of the abject surrender for which the NFL had hoped these three long, costly years.

POVICH

Dan Topping's willingness to fold his Yankees of the ACC and be content to take an NFL team into his New York ball park as a tenant has put peace negotiations on a new and brighter basis. But Topping is maintaining that it is not peace at any price.

Under his plan the more successful All-America Clubs—Cleveland, San Francisco, the Los Angeles Dons and Baltimore—would merge in a 13-club league with the NFL, eliminating the deadwood clubs in the AAC and putting the new, bigger league on a paying basis. The prime benefit would be, of course, the riddance to the suicidal bidding for players that has skyrocketed payrolls and made pro football an impracticable business.

Topping apparently holds the key to the whole scheme of the merger. If he chooses to hold out as an AAC operator, the league will doubtless go again. But without a club in New York, the AAC would lose identity as a major circuit and go into eclipse.

THE NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE, which hoped to drive the AAC out of business was coveting its two most successful franchises, Cleveland and San Francisco. But Topping declares he will not leave the other clubs high and dry in any move he makes. He wants to make provisions for the Baltimore, Los Angeles Dons and Buffalo owners.

The All-America people could easily rid themselves of four clubs. Topping's Yankees are ready to quit, as are the Chicago Rockets. The Brooklyn stockholders who are screaming that Branch Rickey's football venture is eating up their baseball profits, would like to get out of football. The Los Angeles Dons would be willing to merge with the Los Angeles Rams of the NFL.

Buffalo would be satisfied, under Topping's plan, to merge with Ted Collins' Boston Yankees with Yankee Staduim as the new base of operations. That leaves Baltimore to be taken care of. George Marshall denies that he opposed the entry of Baltimore into the NFL, but Jake Embry, the Baltimore president, denies Marshall's denial. The disposition of Baltimore could be the crux of the new deal, with indications being its eventual entry into the NFL.

THE NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE can't afford to get too tough in the negotiations which will crystallize next week at Chicago where both circuits will hold their executive meetings and the merger will be a prime topic. The AAC prepared for such talks when it switched the dates of its meeting to coincide with the NFL sessions. But apparently the AAC is not going into the meetings humbly, with its hat in its hand.

Topping has said that if there is no peace, the Yanks will be operated next season as an AAC team, so he isn't being scared out of the business. Nor can the NFL dip into the AAC for the two top teams—Cleveland and San Francisco—without incurring heavy financial obligations. The AAC holds a big stick against any such invasion or such temptation to quit its league.

In the AAC constitution it is written that any club that attempts to transfer to another league must indemnify all the other AAC clubs to the sum of $15,000 each. That would mean that Cleveland and San Francisco, or the NFL, must pick up a check for $180,000 for distribution to the remaining six clubs in the AAC, and with treasuries running low generally that is a staggering item.

ANY ALL-AMERICA CLUB that does attempt to jump to the NFL without permission also faces the loss of its players. Actually all players are the property of the league, not the teams, and it is specified that no players can accompany a jumping club. That would give any tempted club cause for pause. Under a peaceful merger, of course, it would pose no problem.

At any rate, the mule-headed reactions of certain NFL owners would appear to be at an end. Too many of them have lost too much money, in company with the AAC, to hold out much longer against a sensible peace, either by merger or by recognition of a common draft list that would do away with bidding for players.

Peace would be bad news only to the graduating college stars who are now able to shop around for the fanciest bonuses for signing, and the biggest salaries. But there is no temptation to grieve greatly for the football players. The good ones would still be in demand and able to earn all they are worth, perhaps more, because pro football is a nice business under peacetime conditions.

Cincinnati Takes 2 Coaches From Nearby Rival, Miami

Cincinnati, Jan. 11 (AP).—The University of Cincinnati today took two football coaches away from Miami University, its neighboring gridiron rival, and a high Miami official used the word "raiding" to describe the action.

Four hours after denying University of Cincinati officials had even talked with the coaches, M. Charles Mileham, athletic director at Cincinnati, issued a formal announcement that George Blackburn, head coach at Miami, and Joe Madro, his assistant, would be signed at University of Cincinnati, effective January 15.

At Cincinnati, Blackburn and Madro will join Sid Gillman, only recently named as the Bearcat head coach. Gillman formerly was head mentor at Miami and Blackburn and Madro were his assistants there. He came to University of Cincinnati after a year as line coach at Army.

C. Vivan Anderson of Cincinnati, president of the Miami Board of Directors, who first disclosed that Blackburn and Madro had quit at Miami, said:

"I am sure Miami University would not raid another institution with which it has been in friendly athletic relations for more than a half centry."

Anderson said he believed the whole affair would "blow over," but he added that "there already have been calls from Miami people urging that we cancel the Thanksgiving Day football game." The Miami-Cincinnati game is an annual Thanksgiving Day affair.

Topping Tells Press He's Ready to Be Landlord

By Jack Hand

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—The New York Yankees of the All-American Grid Conference, still talking pro football peace, today prepared to discuss Yankee Stadium rent terms with the Boston Yanks of the National League.

Dan Topping, Yankee president, said he would meet soon with Horace Stoneham, president of the New York Baseball Giants; Ted Collins, owner of the Boston Yanks, who recently were moved to New York, and the Maras (Tim and Jack), owners of the New York Giants of the National Football League.

"There will be a team of New York Yankees at the stadium in 1949," said Topping. He was talking at a press conference called following a New York Herald Tribune story that reported the Yanks were dropping out of the All-America Conference.

"Wheather that club will be owned by the New York Yankees, Inc., or by somebody else," Topping continued, "will be determined within 10 days during the pro football meetings opening at Chicago, January 18.

"If the club is operated by us," he said, "no peace will be made. If somebody else runs in the stadium with us as landlords it will be in the interests of peace.

Glutted Coaching Market Expected After Meetings

Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP).—The Chicago Cardinals, shopping for a head coach to replace Jimmy Conzelman, today reported they had received a half-dozen applications, but were in no hurry to sign a new coach.

"We're not rushing our hunt," President Ray Bennigsen said, "and—take this any way you like—the coaching market may be glutted after our league and the All-America Conference meet here next week." The AAC convenes here Monday and the National on Wednesday.

Lions Fizzle, Lose by 5-4

Opportunity, in the form of Philadelphia Rocket penalties, knocked unanswered not once but twice for the Washington Lions last night, leaving the Lions on the short end of a 5—4 score before a Uline arena crowd of 1076.

Both John Mahaffy and Wally Stefinaw of the Rockets were sent to the penalty box within a few seconds of each other in the last minutes of the game, but the meek Lions, enjoying a six-to-four personnel advantage, fumbled away the priceless chance to make up their one-goal deficit.

For two periods, the teams alternated scoring, with the Lions taking a one-goal lead three times. But the Rockets tied it up each time and, in the third period, took the initiative themselves. The loss tumbled the Lions into the American League's Eastern Division cellar alongside the Rockets.

Penn Athletics Lose $3454 In '48

Philadelphia, Jan. 11 (AP).—The University of Pennsylvania today reported a deficit of $3454 for its yearlong athlectic program ending last June 30. Total income was $548,333.

Henry R. Pemberton, Penn's director of finances, said football and basketball were the only sports to show a surplus.

THREE TO ONE—Western High's Carl King (43) is outnumbered but not outjumped in this shot of yesterday's clash with Eastern at the Armory. King neatly picks the ball out of the hands of Eastern's Jim O'Donnell (3) and Ken Atchison (7), while Jim Lamon (9) stands by. Eastern won, 37-33. Catholic University continued to set the winning pace in the District, defeating Western Maryland, 64-46, in a Mason-Dixon Conference contest last night at Brookland.

The victory was the eighth in nine tries for the Cardinals who now have a conference record of 5—1.

Capt. Gene Szklarz stole scoring honors from Jim Losty by tallying 21 points. It was Szklarz who broke the game wide open early in the second quarter with two baskets that gave C. U. a 17-12 margin which it quickly increased to 38-17 at half-time.

Then after intermission, Losty made two baskets and Szklarz and Bill O'Connell added field goals to put the visitors far out of it.

Losty, leading collegiate scorer in the District, finished up with 14 points to run his total to 132 for a 14.6 average.

For the visitors, who absorbed their fifth loss in six games, Frank Stephenson led with 12 points. All were made in the second half. Center Leo Lathroum was runnerup with 11.

Catholic University junior varsity basketers put on a scoring spree in the second half to rout Western Maryland's jayvees, 49-35, in the preliminary

It's 'Homecoming' for Shapiro In a Game Either Team Could Win

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Although the local college basketball teams are about as formful as gals in size 48 dresses, the season gets more interesting all the time.

Tonight, for example, George Washington meets Georgetown at the Armory in the top game to date. Not only is it slightly impossible to predict the outcome, it's even difficult to determine the logical favorite.

Off their last games, it should be GW. The Colonials handed North Carolina its first home defeat at Chapel Hill Monday night by a convincing 64-41 margin. Georgetown meanwhile had all it could do to subdue oft-beaten Maryland, 53-51.

It isn't quite that simple, though. GW hasn't won two games in a row since early in the season when it tripped VPI and Richmond. In the last six games, the Colonials have followed a strict zigzag course, winning one and losing the next. And Acting Coach George Garber's boys further complicate matters by winning the games they figure to lose.

Staged Comeback

After walloping VMI, they took a bad beating from Virginia, 67-53. They promptly turned around and whipped Manhattan in Madison Square Garden, 71-63. Wake Forest surprised G. W., 50-38, and the undismayed Colonials rallied to stun North Carolina.

Heightening the appeal of the town's top rivalry tonight will be the first home appearance of Co-Captain Dave Shapiro since he acquired a hero's halo for helping New York authorities trap four gamblers who attempted to bribe him.

Shapiro, who scored only 37 points all last season, demonstrated that at last he's able to concentrate on his basketball. Dave tallied 11 points and played a prominent role in the prize upset of the Tar Heels.

Scoring honors thus far for the Colonials are divided almost equally among Phil McNiff, 101; Cocaptain Maynard Haithcock, 99, and Bill Cantwell, 98. Cantwell seems to be regaining the shooting eye that gave him a wide margin over his teammates last year; he made 21 points in his last start.

Georgetown, with a 5-3 record, seems to equal GW as an "in and out" ball club. If both teams are "on," the game will be as good as any held here in years.

Sharp-shooting Tommy O'Keefe leads the Hoyas with 98 points; Capt. Ray Corley is runner-up with 80, and promising Soph John Mazziotta, bulky center, has 80.

Currently, the Hoyas have a two-game winning streak. They haven't reached three yet this season. Against their only mutual opponent, Richmond, Georgetown won by 25 points; GW by 19.

It shouldn't be discussed in polite circles but GW is called a five-point favorite tonight by the boys who like to wager.

Flucie Stewart's hard-luck Maryland team travels to Philadelphia tonight to meet the University of Pennsylvania. The Terps, who have won only 2 of 10 starts, have had more than their share of close ones go against them.

In the preliminary to tonight's Armory clash, Georgetown Frost and the GW yearlings meet. The young Hoyas dropped a 56-45 decision to Maryland Frost Monday.

Warriors Bow To Rochester

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP).—A sizzling third period attack which netted 32 points enabled the Rochester Royals to come from behind and hand the Philadelphia Warriors their fifth straight setback, 83 to 71, in basketball Assocation of America game tonight.

Trailing 38—32 at half time, the Royals' Center Arnie Risen sparking the attack, pumped in 26 points against only five by the Warriors in the final eight minutes of the third period.

St. Louis Tops LIU at Garden

New York, Jan. 11 (AP).—St. Louis' amazing Billikens broke through Long Island University's intricate zone defense to belt the Blackbirds, 58—47, for their 10th victory without a defeat this season. A sellout crowd of about 18,500 saw Ed Macauley held to 10 points, the lowest total in one game for the All-America center this season.

In the second game of the double-header, City College of New York defeated West Virginia, 64-50.

Pantos Gets 26, Poston 18 to Top Day's Scoring

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Jimmy Pantos of Central and Bucky Poston of Western yesterday gave 1132 Interhigh basketball fans a shooting exhibition they'll long remember.

The scrawny 5-foot 10-inch Pantos rained 26 points through the hoops in 26 minutes as Central coasted to a 50-34 victory over Anacostia in the second game of a doubleheader at the Armory.

In the first game, Poston, throwing 'em in from every conceivable angle, tallied 18 points, but his Western team bowed to well-balanced Eastern, 37-33. Eastern's win gave it an insecure hold on first place with two victories and no losses.

INTERHIGH LEAGUE

	W.	L.	Pct.		W.	L.	Pct.
Eastern	2	0	1.000	Anacostia	1	3	.333
Wilson	1	0	1.000	Bell	0	1	.000
Coolidge	1	0	1.000	Chamberlain	0	1	.000
Central	2	1	.667	McKinley	0	1	.000
Western	1	1	.500	Roosevelt	0	1	.000

Another league doubleheader is slated for 2 p. m. today with Roosevelt meeting McKinley Tech, and Coolidge facing Wilson at the Armory.

No individual scoring records have been kept in the Interhigh League offices, so it isn't known whether Pantos' 26 points are an all-time league-game mark. However, it is known that Jimmy's performance was the best since the games were reduced from 40 to 32 minutes playing time in the middle 30s.

The versatile Viking athlete played a steady game, disdaining wild shots. Every Anacostia man was assigned to guard Pantos during the course of the contest, but Jimmy dunked in 10 points in the first quarter, 6 in the second and 5 in the third.

Pantos Taken Out

In the first minute of the last quarter, Pantos put in a pivot shot. Fifty seconds later, he drove through the middle for a layup, despite being fouled by Sonny English. When Pantos sank the charity toss for his twenty-sixth point, he was taken out of the game.

Central had an easy time, thanks to Pantos, leading, 16-3, 28-18, and 43-21, at the end of the first three quarters. Anacostia's first field goal, by Bob Mitchell, didn't come until after 10 minutes.

Poston played a more spectacular game, than Pantos. The 5-foot, 10-inch Georgetown Boys Club product slammed in seven field goals, and each was of a different variety.

Eastern used 14 players, and was never in danger, although Western began creeping up at the finish. The set shooting of Jim O'Donnell and the driving play of Ped Brown enabled Eastern to lead, 12-8, 29-19, and 33-28 at the quarter marks.

Tracks Reinstating Daily Double at Demand of Fans

Ducks Staged Comeback This Winter; May Mean Longer Season and Bigger Bag

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

THE DAILY DOUBLE, which race track owners tried to eliminate, is coming back at the demand of the fans. Garden State Park is the latest to reinstate the twin bet . . . and don't be surprised if many tracks give handicapper selections on the program once more. Bowie, the Maryland track off the least in betting last year, was the only plant to have this feature last year . . . For a few moments the other night, I thought I was going to eat a juicy deer steak. A fellow phoned me and said, "We have some fine venison steaks—" I was just about to say, "Include me in" when he continued, "—and we'd like to know how to cook them." . . . If you read my story about the big shark's tooth found in Chesapeake Bay, perhaps you'll be interested in a UP dispatch from New Zealand reporting the finding of a black shark's tooth 50 million years old and out of a monster 90 feet long. Oddly enough, the tooth was 5½ inches by 3½, the exact measurements of the one given me . . . Maryland's racing dates haven't been announced as yet. Looks like the State is sparring with New Jersey, neither wanting to be the first to go on record. In the meanwhile, Delaware Park has named its "traditional" date—May 28 to July 4—and has as much as told Maryland and Jersey to buck them if you so desire, which I don't believe they will . . . Apparently the ducks have made a big comeback. The season that closed last Saturday was marked by a heap of shooting at the start, but the spring-like weather caused a falling off of the kill during the final week. The ducks, for the most part, basked in the sun well out of range of the hunters. However, the large number seen may mean that next year more hunting days and a bigger bag—four was the limit this season—will be allowed . . . By the way, if you duck hunt, take your watch along. The law says shooting must stop an hour before sundown. The fine for overtime shooting is $27.50 per hunter. I know some guys who paid.

Haight

FEW GEESE made their appearance around here this winter. Apparently, most of them

Bobo Newsom Was Colorful as Any of Nats; Haight's Pool Better Than His Arithmetic

gave us the go-by and flew south to the Pea Island National Wildlife Refuge on Hatteras Island, N. C. . . . Bill Sharp, who beats the publicity drums for that State, says than more than 11,000 have been counted, approximately 5000 more than game officials expected. They will be fed for the remainder of this month . . . by the way, Sharp also writes, "It's awfully early for the bass to be biting, but W. T. Hunt came in with three he took from Chatuge Lake, using minnows for bait" . . . the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission probably hasn't heard about January 20 being Inauguration Day. They have booked hearings on that date on proposals to lengthen the raccon and bass seasons as well as to up the creel limits on bass and trout to seven per day . . . Those alleged basketball fixers will be tried in New York before going to court here. It's a safe bet. That's why Gotham officials waited for the crackdown until David Shapiro and the gang got together on Manhattan Island . . . the Preakness and the Belmont have been sliced $25,000 each, but there's one thing you can paste in your hat and that is, the Kentucky Derby will remain at $100,000 added. In fact, I won't be surprised if old, cagey Matt Winn tacks another $25,000 on his big race . . . with 52 colts and fillies going on the auction block, Louis B. Mayer, the movie magnate, will be just about out of the race horse business . . . according to District law, it's a felony to try to "fix" a horse race here . . . hard to believe, but Charles Town had better racing weather

Dr. Reed, Claim Horse, Beats Faultless

Tropical Park, Fla., Jan. 11 (AP).—Dr. Reed, a $10,000 claim for H. B. Hershon last October, eked out a photo victory over a "name horse"—Calumet Farm's Faultless—in today's Monseigneur Purse, witnessed by a crowd of 9733.

The victor, showing surprising gameness in a bitter late duel, refused to be passed by his more famous rival, even after the latter drew alongside him in the stretch as if ready to go on to an easy victory. Third position went to L. J. Hollenbach's Roi Rouge, a half dozen lengths away.

Dr. Reed, under apprentice Eldon Nelson, flashed the six furlongs in 1:11 4/5 and paid $11.10 for $2. It was his second triumph in three starts here for his new owner. Last year, the colt earned $10,225, as compared to Faultless' $68,900.

Neither the winner nor Faultless ruled favorite. Hornpipe drew the bulk of the play. He came in seventh in a full of eight.

Typists Lose, 49-22

The United States Civil Service Commission basketball team won its fourth consecutive victory last night in a District Recreation League game at Roosevelt gym by defeating Remington-Rand, 49-22. Bill Murphy was high scorer for the victors with 16 points.

Cizauskas Gets 20

Al Cizauskaus scored 20 points and paced Patuxent Naval Base to a 61-51 victory over the Anacostia Naval Receiving Station last night at Anacostia.

Bullets Trail in Series, 2-1

Caps Travel to Baltimore, Seek to Avenge 88-68 Loss

Washington's Caps invade Baltimore's Coliseum tonight, aiming to avenge their humiliating 88-68 loss to the Bullets a week ago.

However, the Caps are running into one of the hottest clubs in the Basketball Association. The Bullets, only two notches behind the first place Caps in the Eastern Division race, have won eight of their last 10 games.

Four Bullets, headed by Center Connie Simmons, are maintaining better than 10-points-per-game averages. Simmons is clicking at a 15.6 pace, followed by Walt Budko, Fred Lewis and Chick Reiser.

Before the Caps' loss, Washington nosed out its bitter rival, 70-68, and 83-82.

The Bullets' chances hinge on their ability to repeat their blanketing of Bob Feerick, Bones McKinney and Fred Scolari. After averaging 38 points for their previous games, the Caps' trio was held to a total of 18 in the last Baltimore game.

Stan Stutz will again cover Scolari, John Pelkington will be assigned to McKinney and Reiser will be on Feerick. Tonight's game will be homecoming for two Caps, who played for the Bullets last season, Kleggie Hermsen and Dick Schulz. Irv Torgoff, a Cap last season, will be in a Baltimore uniform.

Turner's Fighters To Get Share of Television Cash

Main event boys fighting at Turner's Arena soon will receive a percentage of television receipts.

"We're doing this voluntarily," Matchmaker Gabe Menendez said, "because we think the fighters are entitled to it."

The figure for the fighters hasn't been decided yet, but is expected to be in the neighborhood of 30 per cent.

Only one show this season has drawn more than 1000. In pre-television days, packed houses of 2000 were common at Turner's.

Menendez, however, said, "Television may hurt," he explained, "but it's hard to tell to what extent. I think general business conditions have more to do with it.

"In Baltimore they weren't televising the fights, but things are so bad they're holding few shows. And Baltimore used to be a top fight town."

Hoping to lure a few more patrons to Turner's, another quarter of eight-rounders will be offered next Monday night. In the one announced, Southpaw Danny Petro, featherweight, will lead off against Lee Q. Murray of Baltimore.

Gordon Wins, 39-22

Gordon Junior High romped to a 39-22 Grammar School League victory over St. Stevens last night in the first of three games played at Georgetown branch of the Boys Club of Washington.

In the Junior House League, the Comets nosed out the Flashes, 24-23, with Keith Copeland pacing the Comets with 9 points. Washington Flour defeated Peoples Drug, 36-35, in the intermediate Lexington, Va., Jan. 11.—Virginia University took an early lead, never was headed and defeated Virginia Military Academy in a basketball game here tonight, 63-46.

Joe Noertker, Virginia's big center, was the scoring leader with 24 points. Bobby Thomason, football star, paced VMI with 13 points at a guard position.

Baughs 'Sign' 4th Little Gridman

Rotan, Tex., Jan. 11 (AP).—It's another boy—8½ pounds—born in the Sweetwater Hospital to Sammy Baugh, the passin' man of the Washington Redskins' and Mrs. Baugh.

He's boy No. 4 and Papa Sammy was home for the big event this time.

When Todd, 7; David, 5, and Bruce, 3, were born, Sam was either throwing those long passes for the Redskins in the East or flying home in a losing race with the stork.

All the Baughs are doing nicely, thank you.

COLORFUL PLAYERS have been few and far between as far as the Nats are concerned. Recently I was writing about Goose Goslin and "M. J. K." tells me not to forget Bobo Newsom. There's no denying that Bobo had plenty of "it", both on and off the field. For instance, one night he appeared in our sports department to protest because our headline read: "Nats Crushed Again." Discussion Set for Tuesday On Montgomery Legislation

By Phillip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 11.—Legislation affecting Montgomery County under its new charter status is scheduled for discussion at a meeting between county members of the Maryland Legislature and the County Council next Tuesday at Carvel Hall here.

Anders R. Lofstrand, chairman of the county delegation to the House of Delegates, has written to Frederick P. Lee, whose selection as president of the newly elected council has been announced, inviting the council members to the meeting.

Among the subjects to be discussed is the proposal to increase or abolish a 7-per-cent limitation on bonded indebtedness in counties under charter status; transfer of trash and garbage collection service from the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission to the county council; similar transfer of electrical and building inspection from the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission to the jurisdiction of the County Council; and fixing of boundaries for fire departments of the county.

The group also is expected to discuss repeal of the Lindsay Law, which provides that the election of members of the county council must be held in the same manner as that for members of the House of Delegates, thus requiring primaries and party labels on candidates. This provision bars Federal employes from being candidates or taking part in election campaigning.

Lofstrand also announced tonight that he has invited Montgomery County Policeman Leslie Thompson, president of the Montgomery County Association of Volunteer Firemen, to submit proposed boundaries for the county fire department areas to the delegation by January 26.

The delegation also plans to hold a public hearing in the Silver Spring Intermediate School February 4 at 8 p. m. on the controversial question of permitting veterans' organizations to serve liquor in club houses in Montgomery County.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 11 (AP).—Hope for a permanent armistice in the ancient Potomac River "oyster war" revived today with a harmonious meeting of Maryland and Virginia lawmakers.

Three representatives of the Old Dominion General Assembly and key tidewater strategists of Maryland's Legislature decided to draft a law creating an interstate authority over the Potomac River.

It was the sixth straight win for the Presidents, who led 12-4, 18-9 and 23-17 at the end of the first three quarters. Tony Daukas and Billy Smith paced GW with 14 and 11 points.

Arlington Girl, 18, Fined $10 for Assaulting Police

Arlington Trial Justice Hugh Reid yesterday found an Arlington County girl guilty of assaulting a policeman and fined her $10 and costs.

Miss Alice Wilson, 18, of 2470 S. Lincoln st., pleaded innocent to the charge. Pvt. Francis Dodson said he and a fellow officer investigated Miss Wilson and a companion in a parked car in the 3700 block of Four Mile Run dr. Monday night.

Dodson and his fellow officer, Pvt. R. V. Crack, said the girl ran away when they ordered her into their scout car. In court, Dodson exhibited the scratches he said the girl inflicted when he brought her back.

Steelworkers File Suit Over Canceled Contract

The CIO Steelworkers Union announced yesterday it had filed a $98,000 damage suit against the Shakespeare Co. of Kalamazoo, Mich., where a strike began September 7.

CIO General Counsel Arthur J. Goldberg said the suit charges the company illegally canceled its contract with the union. The action was filed in Federal District Court at Grand Rapids, Mich.

The strike has been marked by violence on the picket line, prompting an investigation by Representative Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.), as a "one man sub-committee" of the House Labor Committee.

Line Repays U. S. Subsidies

American Export Lines, Inc., one of the Nation's largest merchant fleet operators, yesterday paid a dividend of $5,252,628.66—and the entire amount went to Uncle Sam.

Vice Admiral W. W. Smith, chairman of the Maritime Commission, received the checks from H. M. Gillespie, vice president and director of the steamship line. The sum represents repayment in full of Federal operating differential subsidies received by American Export Lines since January 24, 1938.

The repayment is one of the first by any company receiving subsidy benefits under the Merchant Marine Act of 1936. Under this law, Congress approved parity payments to equalize American Flag steamship operating costs with lower costs of principle foreign flag competitors. A provision of the law requires repayment of the subsidy when earnings are sufficient to nullify the need.

Gillespie said his company now is valued at approximately 40 million dollars and operates a fleet of 24 modern vessels owned by the company, in addition to several ships chartered from the Maritime Commission.

North Post Wins, 46-32

Aides Report Thomas Was Given Transfusion

Aides of Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) said he was given a blood transfusion at Walter Reed Hospital yesterday.

Thomas entered the hospital recently for a physical checkup after recurrence of a stomach disorder.

Thomas, former chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, is under indictment on charges of conspiracy to defraud the Government by padding the payroll of his office.

His trial originally was set to begin last week, but was deferred because of his illness.

Topping Will Talk Rental Of Stadium to NFL's Collins

in the stadium," is the current slogan.

Topping said he had several meetings with Stoneham, who rents the Polo Grounds to the football Giants. Football often was the main topic of conversation.

"Horace is very strong in urging me to become a landlord," Topping said, "in the interests of pro football peace. I know he feels, even more than we do that three New York teams would be the ruination of any league and of pro football.

"I don't think he's anxious to have two clubs in the Polo Grounds. Probably the only reason he would do it is because of his moral obligation to Mara. I am sure he is going to do everything to work this out so that there will not be three New York clubs. Horace is arranging the meeting with Collins and the Maras.

"We've decided it's better business to be a landlord than a pro football operator. Look at Stoneham. All he has to worry about is a drop in profits. He never has a loss."

Topping repeated earlier statements that he would not act without the full cooperation of other members of the All-America Conference.

"As I have said many times in the past," he declared, "we will not make any move at the stadium that will not receive the unanimous vote of the present conference members. We made the conference possible by entering it. We very definitely have legal and moral obligations to live up to.

"We are willing (please do not say anxious) to become landlords if it means peace in pro football."

Topping said he never had discussed rental terms with Collins, Mara or anybody else. Referring to his imminent meeting with Collins and the Maras, the Yankee executive said:

"I want to see if it would be possible to work out a lease before I go into the conference meetings next week."

According to Topping, Yankee football players now under contract and those signed since the 1948 season will be "taken care of" if the Yankees do not operate their own club. He gave similar assurance to the coaching and scouting staff.

"I am personally not anxious to get out," said Topping, "we have a fine coach in Red Strader, who can be one of the great coaches. If we run next year we'll use the T-formation. We have signed more new talent than ever before.

"The truth is, I don't want to get out, but I'll do it for peace."

Topping rules out any talk of a Boston Yank-New York Yankee merger as "impossible." The New York Yanks, football and baseball, are the same corporation.

It's High Time for a STRAIGHT TALK about
STRAIGHT WHISKEY

Here's the straight whiskey picture as we see it.

Straight whiskey has been scarce since the war. There hasn't been much of it around. If a man wanted straight whiskey he had to do one of two things. Pay a fancy price for it. Or settle for a brand he didn't know anything about.

We think it's time somebody did something about it. We think that anybody who wants a good straight whiskey should be able to get it without putting a big dent in his pocketbook. We've been preparing a long time to make that possible. And now we've done it!

We're bringing back a famous brand of prewar days . . . MAYFLOWER . . . a fine Straight Bourbon Whiskey!

You remember Mayflower. Mayflower is whiskey that tastes like whiskey. It's straight whiskey . . . all whiskey . . . every drop! Mayflower has all the natural flavor, natural mildness, natural smoothness, and natural mellowness of real bourbon. Its price is a "natural", too.

To record its quality, we've registered every bottle of Mayflower Straight Bourbon Whiskey. Given it an individual number. You'll see that number on the label!

We're introducing Mayflower here in town this week. Now, everybody who enjoys a fine straight bourbon whiskey can have it again. Now you can have Mayflower—at a sensible, down-to-earth price!

So head straight for that Great Straight . . . Mayflower! Ask for Mayflower at your favorite tavern or package store.

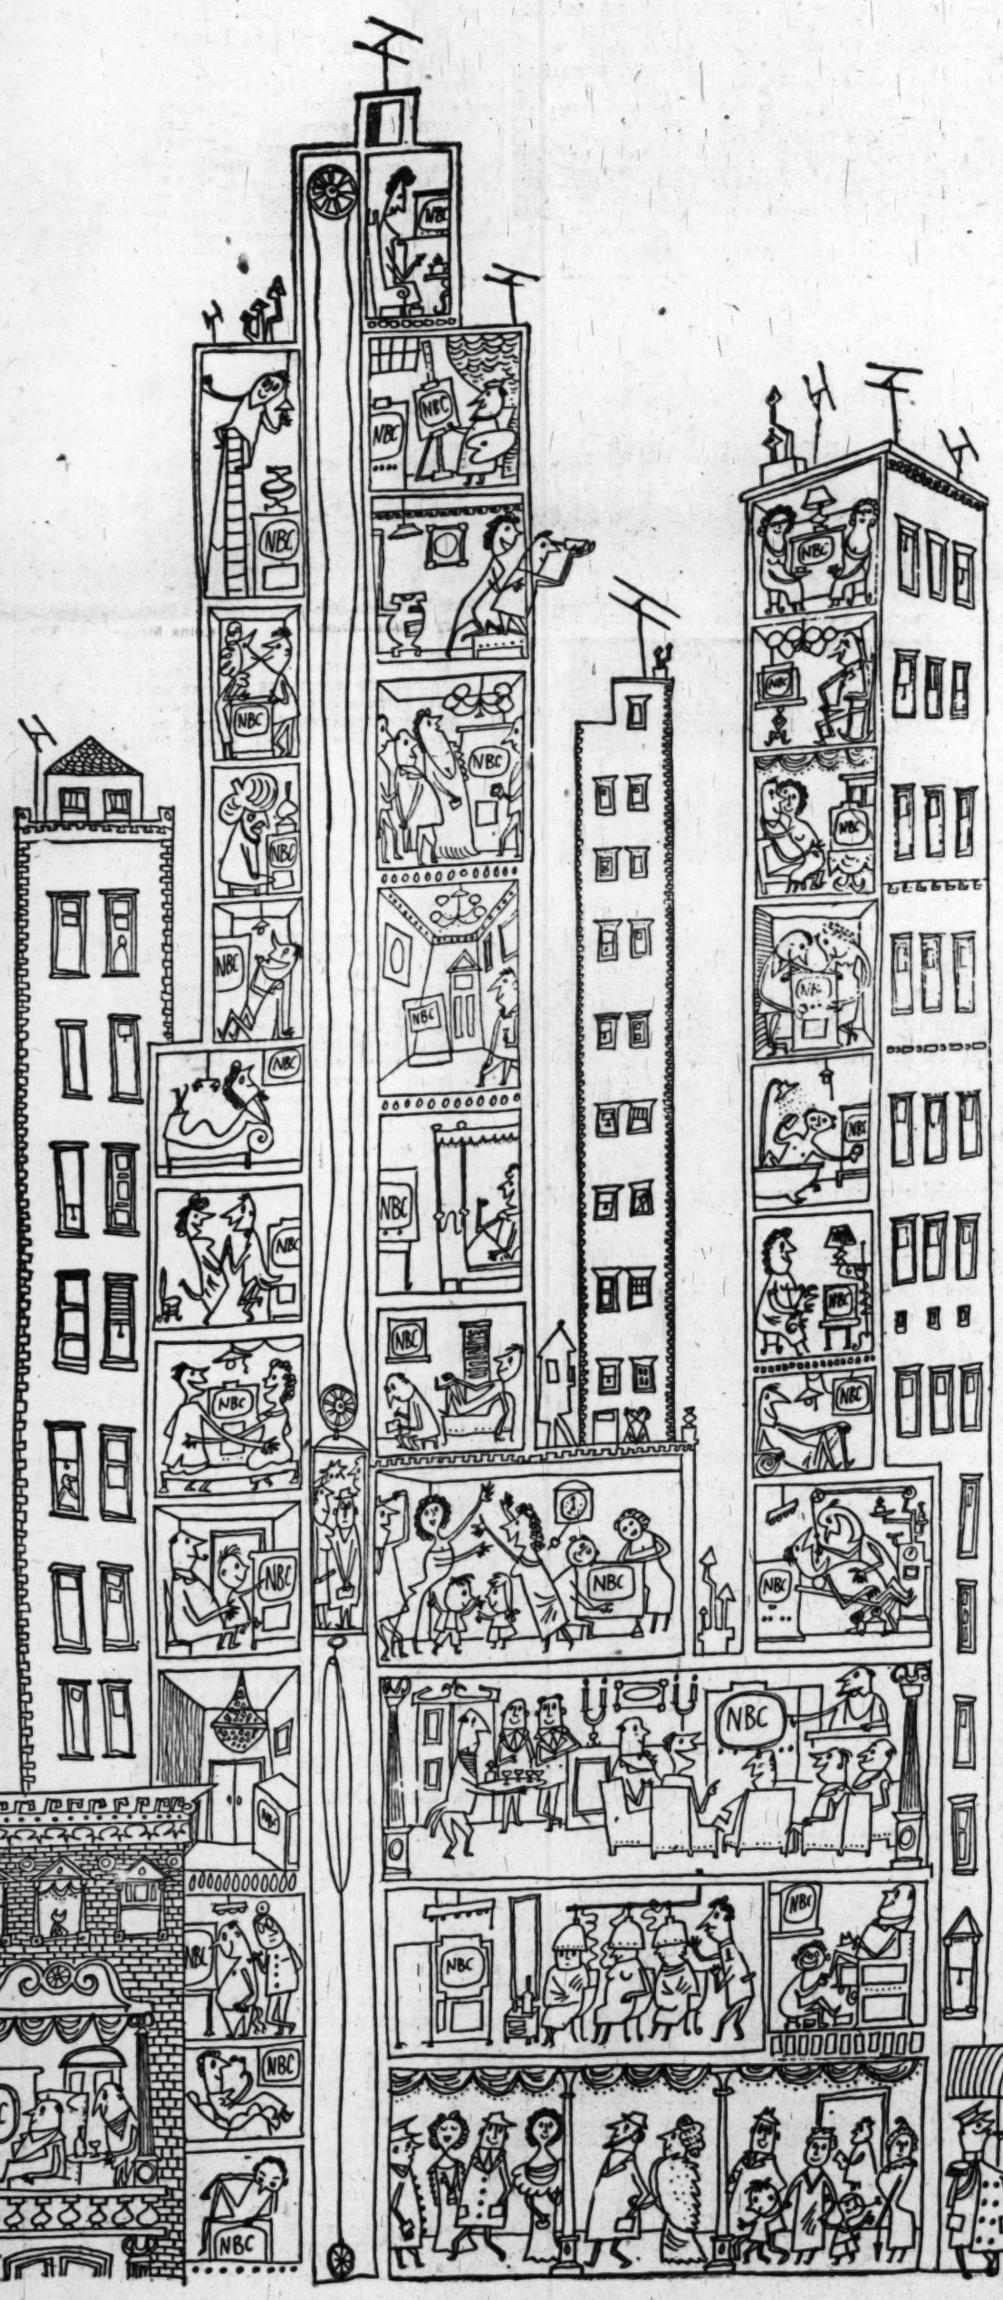
You're in the TV era



Last January, NBC revealed to the public the greatest means of mass communication in the world—Network Television. The National Broadcasting Company hailed 1948 as Television's Year.

Even on the day that message was published, NBC's promises were being fulfilled. At that time, NBC's Television Network was made up of 4 stations. Today, NBC's total is 29 stations—14 joined in the Eastern and Midwestern Networks to bring programs simultaneously to viewers from the Atlantic to the Mississippi, with 15 more airing NBC Network programs by means of kinescope recordings.

A year ago, there were but 170,000 television receiving sets in the country. Today, there are about a million sets in operation—with 3,000,000 expected by the end of December. There are now over 30,000 sets in Washington alone.

What does this mean to you?

NBC's leadership has brought you into an era of new entertainment, information, news and education.

It is estimated that at least 10,000,000 viewers will watch the Truman inauguration—more than all who saw the 31 presidents from Washington to Roosevelt take the oath of office.

Also this month, NBC Television enters the field of education with a series of daily educational programs for pre-high school children. The N. Y. Times welcomes the series as "a great opportunity and a great challenge to educators in this new era."

If you have had television in your home for the past year, nothing would make you give up the thrill of such special highlights as the Presidential Conventions and the Election . . . NBC-U. S. Navy's ship-to-shore telecasts of the Leyte maneuvers . . . Toscanini conducting the NBC Symphony.

What does the TV era mean to industry?

The fantastic growth of TV has lifted radio and television to a two-and-a-half billion-a-year enterprise today—one which may be one of the nation's top ten industries by 1953.

It means, also, that NBC has led in the economic advances of the new medium—as shown by the use of its facilities by nearly four times as many advertisers as the next network.

These advertisers know the experience of Texaco, whose NBC Television programs are drawing an almost unbelievable sponsor identification and the highest rating ever received in either radio or television. Advertisers also know that Hooper surveys show NBC with the largest average evening audiences.

Committee Approves Pay Rise for President And 13,824 Others

The Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday gave its approval to a bipartisan bill which would:

1. Give the 7600 classified employes in the District Government and the 6000 Foreign Service workers $330 pay raises retroactive to last July, and,

2. Raise the salaries of the President, Vice President, Speaker, and 222 other top Federal executives.

The committee vote was 10 to 1. Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) was alone in opposing it. However, he said the bill didn't go far enough; that it should be amended to give pay raises to heads of agencies such as the FBI, REA, etc.

Chairman Johnston (D., S. C.) said the bill would be called up for debate Thursday in the Senate. Senator O'Conor (D., Md), a sponsor of the measure, will handle it on the Senate floor. He joined with the chairman in expressing hope that it would be approved quickly by the Congress.

The bill must be approved in the next seven days in order to raise the President's salary during his second term. It proposes the President's salary be raised from $75,000 to $100,000, and that he be given an additional expense account of $50,000 which wouldn't have to be accounted for.

O'Conor said the committee was given an opinion by legal experts who believe the Speaker is eligible for a pay raise. The bill would raise the salaries of both the Vice President and the Speaker from $20,000 to $30,000, and in addition, give them $10,000 expense accounts.

Since Mr. Rayburn already has been elected Speaker, some members of Congress contend he's ineligible for a pay boost during his present term of office.

Under the bill, cabinet members would be raised from $15,000 to $25,000, and little cabinet members, heads of independent agencies, boards and commissions would be set at $17,500, $20,000, and $22,500. Bureau chiefs and other executives would be provided pay raises in a revision of the Classification Act which will be proposed shortly by the Administration.

Four GOP committee members voted for the bill despite the fact the Republican Policy Committee on Monday voted to support pay raises for the President, Vice President, and Speaker only. Chairman Taft (R., Ohio) said objections were raised to quick action on other pay raises.

Foreign Service and classified District employes were left out of the general $330 pay raise for Federal workers voted last July.

A. AUSTIN LATIMER is the new staff director and attorney of the Senate Civil Service Committee. He's attorney here and has had years of Federal experience.

A native of South Carolina, Latimer was in the offices of former Postmaster General James Farley and James Byrnes when he was Senator. He also worked at the General Accounting Office and at one time he owned and operated three newspapers in South Carolina.

HIRAM W. BRAWLEY, a 33-year-old Federal Trade Commission investigator, will be Latimer's assistant. He's also from South Carolina and he held several responsible jobs in the Office of Price Administration. He served in the Air Force during the war.

VIRGINIA BOBO will be assistant chief clerk of the committee. She has been secretary to Senator Johnston for the past 17 years. She will replace Colette Homan, who will remain with the committee in a stenographic job.

REPRESENTATIVE LAURIE C. BATTLE (D., Ala.) is another good man who is slated to leave the House Civil Service Committee.

REPRESENTATIVE EARL T. WAGNER (D., Ohio) is a good bet to be one of the new Democratic members of the committee. He's a Cincinnati attorney and he has requested a seat on the committee. This is his first term.

In the Senate, Senator Williams (R., Del.) has been replaced by Senator Hendrickson (R., N. J.) on its Civil Service Committee.

NOTES: Marquis W. Childs, the columnist, will speak tonight at a dinner meeting at the YWCA of the American Society for Public Administration . . . The hundreds of Federal workers who live here and in nearby Maryland but who work in Baltimore have put in a bid for an Inauguration holiday. They should be included . . . Chairman Lesinski of the House Labor Committee has in a worthy bill to increase benefits to Federal workers who are injured on the jobs.

Ruling by West Widens Indigent Aid Eligible List

D. C. Counsel Says Term Should Apply After Dependents' Needs Are Supplied

Persons should not have to be entirely unable to pay for any medical aid in order to receive "indigent" hospital care at public expense here, Corporation Counsel Vernon C. West ruled yesterday.

The term "indigent patients" in the 1949 District Appropriation Act, which authorized spending $735,000 for medical care in Washington's private hospitals, "does not mean that a person . . . must be absolutely destitute and dependent upon others for every necessity of life," said West.

"In the opinion of this office a person is indigent within the meaning of the Appropriation Act if he is wholly unable to pay his hospital expenses after providing for his other necessities and the necessities of those dependent upon him."

Urges Firm Standards

West said in his opinion, which is of vital financial concern to the nine hospitals under District contract for indigent care, that firm standards should be established determining at what income level a fair determination of indigency should fall.

His opinion approves in major part the recommendations made be District Health Officer George C. Ruhland to adopt realistic measures of indigency to permit use of the authorized funds.

Because of an earlier District budget office determination that any persons who could pay anything toward care in the nine hospitals could not be termed "indigent," the hospitals were able to use only a small part of the authorization.

At West's recommendation, his opinion will now go to District Auditor A. R. Pilkerton for his opinion on the issue, and then to Comptroller General Lindsay Warren for the final decision of the case.

Proposes Scale Revision

Dr. Ruhland proposed that an indigent scale in use at Gallinger Hospital since 1946 be modernized to meet present purchasing power, and applied to the nine contract hospitals.

That scale provides income levels to determine at what point persons can be considered as indigent or semi-indigent.

West said that while it is not for him to decide just at what earning level a person may be termed indigent for these purposes, the Gallinger scale could not fully apply to the private hospitals, for while Gallinger is authorized to care for semi-indigents with public funds, private hospitals are not.

He said, therefore, that a maximum earning level would have to be set for the private hospital care under the act, with all persons below that level classed as indigent.

This would not prevent, said West, "providing a range" of income within which the District health officer "may negotiate with those seeking public assistance for the purpose of obtaining from such persons the partial payment of their medical costs."

Rates Are Provided

The Appropriation Act provides that the $735,000 for "medical charities" shall be paid at an inpatient rate not exceeding $9 a day, and out-patient rate up to $2 a day.

West's opinion listed a wide variety of court decisions to support his interpretation of "indigent," which he said is not defined in the congressional legislation for the District, or hearing records, and has been the subject of extensive controversy for years.

The hospital funds are limited to patients who have been District residents at least a year, but can also be available to others "in emergency cases.'

While Dr. Ruhland asked that the health officer be permitted to make "minor deviations" from the indigent income-scale regulations in unusual instances, West insisted such regulations, when established, must be rigidly adhered to.

Still 'Serious'

Rector Boy Given 50-50 Life Chance

Four-year-old Michael Rector, who was not expected to live 24 hours when severely burned from ankles to armpits two months ago, now has a 50—50 chance of living, his surgeon said last night.

However, his condition remains serious. Still uncertain factors are the possible effects of burn poisons on his kidneys, liver and brain, the doctor said.

If the child's condition continues to improve he may undergo graft of another 100 square inches of skin next week. Marine Sergt. John T. Rapp, 26, stationed at Anacostia Naval Air Station, has volunteered as skin donor out of admiration for Michael's plucky fight for life.

About two-thirds of the skin grafted on Michael to date has disappeared. More than 200 square inches were provided by Michael's father, Everett Rector, and George Becraft, a salesman.

Lawyers Told Of Appeals Court Load

"A serious and permanent arrearage" in the docket of the District Court of Appeals has made an increase in the number of judges "mandatory," Chief Judge Harold M. Stephens said last night.

Addressing the monthly meeting of the District of Columbia Bar Association, Judge Stephens revealed that it took 9½ months from docket to disposition, against an average of seven months in other districts.

Heavy Load Per Judge

"Delay in justice is in reality its denial," Stephens said, urging the cooperation of the bar association in alleviating the case load. District Court of Appeals judges have an average of 58 cases per judge, against the national average of 27, Stephens said.

More than 200 cases were carried over on the court calendar at the close of the fiscal year ending June, 1948, a larger number than ordinarily can be handled in one year.

Since that time, 135 new cases have been received and 135 more are expected before the end of June, 1949.

The arrearage is getting worse, the chief judge stated, and the docket "will never be current under the court as it is now constituted."

Special Cases Here

There are six active judges in the District Court of Appeals, one of 11 similar courts throughout the country. But the District Court docket is clogged with cases which other circuit courts do not have to handle, Stephens said. Such cases include all appeals from rulings by Federal agencies, all suits against Cabinet members, and all cases against the Commissioner of Patents.

In addition, many cases which are handled here by the Court of Appeals are handled by States at the State level.

William A. Ransom, former president of the American Bar Association, told the 300 association members and guests present of the high respect in which the District Court of Appeals is held by the rest of the country.

Rep. Herlong Uses Post Want Ad to 'Swap' Florida Home for Living Quarters Here

THE HERLONGS AT HOME—Representative A. S. Herlong (D., Fla.) and Mrs. Herlong pose with their daughters, Margaret, 13; Mary Alice, 16, Sidney and Dorothy, twins, 9, in the Forest Glen residence they obtained in a trade through a classified ad in The Washington Post

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

HOUSE TRADERS — Congressman Herlong and John Paul Jones, jr., clasp hands on the deal they made. They are standing in front of the house in nearby Maryland which Jones traded for the new Congressman's home in Florida. The exchange was made until spring

Florida's freshman Congressman "Roll Along With" Sid Herlong just rolled into a comfortable Forest Glen, Md., rambler—heat and rent free.

And congressional string-pulling didn't have anything to do with the free housing ride of Representative A. S. Herlong (D., Fla.).

Rather it was an even swap, at least also even, between Representative Herlong and John Paul Jones, jr. (no kin of the other J. P. J.), a Washington advertising man.

The exchange came about through the following ad which appeared in The Washington Post last November 17:

"Member of Congress will exchange beautiful Colonial 4-bedroom home, completely furnished, in orange grove, on best bass fishing lake in Lake County, Fla., for comparable facilities in desirable area in or near Washington; January through April or May; references exchanged."

Jones, whose wife and children had to move South for the winter to care for her invalid father, was the first of "more than 30 people" to answer the ad, said the 39-year-old Representative.

"And the funny part of this made-to-order deal," chimes in John Paul Jones, "Just the night before The Washington Post ad appeared, I had sent a similar reverse ad to a half dozen Florida papers bidding for a house in a quiet, nonresort town."

Jones sure got what he wanted. The house on "the best bass fishing lake in Lake County" is in Leesburg—the heart of the citrus growing belt in the geographical center of the Alligator State.

Herlong concedes that he has no orange grove nor fishing in his front yard here, "but I don't have a heating bill either."

"Figuring, I guess, that I'm a Southerner, Jones has agreed to heat our temporary northern quarters as part of our arrangement," the former Lake County judge explained.

Everyone came out fine in the swap except Jones. "It's no fun having my wife and three children living about 800 miles away, but there we had no alternative; my wife's aging father has to live in warm climate this winter," Jones said. He is living at the home of his wife's sister in Alexandria.

Herlong, who learned to slug it out as a semipro baseball player, later to become president of the Florida State Baseball League, said he conceived the idea of a "swap" ad after four days looking at $300-a-month houses "which was the only housing I found available."

But the Florida freshman has no idea of leaving all touches of his home State's orange lore behind.

"I am setting up an orange juice bar in my House office," Herlong tells you.

"The juice will come from my own pineapple oranges shipped up here twice a week—and for my visitors, it's going to be free."

Photogrammetry Society Begins Annual Session

Coroner Defers Decision on Prisoner's Death

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald announced yesterday he is withholding a certificate in the death of Earl Tutt, 52, pending further investigation by the homicide squad.

Tutt, who used the alias of Tucker and had no known address, was found unconscious in a Thirteenth Precinct cell Sunday night after his arrest on a drunk charge. He died en route to Freedmen's Hospital.

Dr. MacDonald said police have located two witnesses who saw Tutt fall on the street before his arrest. An autopsy Monday showed he died of a skull fracture.

D. C. Consulting Other Cities on Late-Hour Clubs

Commissioners Hope to Get Ideas On Regulation of Late Drink Spots

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The District Government is checking other cities on how they handle the problem of "after hours" drinking clubs for leads on what to do about them here.

Commissioner Guy Mason, who supervises the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, disclosed this last night in discussing the situation.

In his opinion, consideration should be given to licensing the after 2 a. m. spots as a means of controlling operations there, as well as providing an additional source of revenue for the District's dwindling treasury.

"If they have a license at stake, they will operate properly," he declared. He said the licensing arrangement would "reduce the pressure on police" in regulating the clubs. At present the police are forced to send undercover operatives into the spots to gain evidence for a search warrant before a raid may be made.

West Seeks Information

Mason said he has directed Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West to find what other cities are doing about the clubs. He said West is contacting the Municipal Law Officers Association, of which he is a member and officer, for such information.

Three after-hours drinking clubs were raided August 20 and a fourth was raided early Sunday on alleged liquor law violations. Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the Police Vice Squad, has ordered his men to keep a "constant check" on the spots, but pointed out two convictions against a club operator are necessary for District Court to order a closing.

Another attack on the estimated 100 District drinking clubs came yesterday from the Tavern Owners Association of Washington, Inc. The organization at a meeting last month protested "the comparative freedom the so-called 'after-hour' clubs enjoy."

Contrary to Regulations

The association publication, The Tavernite, charged that the clubs "simply by purchasing occupational licenses at two dollars each, may serve drinks at all hours, serve drunks, allow patrons to wander from table to table or stand up and drink and otherwise operate contrary to regulations imposed on legitimate dealers." The association plans a meeting this month to ask for longer operating hours.

A group of 25 large restaurateurs last week asked the District Commissioners and the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to permit selling liquor after the usual 2 a. m. deadline from January 17 through January 21 to accommodate Inaugural Week visitors.

The group argued that visitors would be protected from abuses at properly licensed establishments, while early closing would encourage guests to patronize the "after hours" clubs, which are unregulated. The restaurant men asked that this be granted "in consideration for not increasing prices" as a means of boosting their incomes.

The ABC Board voted 2 to 1 in favor of the proposal, but the Commissioners, who had the final say, voted against it Monday. Commissioner Guy Mason said last night that the present "hours are long enough. There is enough time allowed for selling liquor."

Don't Want Drunken Brawl

"We don't want to turn the Inaugural into a drunken brawl or give this town a bad reputation," he added.

According to complaints, the "after hours" clubs operate on the pretext that they are private clubs catering only to members and guests. As such if they do not sell liquor, but merely furnish drinks from a member's own bottle, they are subject to few municipal regulations.

They are required to obtain a certificate of occupancy, which costs $2 and is good for the lifetime of the club. An application for such a permit is obtainable at the Central Permit Bureau in the District Building.

ABC Board Hears Store Gaming Case

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday took under advisement three charges that a grocer permitted his store to serve as a clearing house for numbers plays.

The grocer is Morris Friedberg, 59, of 807 Otis st. nw., proprietor of the Tivoli Market, 3400 13th st. nw. His market is licensed to sell light wines and beer for off-premises consumption.

Friedburg is accused of permitting his store to be used for unlawful purposes on June 24, 25 and 26 of last year.

Principal witnesses against Friedberg yesterday at a hearing before the ABC Board were Pvt. Carl F. Krogman and Sergt. George C. Deyoe, both of the Tenth Precinct. Krogman figured as an undercover man in the case.

Friedberg Testifies

Friedberg testified that Krogman entered his store on June 24, told him he had been assigned to check traffic conditions at that corner and asked if he could borrow a box on which to sit.

Later that day, Friedberg continued, Krogman again came into the store and used the telephone. The grocer said Krogman, whom he did not know as a policeman, apparently was unable to get anyone to take a play on a "dream" number.

Friedberg told the ABC board that Krogman asked him if he knew where he could play a number. The grocer said he replied that he could probably play the number with the bakery delivery man, William E. McGee, 38, of 2715 Central ave. ne., when he arrived. He said Krogman made the play when McGee arrived.

The following day, Krogman returned, Friedberg testified. He said Krogman asked him if he would hand the numbers play to McGee that day, explaining he would be busy on the corner and might miss McGee. Friedman said he accepted the play to oblige Krogman and later turned it over to McGee.

Coins Marked, He Says

Deyoe testified that on the night of the twenty-fifth he gave Krogman some coins marked with an indention. The following day, he said, he waited outside the store with Detective Benjamin D. Clarke of the vice squad and watched McGee arrive.

When McGee left the market, Deyoe said, Krogman signaled that a play had been made, so McGee and Friedberg were arrested. Deyoe said he recovered several of the marked coins from Friedberg's cash register and slips on which numbers had been written from a basket on the counter.

McGee testified that he had accepted one numbers play from Friedberg, but said there was no business arrangement between them.

At the time of their arrest, both men were charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips. McGee pleaded guilty and escaped with a $100 fine. Friedberg, however, pleaded not guilty, was convicted and fined $750 and placed on three years' probation.

Mrs. Agnes Mason Gets 5th ABC Board Term

Reappointment of Mrs. Agnes K. Mason to a four-year term on the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board was announced yesterday by the District Commissioners.

Mrs. Mason, appointed to the board when it was organized in 1934, is the only remaining original member. Her fifth term will begin February 3.

Mother of three married sons, Mrs. Mason is the wife of Dr. William Beverly Mason, retired ear, nose and throat specialist. They live at the Dresden Apartment House, Connecticut ave. and Kalorama rd. nw.

Before her appointment to the ABC board Mrs. Mason was a leader in the national women's organization for prohibition reform.

Defunct Spotlight Club Fined $150

The Spotlight Guild, Inc., operators of the defunct Spotlight Club, 17th and M sts. nw., was fined $150 yesterday in Municipal Court for liquor law violations.

The fine was imposed by Judge Thomas D. Quinn after the guild pleaded guilty to six counts of keeping and selling whiskey illegally.

The after-hours club was closed after a police raid last August.

D. C. Veteran Bonus Bill Asks $250 Top

Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) wants the Federal Government to pay bonuses up to $250 each to District war veterans.

Klein introduced a House bill to authorize this bonus scale:

For veterans whose military service was in the continental United States and whose service was 60 days or less, $50.

For those who served more than 60 days, with all the service in the continental United States, $150.

For those who served overseas, $250, and for the survivors of veterans who died in service, $250.

The bonus money would be paid by the Federal Government, but the District would bear the administrative costs of distributing the bonus.

Veterans who were inducted in the District, and who had lived here for the six months immediately before their induction, and who are living here at the time they apply for the bonus, would be eligible for the payments. Honorable discharge from the armed forces would also be a test of eligibility.

Klein also reintroduced his bill of the last Congress to require registration of District locksmiths.

The winner was Mrs. Elizabeth West of 1427 Montello ave. ne. Defendant was the Safeway Stores, Inc. She was represented by Attorneys Austin F. Canfield and Ralph Berlow.

The jury verdict was returned before Judge T. Alan Goldsborough. Mrs. West said she was in a hospital for 33 days and has entirely lost the sight in her right eye.

The accident occurred June 28, 1945. Mrs. West said she was going to purchase groceries when a woman with a baby in a stroller attempted to leave the store. Mrs. West came to her aid and while holding open a screen door, the spring, located at head height, broke. Mrs. West was thrown to the pavement when the spring struck her.

Roe Fulkerson, D. C. Kiwanis Founder, Dies

Roe Fulkerson, 78, founder and first president of the District Kiwanis Club, and a thirty-third-degree Mason, died early yesterday in Hollywood, Fla., where he had made his home since 1932.

Mr. Fulkerson

An optician here from 1898 to 1924, Mr. Fulkerson's wit won him wide popularity as a columnist and after-dinner speaker.

He had been in failing health for the past three years.

A native of Maryville, Tenn., he was born on July 11, 1870. He moved to Washington in 1891. Woman Asks Help for Her Daughter-in-Law, Who Recently Told Her to Mind Her Business When She Offered to Entertain for Her Mother

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have two fine sons and five lovely grandchildren, but my elder son's wife, Elsa, has become quite nervous and neurotic in the last few years. I've tried to persuade John that medical attention is imperative for her, but he shrugs off the importance of it.

Her treatment of me is indicative, and I believe the problem might be readily solved with the help of your insight made available to Elsa through your column. She used to be sweet and receptive to me, but now she is harshly resentful, and last month she even told me to mind my own business when I merely offered to entertain her mother, who is expected for a visit soon.

Of course I forgave this "slap," but her attitude towards me is consistently bitter and I don't know why I'm the object of her spleen. I've always been as kind as humanly possible to both daughters-in-law, and helpful where they will let me. My husband and I are lavish with gifts, and even provide the children with a free vacation bungalow next to our own.

Mother-in-Law Lavishes Love

AFTER all this love and understanding so freely given, Elsa's cruel attitude sometimes seems more than I can bear. She is an only child and didn't go to college, although she went to night school for a year, while working days, before she married my son. Her father died five years ago.

Perhaps more religion in her life would help. I'm confident she wouldn't consider psychiatric aid. Please answer soon, as I still want to entertain her mother. I'm sure she'd enjoy it and I'd love to do it; but of course if Elsa interprets it as interference, it may be better to ignore the mother's visit entirely. What is your opinion of this? And of Elsa's behavior and state of health? H. B.

Mother-in-Law's a Tireless Pest

DEAR H. B.: Such insight as I must in honesty suggest should come as no surprise to Elsa. As I see the picture, she has ample non-neurotic justification for resenting you, and only more recently has found courage to express it. I daresay she feels things couldn't be worse, so why not put her cards on the table?

Consider the fact that you are still obstinately insistent upon "wanting" to entertain Elsa's mother, despite Elsa's gruff rejection of the idea a month ago. What does this signify, if not that you are a tireless pest in family relationship, and complacently heedless of any demurrers that you can forcibly override or plausibly discredit?

Your mind works deviously to undermine opposition and support your delusion of magnanimity. And this of course would madden a daughter-in-law struggling to defend some corner of privacy from your irrepressible meddling.

For instance, it's not literally true that you forgave Elsa's slap. Had you forgiven, you wouldn't be writing a slyly recriminatory document with intent to put her in wrong. Rather, your expedient reaction was to ignore her thrust, if by so doing you were able to perpetuate your preferred position of being always in her hair, figuratively speaking.

Real Foundation for Wife's Ire

ALSO, the undercurrent of your references to Elsa is meanly disparaging, though adroitly sugarcoated to the undiscerning auditor; and I'm sure this is your habitual pitch in discussing her with John, especially now that she is fighting back, in a punchdrunk way, against your "mom"-drive for dominance of John's married life.

Elsa's strident bitterness is linked to awareness that you've smothered her initiative from the start, so that she's never had a chance to develop a mature, sacrosanct, bonafide union of forces with John; but can you face the fact that such was your unconscious aim? If you can, and in all humility will revise your performance for the better, her former sweetness may revive.

About Elsa's mother, be receptive to becks without butting in. It were catty to ignore her entirely if not encouraged to fete her for your own glory. It's Elsa's prerogative to be mistress of ceremonies during such visits, and you're wrong in trying to confuse the issue. M. H.

Tom Burkes to Fete Polish Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Burke will entertain at dinner this evening for Tadeusz Jarecki and Mme. Jarecka who are their guests during their brief stay here from New York. Mme. Jarecka, the former Louise Llewelly, daughter of a one-time Governor of Kansas, is here for the opening today of the exhibition of Polish manual arts at the Smithsonian Institute.

Included in the exhibit are tapestries woven on the basis of ancient native skills; rugs, which is now a modern Polish industry; painting on glass, wood carvings and ceramics, the latter three all work of the peasants. From Washington the collection will go on tour throughout the country. It will be on view here until January 30. Mme. Jarecka, who wrote the explanatory article for the exhibit catalogue, has just finished a book on the Traditional Arts of Poland, to be published early in March.

Mr. Jarecki is a noted Polish composer and conductor and has directed several of the major symphony orchestras of Europe.

Paris Joins Manhattan's Spring Fashion Parade

By Peggy Preston

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—A little bit of Paris dropped into the New York Dress Institute's winter shindig yesterday and injected an international flavor into the week's proceedings.

Europe's queen city of fashion was represented in a collection by Jacques Fath, made in this country for Joseph Halpert, one of our own designers o note. The foreign collection, consisting of about 30 ensembles, was presented by Mr. Halpert along with his our own designers of note. The foreign collection, consisting of audience. Both the press and the trade mobbed the show, which was newsworthy in this respect: Mr. Halpert is the first American stylist who has ever asked a French designer to create an entire line especially for him. Everyone wanted to see the results and view the comparisons.

Mr. Halpert's collection was shown first, followed by Mr. Fath's. One cannot say that the good ole USA suffered by comparison. In fact, it would be difficult to say where Mr. Fath came in and where Mr. Halpert left off.

But the Paris line, complete with traditional subtle detail, was noteworthy. And it certainly aroused comment among members of the press.

Mr. Fath's designs were feminine, delightful, but not revolutionary. And, depending on your tastes, not any better than those of topflight American designers such as we viewed in other showings today. Indeed it would be hard to surpass the magnificent coats such as Philip Mangone had to offer; the charming low-priced, ready-to-wear Capri originals; the beautiful slim-lined effects created by Paul Parnes, and the expensive but exquisitely feminine dresses of Mildred O'Quinn.

Paris may be tops, and we don't argue the point, but New York is showing us some fascinating fashions this week.

Small for His Age

Most Important Visitor Here So Far This Year Is a 400-Year-Old Boy

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

SO FAR, THIS YEAR'S most important visitor to Washington is a very old young man who, though stark naked, arrived under police escort and was welcomed by an honor guard of United States Marines!

He is 5 feet tall and still, after more than 400 years, somewhat in the rough—there are chisel marks here and there on his elegant torso. His name is David, his home town is Florence, Italy, and he is the first Michaelangelo in the "round" to cross the Atlantic.

Commencing next Sunday, the famous statue, loaned by the Italian government, will be exhibited for approximately six months at our National Gallery only. Michaelangelo executed three Davids—a tremendous statue which is now in the Florence Academy; a bronze, possibly copied from Donatello's statue; and this third, smaller David, created when the artist was in His fifties for the Medici Tombs at San Lorenzo.

The statue is of particular interest to the National Galleries since, through the Widener bequest, it obtained Donatello's David. Donatello created his David almost a century earlier, and as it stood for many, many years in Florence's Casa Martelli, Michaelangelo knew it well. Now these two extraordinary statues, the early Renaissance and the last of the Renaissance Davids, will be exhibited here in almost adjoining rooms.

THE MICHAELANGELO DAVID set sail from Naples, December 9. Representatives from our Rome Embassy, Italian officials, and a crowd of curious, saw David aboard the USS Grand Canyon. To guard against movement, the statue was shored up in the hold, constantly guarded.

The ship arrived in Norfolk three days late, after detouring to aid an injured seaman on a British freighter. Safe in Norfolk, the statue was placed on a Navy truck which was sandwiched between two Navy sedans, preceded and followed by motorcycle police. The sedans protected the truck from collision, a far greater danger than theft, and as added safeguard, the journey was made at night. In charge of the escort was Comdr. Keith Merrill who, last year, chaperoned the German paintings to and from Europe.

At 11 a. m., when the cavalcade finally drew up at the National Gallery, a platoon of Marines, with officers standing at attention, sabers drawn, was on hand. Finally, David was unpacked, passed as perfect, by David Finley and John Walker, the Gallery's top-flight officials.

It will be placed, solo, in a room between the West Sculpture Hall and West Garden Court. To add warmth to the bare room, special bushy trees, selected and grouped by Mr. Finley, will be ranged around the walls.

Sunday, after luncheon, the Italian Ambassador, his staff, and other notables, have been invited for first glance at David. From an adjoining room Donatello's David can almost take a gander at his old compatriot.

THAT AND THAT. Charles Aldrich, who is working like a pack of beavers on the Inaugural Gala Concert, wants it known that the $10 seats are all sold. But there's a sprinkling of places at $50 in what's called the Presidential Circle, a fast dwindling number of $7.50 seats and a nice assortment at $5 and $2.50 apiece. The Gala's on Wednesday, the nineteenth. Further information can be had by telephoning Inaugural headquarters at Sterling 1555.

Mrs. George Mesta has placed a new sign over her office door. It reads "Private. If urgent knock."

Club Leaders Urged to Promote Cordial GI-Civilian Relations

By Genevieve Reynolds

A. E. Casgrain, chief of Community Relations of the Public Information Division, Department of the Army, yesterday urged the Nation's club leaders to use their influence as civic leaders to see that soldiers get the best possible treatment from civilians.

He outlined his program of concrete ways women can aid national defense and the peacetime GI at a gathering of women's organization representatives from the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania. The meeting was sponsored by the Second Army information section at Fort George G. Meade, Md. Following a series of talks on what the Army is doing for its enlistees the group toured fort installations, barracks and recreational centers.

The following are Casgrain's suggestions to women leaders:

1. Alert national women's leaders to the need of national legislation on housing.

2. Help raise local community funds for armed service off-base recreation, such as local USO programs.

3. Assist with housing and room referral centers in conjunction with the Army Advisory Committees USO program.

4. Establish junior hostess centers in the community.

5. Work on total health and venereal disease programs for all cities.

"A better American community with good recreational facilities, a perfect health score and a friendly normal feeling for soldiers is a better place for citizens — civilians or soldiers to live in," concluded Casgrain.

Col. S. J. Ryczeck, assistant Second Army chaplain, also emphasized the need for community action in health programs. "When the Army turns a soldier out, you can be sure he is free from veneral disease," he explained. "But if the community isn't free from VD, we can't protect the citizens in it."

The chaplain told the women that the Army is taking an increasing interest in the soldier's spiritual and moral welfare and that, for the first time, it has become part of the Army's regular course.

Miss Margaret Bannister, chief, Women's Interest Section, United States Army, presided at the national conference of the advisory council session, held in the Officers Club at Fort Meade. Purpose of the get-together was to explain Army's educational, religious and moral training given to the soldiers.

Among the Washington women attending were Mrs. Edward C. Magdeberger, president of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs Leslie Wright, national legislation chairman, General Federation of Women's Club, and Mrs. Zada Daniels, past president of the Washington Soroptimist Club.

Mrs. Wright protested during the meeting "Army's discrimination against women."

"When the Army wants a job done, it calls on the women. But when it comes to taking them on the same tours as men, they are forgotten and herded off into bunches," she declared.

Dr. Ruhland Tells of Proposal To Revamp Health Department

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health director, yesterday laid before members of the D. C. League of Women Voters a plan he said would reorganize administration of the District's health facilities on a more efficient and economical basis.

To supplant the present 18-bureau organization he suggested a more compact unit headed by a health officer under whom would be a coordinator of health activeties and a coordinator of hospitals. The proposed coordinator of hospitals would have supervision of Gallinger Municipal Hospital, Upshur Street Hospital, Glenn Dale Sanitorium and regulation of hospital permits. Under the coordinator of health activities would be administration, medical services, inspection services, and laboratory and statistical services.

The condensation of bureaus, Dr. Ruhland pointed out, would not only eliminate the undesirable administrative problem but would be a step in the interest of the taxpayer's pocketbook.

Although the District Commissioners rejected the health department reorganization plan, they are "not unsympathetic," Dr. Ruhland said in a question and answer period following his talk.

Dr. Ruhland was introduced by Mrs. Monroe Burk, chairman of the District affairs committee of the League of Women Voters. At the meeting Mrs. John Thomas, president, presided.

At the league's morning session Mrs. Donald Blaisdell gave the clubwomen her impressions of the meetings of the United Nations General Assembly in Paris. Mrs. Blaisdell, wife of a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations, was asked by the League of Women Voters to be their official observer while in Paris.

Mrs. Blaisdell felt that although the delegates were electrified at first with Vishinsky's storming and pounding on the table, the effectiveness lessened with its continued use. If the Russians wanted to impress the Assembly they were using poor psychology, she said, citing one case in which a delegate worked a crossword puzzle while Vishinsky talked.

Four-Way Plan Urged to Halt Reds in Korea

Discussing Korea as a bulwark against communism in Asia, Col. George Fox Mott said yesterday, "Russia is spreading communism on two fronts. How can we, with more resources than Soviet Russia, say the cost is too great?"

Colonel Mott, speaking before members of the Washington Club, said we cannot afford a policy of letting Asia fall to communism. The former Inspector General, U. S. Army Forces in Korea, suggested four ways by which America could aid Korea.

1. Economic aid, such as that administered by ECA, plus assistance with the more complex achievement of foreign loans and guarantees of foreign capital investment which would free Korea to operate in the international market; 2. Cultural and technical cooperation, such as scholarships and fellowships for Korean students, and a free flow of American technical advisers and experts to aid Korea in solving her problems.

3. Korea needs information and public relations objectivity in reporting news and views of Korea to the United States and the Western world. Colonel Mott said that China's present dilemma is caused, partially, by a bad world press since 1928.

"Representatives of the Western press have been conducting a "smear" campaign against the generalissimo and the Nationalist government on a continuing basis since that time," he said. The objective type of competitive reporting which one expects of a free press in America is lacking in China, where correspondents not joining the coalition of left-wing newsmen are made to work the news on a lone-wolf basis.

4. Korea needs definite and clearly worked out agreements or treaties with America for mutual appropriate military alliance.

Colonel Mott said that real progress has been made south of the thirty-eighth parallel, where Korea was controlled by American policy and governance in developing economic and social rehabilitation.

Tuesday Club Speaker Tells of Norway

Industrial production is greater now in Norway than before the war and there has been progress in the development of agriculture through the aid of the Marshall Plan, Mrs. Ole Sopp-Colbjornsen said yesterday.

Speaking before members of the Tuesday Club, the wife ofthe Financial Counselor of the Norwegian Embassy said that although it was not the Norwegian policy to sit with folded hands waiting for assistance, she did not believe Norway could have proceeded with reconstruction plans without the Marshall Plan.

How to Separate Honey From Comb

How can one separate honey from the wax comb? N. S.

Place the honey in the top of a double boiler and heat only long enough to melt the comb. Remove from the heat and allow to cool. When cool, the comb will have risen to the top and solidified so that it can be lifted off in one piece. Be sure not to overheat the honey as that would darken it and impair the flavor.

Another method is to place the comb honey in a cheesecloth bag. Suspend the bag and occasionally squeeze, allowing time for the honey to drip out.

How can I clean an old, highly glossed, varnished, dark mahogany piano? How can I keep it looking bright and shiny without injuring the tone of it after cleaning? N. S.

Go over the piano with a chamois which has been dampened with water. When clean wring the chamois as dry as possible and rub it until the entire sufface is dry. To keep it clean, dust and polish it frequently with a dry soft silk cloth.

May a man's calling cards be engraved with his name only, without the prefix Mr? A. M.

Cards for social use of boys under 14 are printed or engraved without a prefix, but for men 14 years or older a prefix should be used. This rule does not hold for business cards where the firm name and address or profession appears on the card with the name.

What is the proper method of cleaning and brightening oil paintings? G. S. H.

Because a high degree of skill and much technical information is required to clean a painting successfully, I would suggest you turn this job over to a professional restorer.

How can I clean gold picture frames? Is there any special kind of gold paint that should be used to touch up the frames when cleaned? G. S. H.

If the frames are covered with gold leaf, special care must be used in cleaning them because the layer of gold leaf is usually so thin that even gentle rubbing may injure it. It is really safest to have a professional clean it. However, if you are very careful, the following home method may be used: Use a half-and-half mixture of alcohol and household ammonia applied with a very soft brush or cotton wound around a stick. After a few minutes to allow the dirt to soften, remove it with clear water, also applied with a soft brush or cotton on a stick. Any water that remains is shaken off and the frame stood on edge to dry.

If the frames have been painted with gold paint, clean them before repainting by wiping with a soft cloth wrung out of benzine. If the surface is still shiny, go over it with sandpaper to dull it before applying the new coat of paint. Use a bronzing powder to paint the frames, mixing it with bronzing liquid. This can be purchased at most well-stocked paint stores.

Pieces of the ornate design on picture frames (made of plaster of Paris, I think) have been knocked off through rough handling. Is there any way I can patch this, matching the design, if possible, so that the patches will not be noticeable? G. H.

The broken parts can be built up by using a paste made by mixing glue or lacquer with plaster. Apply this to the parts which are broken, first removing all crumbled plaster of Paris from the surface. Unless the frame is very broken, these damaged spots can be built up and the design restored very easily by shaping the plaster with the fingers while it is wet and pliable.

When the new parts have been shaped, allow to dry thoroughly and sand the rough surfaces. Brush away all dust and give the repaired places a coat of varnish to close the pores of the plaster so it will take the finish coat the same as the parts already painted. When the varnish is thoroughly dry, paint the entire frame.

I would like to antique some picture frames. Can you tell me what the method is? G. H.

Antiquing is usually done by giving the frame a ground coat of either cream or white paint. When the paint coat is thoroughly dry, sandpaper it smooth and apply a thin glaze of bronzing powder mixed with bronzing liquid. As soon as the glaze is applied, immediately wipe it with a soft cloth, removing the glaze almost entirely from the flat surfaces and leaving it in the design. In this way, the final effect is an almost invisable tint of the gold on the flat surfaces, shading into a deeper tone in the depth of the design.

Will you publish a recipe for making candied pineapple for use in fruit cake? H. M. G.

Candied Pineapple

Make a sirup by cooking 2½ cups of sugar with one cup of water. (Use a small saucepan to prevent quick evaporation.) Cook the drained, canned pineapple in the sirup until it is transparent. Do not allow sirup to boil violently. Remove fruit from sirup to a strainer and drain well.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Teen-Age Canteens

During the war days when we were worried a good deal about our young people getting into trouble, there was a mushroom growth of teen-age canteens. Called by various names, these were centers where boys and girls could get together for dancing, games, soft drinks and other informal social activities. In many communities, such social centers were very popular and have lasted, especially when the young people themselves had a good deal to do with running them.

Today there are communities where the young people would like to have such places to go, but where they find opposition from the churches, other youth-serving groups and even their parents. At times there is ugly suspicion that the youngsters are up to no good if they want a place of their own. Yet, it is perfectly natural and desirable that our young people should take responsibility for themselves. They will need the counsel of parents and other older people. They will invite their families to many of their activties. But they still want a place that is peculiarly theirs.

If your youngsters have this feeling, give them a hand. Encourage them to carry through. Help them raise the money that is necessary. Then stand by without trying to run the canteen for them. They'll appreciate your confidence and live up to it. And they will be learning how to get a community job done.

GOVERNMENT OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, Washington 4, D. C., January 11, 1949, ordered: That Commissioners Order 300,661/13 dated December 23, 1948, is hereby amended as follows: Strike out Section 17 through 23 and substitute in lieu thereof: Section 17. No person shall sell, or offer for sale, or distribute, upon any of the streets, avenues, alleys, or reservations in the District of Columbia any badge, emblem, book, pamphlet, postcard, souvenir, picture, toy, balloon, cane, or miscellaneous article of merchandise without first having obtained a license so to do from the Concessions Committee of the Inaugural Committee of 1949, to be issued upon the following conditions: During the period January 18 to January 26, 1949, both inclusive, special licenses to vendors shall be issued only by the Inaugural Committee of 1949 after investigation and approval by the Concessions Committee of the Inaugural Committee. The Major and Superintendent of Police shall, upon presentation to him of said license by the licensee and the submission by the licensee of one full-face photograph 2"x2" taken after the date of the publication of these regulations, issue to said licensee a pass or badge which shall be conspicuously worn by the licensee while vending any of the articles described in the preceding paragraph. Such pass or badge shall specify thereon the articles to be sold by the licensee. No vehicle of any description shall be used in connection with the sale or distribution of any article of merchandise for which licenses are issued hereunder, except that where the Concessions Committee of the Inaugural Committee finds that the sale or distribution of any articles of merchandise can be accomplished only from a fixed location such article or articles of merchandise may be sold from a stand or vehicle stationed at a fixed location provided said location is approved by the Concessions Committee of the Inaugural Committee and the Commanding Officer of the precinct in which such location is to be established, and provided further that said stand or vehicle is furnished with a pass or placard from the Major and Superintendent of Police, such pass or placard shall be affixed to such stand or vehicle while it is being so used; provided however that such use of a vehicle shall be limited to the period between 6 a. m. and 7 p. m. on January 20, 1949 unless further limited by agreement between the said Concessions Committee and the licensee. No sale shall be made in the roadway along the route of the Inaugural Parade, between sunrise and sunset, January 20, 1949. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to require persons holding licenses issued under the provisions of Paragraph 36 of the License Law of July 1, 1932, to obtain licenses from the Inaugural Committee when such persons are operating on the stands and in the manner set out in the Police Regulations of the District of Columbia. Application for the issuance of such license shall be made to the Concessions Committee of the Inaugural Committee of 1949 on form provided for that purpose and shall be filed with said Concessions Committee together with a sample of each article of merchandise proposed to be sold by such applicant. Upon approval of said Concessions Committee and the payment to the Inaugural Committee of such fee as said Concessions Committee shall fix therefor, the issuance of the license, the filing of the photograph hereinbefore provided for, and the issuance by the Major and Superintendent of Police of the pass or badge hereinbefore described, the holder of such license, while conspicuously wearing such pass or badge, is authorized to offer for sale and sell upon the public highways of the District of Columbia only the particular article or articles specified in his application for the issuance of such license, provided that said licensee shall not be authorized to offer for sale or sell any such merchandise in any of the Inaugural stands without a further special permit, in addition to such license, issued by the Inaugural Committee upon the recommendation of the said Concessions Committee. Except where further limited by agreement between the said Concessions Committee and the vendor, licenses issued under the provisions of this section shall be effective from January 15 to January 26, 1949, both inclusive, and shall not be construed as permitting the licensee to employ assistants or helpers under such license; Provided, however, that articles of merchandise as enumerated in the first paragraph of this section may be sold from fixed locations approved by the said Concessions Committee and the Commanding Officer of the precinct in which the same shall be located and when so sold from fixed locations the licensee may employ such number of assistants or helpers as are approved by the said Concessions Committee provided they shall conspicuously wear on their outer coat lapels the passes or badges which shall be issued by the Major and Superintendent of Police upon recommendation of the said Concessions Committee and upon the filing with the said Major and Superintendent of Police by such assistants or helpers of a 2"x2" full-face photograph taken after the date of the publications of these regulations. No license shall be issued for the sale of confetti or kindred substances or for the sale of tickers or similar devices capable of use for the annoyance of any person. The pass or badge issued by the Major and Superintendent of Police under the provisions of this section shall contain the name of the licensee or his assistants or helpers and a statement as to the character of the merchandise he is licensed to sell. It shall be conspicuously displayed on the outer coat lapel of each such licensee at all times while transacting business, and it shall be a condition precedent to the issuance of any license under the provisions of this section that the same may be immediately revoked and taken up by any member of the Metropolitan Police Force upon demand, where the licensee is found violating any provisions of the law or of these regulations, or is found to have furnished any false or misleading information upon his application. Section 18. The provisions of the foregoing section shall not be construed as applying to authorized persons, properly identified by card issued by the Inaugural Committee, engaged in the sale of said Inaugural Committee's Official souvenir medals and programs, but nothing herein contained shall be construed to permit a vendor selling official souvenir medals and programs to sell any other item of merchandise without compliance with Section 17 hereof. Section 19. No person shall offer for sale or sell or in any manner, directly or indirectly, represent any souvenir program, medal, picture or souvenir issued by or officially approved by the Inaugural Committee which is not actually the said souvenir program, medal, picture or souvenir issued or officially approved by said committee. Section 20. No person shall set up any stand or booth for the sale or distribution of any article or articles on any street, sidewalk, avenue, or alley or on any public reservation at any point between the established building lines, without approval as to location by the commanding officer of the police precinct in which it is desired to locate such stand and the approval of the Concessions Committee of the Inaugural Committee. Upon notification of approval by the Concessions Committee and approval of location as herein provided, the Major and Superintendent of Police shall issue a card or placard which shall be attached to said stand. Approval by the Concessions Committee of the Inaugural Committee shall be conditioned upon the agreement of the permittee to comply with the minimum requirements for safety and health for erection and operation of food concession stands as set out in the next succeeding paragraph hereof. Stands, both fixed and mobile, shall be erected and operated in accordance with the next succeeding paragraph. Section 21. A. Permits to erect concession stands on public property shall be obtained from the Director of Inspection, D. C. Applications for such permits shall be accompanied by at least two (2) blue prints or linen tracings showing structure details including all wiring and piping and locations of stands. Applications shall be filed not later than January 13, 1949. No inspection fee will be charged for stands on public property. B. Permits for electrical wiring or appliances shall be obtained from the Director of Inspection, D. C., subject to requirements of the Electrical Inspection Section. Application for electrical permits shall be filed not later than January 13, 1949. The fee for each electrical permit shall be $1. C. Concession stands equipped with heating or cooking facilities shall be not less than fifteen (15) feet from any reviewing stands. D. The only types of heating and cooking appliances which will be permitted in concession stands will be electric or liquefied petroleum gas consuming appliances. E. Cooking appliances may be installed only on work tables. If top of work table is of wood or other combustible material, same must be protected directly under cooking appliances with one (1) layer of ½-inch sheet rock or other fire resistive material. F. Cylinders containing liquefied petroleum gas shall be located at least six (6) feet from cooking or heating appliances and must be of the type acceptable under Interstate Commerce Commission shipping specifications. G. Lighting appliance, other than electric, must be of a type approved by the Fire Marshal. H. One 2½-gallon fresh water or soda and acid fire extinguisher must be available at each stand. In event of freezing weather precautions must be taken to prevent contents of extinguishers from freezing. I. Food stands or mobile units to be connected and ready for inspections at least three days prior to Inauguration Day. (By Monday, January 17, 1949.) J. All food stands must be covered. However, fire resistant canvas or like material will be permitted in lieu of wood or similar material. K. Work tables must be provided at least 30 inches from service counter, for food preparation and reasonably protected from exposure. L. All food shall be prepared and packaged by food establishments licensed within the District of Columbia, with the exception of the frankfurters and coffee. (Coffee and frankfurters may be prepared at stand.) (1) Coffee shall be dispensed in single service containers provided with a lid. (2) Frankfurters may be steamed or grilled at the stand and must be protected by individual in sanitary wrapper when served. (3) Condiments shall be dispensed only in shaker type container. (4) Sugar shall be wrapped in individual servings. M. A two (2) gallon metal container (or one larger) containing an aqueous solution of approved disinfectant to wash food handlers' hands must be provided at the stand prior to, during preparation and serving of food. Paper towels shall be provided to dry hands at each stand. Section 22. The sale of fruit, lunches, candy, tobacco, drink and similar articles in any of the inaugural stands or in any of the streets, avenues or sidewalks in the District of Columbia shall be under the direct supervision of the Inaugural Committee and licenses issued under Section 17 of these regulations shall not extend to the sale of fruit, lunches, candy, tobacco or drinks or similar articles. No person shall engage in the sale of fruit, candy, tobacco or drink or similar articles in any of the inaugural stands or upon any of the streets, avenues or sidewalks of the District of Columbia during the hours of 6 a. m. to 7 p. m., on January 20, 1949, without special permit from the Concessions Committee of the Inaugural Committee. Said Concessions Committee is authorized to issue said permits upon special agreements and fees as shall be determined by said Concessions Committee of the Inaugural Committee. Section 23. No stove containing wood or coal, no gasoline torches, no alcohol or gasoline stove, or any open flame device for cooking or illuminating shall be used upon any of the streets, avenues, or sidewalks of the District of Columbia on January 20, 1949 within the contested area described in the next succeeding section hereof except in accordance with the provisions of Section 21 hereof. Amend Section 24 by changing to a comma the period at the end thereof and adding the following: "except as hereinbefore provided." J. M. Young, G. Mason and G. R. Young, Commissioners, D. C.

THE DISTRICT LINE — by Bill Gold

We're Polishing Up Our Company Manners

Recent police action against after-hours clubs emphasizes the "shut down" orders that went out to the gambling fraternity several weeks ago.

If the cops have anything to say about it, Washington will be "the cleanest city in America" by Inaugural Day.

What will happen after that remains to be seen.

THE VETERAN'S LAMENT

Woodman, woodman, spare that tree;
Touch not a single bough
For it's hollow and rent free
And I reside there now.

Bill Nesbitt
14 E. Woodbine st.
Chevy Chase, Md.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two male white mice, plus cage; they groom themselves like cats." (Emerson 2920).

DACHSHUND LEVEL?

Hal Feyling of 812 K st. se., is impressed by the telephone company's thoughtfulness in providing peep holes for people who want to watch the construction work now in progress next to the C & P office on 13th st.

At eye level, the company has provided a window in the board fence, and labeled it: "For Sidewalk Superintendents."

And lower, at small fry level, there's another window bearing the legend: "For Junior Sidewalk Superintendents."

That's pretty cute, all right, Hal. But out in the Midwest, we used to have still a lower peephole, for dogs.

MISCELLANY

Mark M. Dobson of 5435 Tilden rd., Hyattsville, Md., already had two front teeth when Santa dropped by and left him four more for Christmas—which isn't bad for a fellow who's only five months old . . . James Cooper of 1107 Staples st. ne. wonders why our morning contemporary recently announced that the population of the United States was "about $148,000,000" . . . Don Roth of 603 Erie ave., Takoma Park, Md., is equally puzzled by the way one of the afternoon papers identified a well known football announcer. It said: "Harry Wismer, official vice of the Washington Redskins" . . . And our other afternoon contemporary made Katherine Peterson of Dares Beach, Md., shake her head, when it tried to say in a headline that there was "Little Traffic Trouble Here." An unfortunate transposition made it come out "Trouble Here— Little Traffic" . . . N. O. E. Treadway of 3510 N. 13th st., Arlington, Va., and Tom Wright of 2223 H st. nw. teamed up to catch our own printers in a typo. In the story about the London plumber who climbed the statue of Eros, we said: "Crows gathered in Piccadilly Circus while he scampered about atop the statue." Says Tom: "I don't blame the crows; it was their perch first."

'TWAS EVER THUS

Some of the experts say that the first few weeks of President Truman's new term will be marked by another "honeymoon" with Congress.

Maybe so. But the happy couple has hardly left the church before they've started arguing about how much spending money the old man will get.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

We have a television set and I can't resist answering your recent item about whether it's a good idea to buy them.

In the first place, the only possible housework it could affect is doing the supper dishes, because it starts at 5:30, and until 6:45 it has only programs for children.

If the kids set the table at your house, you can either have them do it before 5:30 or have dinner after 6:45. And their homework should be finished by 5:30.

People don't intrude to see their favorite programs, because if they don't have a set of their own they can't develop any favorite TV programs.

Dear Mary:

For the time being, you win. We'll resume this discussion two years from now, when television is on an all-day schedule.

Under "Husband's Position" she wrote "Vice President, Bergdorff-Goodman" . . . The proprietor was unimpressed by his new customer. "Ma'am," he told her, in tones usually directed at an imposter, "Bergdorf is spelled only with one 'f'."

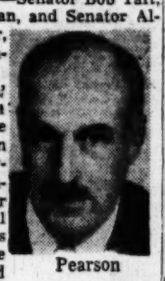
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Taft, Ellender Split on Housing

By Drew Pearson

There has been a divorce between two of the big names in public housing—Senator Bob Taft, Ohio Republican, and Senator Allen Ellender, Louisiana Democrat.



Pearson

For several years, their names have been linked on the controversial Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill which has never quite sneaked through Congress. Today, however, Ellender is leading a group of Democrats and Taft a group of Republicans in separate, though similar, bills.

Here is the inside story of what happened:

The Government housing agencies hatched a bill which they rushed over to Ellender's office to be introduced in the very early days of the new session. The Senator from Louisiana promptly phoned Taft and invited him to join as cosponsor.

Taft wanted to study the bill first, but Ellender insisted upon introducing it that same day.

So Taft asked for an explanation of the bill over the phone.

"Oh, it's the same as the T-E-W Bill," Ellender replied, in effect.

"Have you read it?" asked Taft.

"No," admitted the Louisianan.

"Then how do you know it's a good bill?" demanded Taft.

The Senator from Ohio then asked how many public housing units the new bill would authorize.

"Wait a minute," retorted Ellender, and he put the question to someone who apparently was sitting in his office.

"A million," he finally answered.

"Over five years?" asked Taft.

"Yes, five years," agreed the Senator from Louisiana. But he was interrupted by a protest from the unknown visitor.

"No, seven years," he corrected himself.

Taft, therefore, refused to put his name to the bill until he had read it, and Ellender stubbornly refused to delay the bill more than a day. That was how the two former partners on public housing happened to part company and go their separate ways.

Truman Southern OK

When President Truman came to the crucial civil-rights issue in his State of the Union address, he had at least one sympathetic Southern listener — 8-year-old Tolise Gathings, who sat on the lap of her daddy, Representative E. C. Gathings of Arkansas, while the President spoke.

As the white-haired man on the rostrum intoned all those big words, little Tolise listened profoundly and joined enthusiastically in the outbursts of applause. This caused Papa Gathings to beam proudly until the President started talking about civil rights.

Suddenly the Southern solons froze in their seats, their hands folded in their laps, and a funeral-parlor hush fell over them. But not Tolise Gathings. She clapped for the white-haired gentleman on the rostrum just the same—until her daddy, with an embarrassed flush, reached down and caught his daughter's hands. He didn't let her go, either, until it was safe for an Arkansas Congressman to applaud again.

Sister Senator Smith

Maine's high-flying Senator Owen Brewster is taking the bows for getting his sister Senator, Margaret Chase Smith, appointed to the all-powerful Republican Policy Committee. What happened was that the day before the announcement, Brewster ostentatiously made public a letter he had written urging Mrs. Smith's appointment.

The truth is, Mrs. Smith already had been selected well before Brewster wrote the letter. And she was selected not to please Brewster, but to appease the Republican liberals. Brewster's buddy, Senator Taft, gave him an advance tip that the appointment was to be made, so the resourceful Senator from Maine hastily dictated the letter—so he could take all the credit.

Under the Dome

Senator Arthur Vandenberg's son, Art, jr., who has been running his father's office, has presented his dad with a two-week notice. Young and able, Art, jr., is dickering for a new job with some New York public relations firms . . . a total of 662 bills and resolutions was dropped into the House hopper the opening day of Congress. New York's Democratic "Manny" Celler led with 35 measures, while GOP Congressman Carl Hinshaw of California introduced 25 . . . it was a great occasion for Colorada's John Carroll and Ohio's Representative-elect Stephen Young when they shook hands at the House Democratic caucus. The last previous meeting of the two Democrats was on Anzio beachhead, in Italy . . . Phil Kaiser, now in the Labor Department, will become Assistant Secretary of Labor in charge of international affairs. A good man . . . if Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing's job isn't raised to Cabinet status, he will run for Governor of New York.

Merry-Go-Round

Last week Senator Estes Kefauver's father came to Washington to see his son sworn in as a member of the upper chamber. Remarked the elder Kefauver, "they used to refer to Estes as my son. Now I am his daddy. That's what makes our country better—when a son is better than his daddy" . . . Freshman Congressman Harry Davenport of East Liberty, Pa., who ousted John McDowell from the House, wears a yellow-colored necktie calling for the defeat of the Taft-Hartley law. Congressman Davenport is pledged to wear the tie until the act is repealed . . . new Secretary of State Acheson is expected to resume daily press conferences invaluable to any State Department official who wants to keep in close touch with the public . . . Acheson is popular with diplomatic newsmen. When he left as Undersecretary of State, they chipped in $4 apiece to throw him a farewell party.

In Capitol Cloakrooms

Senator Ken Wherry, GOP leader in the Senate, has just had one of his trade secrets given away. It has now leaked out that the man who has written most of his speeches since 1942 is Albion Beveridge, who ran last place in Maine's Senatorial primaries. Many of Wherry's fast questions and sharp retorts were worked out for him by Beveridge.

But even more interesting: The man who spilled the beans on Wherry's ghost-writer is his GOP colleague—Senator Vandenberg. The Republican foreign policy chief got peeved when Wherry declined to step down as GOP floor leader at Vandenberg's request . . . Only person who knows all the new Congressmen by sight is Edith Ridgely, hostess in the House restaurant. She studied pictures of them in advance. recognized most of them the first day they came to eat .
